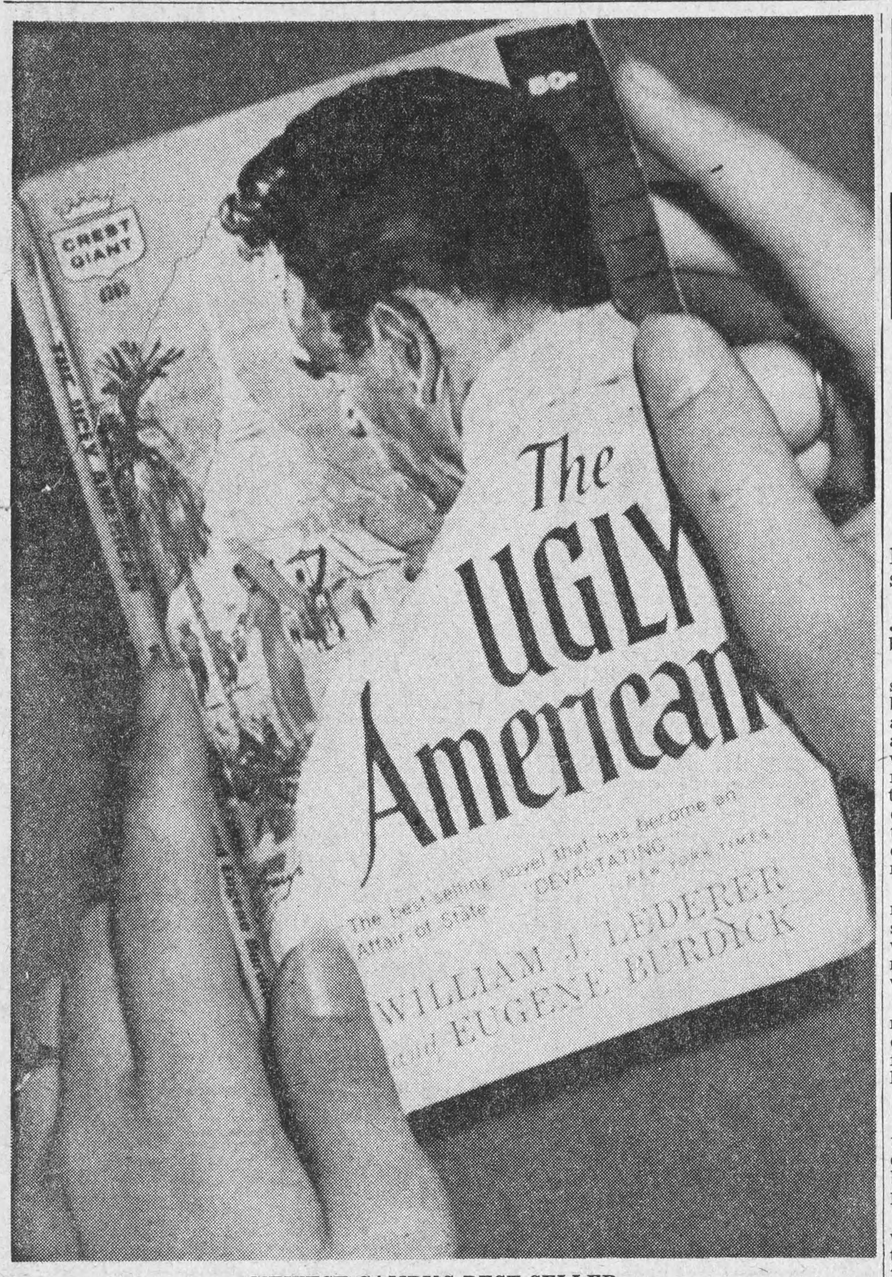
SIXTY-NINTH YEAR—No. 12 TAMPA, FLORIDA, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1961 PRICE FIVE CENTS



NEWEST CAMPUS BEST SELLER

"The Ugly American," has been selected as the first All-University Book for the second semester. The book, the third for the year, will be discussed in classroom and cafeteria, in carpools and on picnics. Plans include several campus panel discussions on the book within the next few weeks.

NEW TRI-SEMESTER PLAN PROPOSED BY STATE BOARD

Survey Hints Initial Attempt Would Win Success at USF

A tri-semester system for all state universities, including the University of South Florida, has been proposed by the State Board of Control to replace the present two semester plan.

The tri-semester system would help relieve overcrowded conditions, according to J. J. Daniel of the board. The new system would mean the entire year would be broken into three semesters.

Under one plan the three semesters would be separated by one week interim periods, and Christmas vacation would also be one week. The system would not change the vacation routine of the professors since they are only allowed to accumulate 90 days leave under the present system and would continue with the 90-day maximum.

Under another plan the semesters would be run together so that there would be a three week vacation during the summer. There would also be a week off at Chrismas.

Under present plans, if the new system is adopted, it could not begin operation before the fall of 1963 or perhaps later.

Survey Taken

In order to determine how the new system would be received, students, faculty members, and campus employes were polled.

Jessie Harrison said, "I would like the tri-semester system since I could work during the winter and go to school during the time of the year when work is harder to come by. And, besides, the university is air-conditioned."

On the other hand, Janet Bruer would rather have things left as they are. "I wouldn't like it. Things are confusing enough as they are."

In the same vein of thought both Dr. Robert Heywood, political science professor, and Dr. Edwin Martin, biology professor, believe that the system is far from conducive to the best college work.

"Students would lose all class distinction. I believe that class standing is of some merit to the student," said Dr. Heywood.

Dr. Martin seconded him, "All students, especially freshmen, need the example of upper classmen to show them, not only what is expected of them, but that one doesn't have to be very smart to get through college."

Dr. Louise Sand, Spanish professor, on the other hand, is all for the new system. "It has all the advantages of the old system, plus some. It just is a speeded up process accomplished by the elaboration of the summer program."

Negative Approach

Some students take a more negative approach. Cathy Goddar, a potential basic studies major, doesn't think that the average student could handle a three semester load.

"Three semesters would add up to 48 weeks of school a year, but it's hard to visualize something that doesn't exist."

Sue Cole held the same opinion. She said, "I think I would like it, but I would have to see it for myself."

R. J. Wells, who plans to major in education, feels it would be good for colleges if it were not compulsory for the students to go the full three semesters. But, he wouldn't advocate the plan for high schools. "I don't think it would work on the high school level, because students would be out before they are old enough to realize what they want to do."

Student Pete Pupello feels that, while the system may have its advantages, it would not receive 100 per cent patronage from the students. "I think the majority of the kids would still attend only two semesters a year, while earning their school expenses during the other," he added.

Perhaps the most unique answer was given by student Bob Jones. He said, "It would be a good way to get it over with."

University employes expressed no concern over the proposed tri-semester system. J. G. Vaughn, the campus mailman, didn't think that it would change anything from the employe's standpoint. "I work year-round anyway. But it would be good for the student wanting to get through quickly," he added.

Mrs. Nancy Bassett, the information clerk in the administration building, said, "It doesn't matter to me. It would benefit those who want to get through quickly. But I don't think many students want to hurry through so quickly that they miss out on social life."

In general, the tri-semester system is well met by most students and many wish that the new arrangement would do them some good, but the entire freshman class will graduate before the system can affect them.

Thought, Action Purpose Of Best Seller's Authors

By WING PREODOR

The All-University book for the spring semester will be "The Ugly American." The co-authors, William J. Lederer and Eugene Burdick, paint a very revealing picture of American diplomacy in Asia. They show it with many faults and very few virtues.

The purpose of the book, as the authors state it is "to stimulate thought — and, we hope, action." And, indeed, the person who can read "The Ugly Americans" without being stimulated to further thought, if not action, is not an American.

This book is a series of events, which are invented to illustrate what is actually happening, as the authors see it, not only in Asia, where the story takes place, but throughout the world. Each chapter is a small diplomatic disaster. When they are added together the reader begins to wonder whether our ambassadors are required to pass a stupidity and arrogance test before they are sent abroad.

There are some good things about American diplomacy, but this book was written to bring out the bad not the good. Some of the events seem almost too fantastic to be true. But after some second thought, and after admitting that most Americans do expect people in other countries to learn English, or by some miracle brought about just for them, know it already, it is easy to see these things happening.

"The Ugly American" compares very favorably to both the All-University books of last semester. It has the pace and "story interest" of "The Razor's Edge," and the appeal to Americanism of the "American Presidency." It should prove to be of great interest to everyone connected with the University of South Florida for the simple reason that this is an American university.

Just Checking

The sidewalks of the USF campus suffered slight damage this week when the State Road Department took core samplings to test the quality of the work done here.

The action follows the recent "payola" scandals involving recent gifts from contractors working on state construction projects. The results of the borings were not available.

BRIDGE LESSONS BEGIN TODAY

USF Fashion Show Planned for March

Bridge classes will begin today, taught by Miss Phyllis Marshall. They will be held at the free hour, 1 p.m., in the west lounge of the University Center. There is no charge for the lessons. Anyone interested may sign up at the University Center's information desk.

A fashion show is being planned for Friday, March 10, at 8 p.m. in the Administration Building patio by the Hospitality and Cultural Committees of the University Center in collaboration with Maas Brothers Department Store. The show will consist of fashions for both the men and women students.

Registration groups seven and 13 sponsor a coffee hour for all university students each Wednesday at 2. This is an informal hour where students may relax and listen to a speaker from the various colleges of the university. Dr. Danilo Orescanin and Dr. Edgar M. Stanton are the faculty advisors of groups seven and 13 respectively.

Hugoboom Is Guest Conductor

R. Wayne Hugoboom, associate professor of music and director of choral organizations at the University of South Florida, was guest conductor of the Virginia All-State-West Choral Festival, Feb. 17-19, in Roanoke, Va. Approximately 300 high school students participated in the festival.

Bids To Be Sought

Bids on a new men's dormitory will be sought by the University within the next few weeks. Completoin of the unit, due to house, 412 men, will be the summer of 1962. The dorm now under construction is due to be completed by the opening of the fall semester.

GOP Club One Of Most Active On Campus

One of the most active of all clubs here on the USF campus is the Young Republicans. It is made up of a group of students with a definite interest in politics, and a specific interest in Republican party policy in American politics and government.

During the last semester the club worked hard to secure an acceptance by the State Federation of Young Republicans, and to get a constitution written. Both of these goals are nearing realization. The club has now been accepted by both the state and national Young Republicans Federations, and writing of a constitution is almost complete. The Spring Semester will be spent in planning for the annual state convention.

The convention is in Jacksonville May 5, 6 and 7. The USF Young Republican Club will be eligible to send 6 delegates. The purpose of the convention is to elect state officers and serve the Republican Federation during the coming year. USF members are also eligible to run for these offices.

Leading speaker at the convention will be Walter Judd, keynoter at the Republican 1960 National Convention. Also present will be Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, and Sen. Everett Dirksen, U.S. Senate Minority leader. There is a possibility that former Vice-President Nixon may also attend.

Club plans for the coming semester include discussions, speakers, and luncheons. The first speaker will be Bill Young, president of the Florida Federation of Young Republicans, and the state senator from Pinellas County. Young will speak at the next meeting of the club. Interested parties are invited to attend.

Does This Mean Cuban Sandwiches?

A Food Service Committee has been formed in an effort to improve cafeteria service on campus. The committee is composed of the university and cafeteria staffs and three members of the Interim Steering Committee.

The purpose of this committee will be to review and discuss problems confronting the cafeteria.

Student representatives Sheila Gordon, Anthony Anello and Jim Klapps accepted the responsibility for presenting the complaints of the student body.

Any students having a complaint may present it to one of the representatives or they may attend one of the weekly meetings. Now, who wants a Cuban sandwich on the menu?

Poynters Speaking Tonight

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Poynter, publishers and owners of the St. Petersburg Times, will speak on "Women in Politics" at the regular meeting of the University of South Florida Women's Club tonight in the University Center.

The meeting is being held at night for the benefit of those members who work. Husbands are invited.

In addition to owning and editing The Times the Poynters also write a column under their joint signature which appears every Sunday.

NELSON POYNTER
Speaking to Women's Club

In 1944 the Poynters founded Congressional Quarterly in Washington to provide background and reference material for political and editorial writers. The large national news magazines, networks, scores of trade publications and over 400 American newspapers buy the Congressional Quarterly which is also used by many libraries and political science classes.

Prior to the meeting, Dr. and Mrs. Allen will entertain at a dinner in the President's Dining Room in honor of the Poynters. Guests will be club board members and their husbands.

Variety Of Events Scheduled

A variety of events are scheduled on the USF campus this week. Their topics range in interest from a Japanese film on the life of the samurai to two timely discussions on present pressing problems: the Cuban and gold standard situations.

Heading the list is the appearance of the brilliant and charming pianist, Jeaneane Dowis, in the theater auditorium Thursday. Performances are scheduled at 11 a.m. and 8:30 p.m.

Miss Dowis received her early musical training in her native state of Texas with Adele Marcus. Later she attended the Julliard School of Music in New York City where she studied with Mme. Rosins Lhevinne. While at Julliard, Miss Dowis was awarded the $1,000 Chopin Prize by the Kosciusske Foundation; the Josef Lhevinne Memorial Scholarship, and the Olga Samaroff Foundation Grant.

Dr. Gordon Brunhild is speaking today on "Gold and Diplomacy." This lecture is in the science auditorium, room 100. and is open to all. The role of gold in international finance will be discussed.

Tomorrow Dr. Robert W. Heywood and Dr. Robert E. Goldstein will conduct a discussion on "The United States and Cuba: Past and Present" in the science auditorium, Room 100.

Also tomorrow "The Magnificent Seven," a Japanese film on samurai life, will be shown in S-100 at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m.

The film is set in troubled 15th century Japan and tells the story of the selecting and testing of seven samurai. The film reminds the audience that the term "samurai" originally meant "those who serve."

"Island Treasurer," a nature film-lecture, will be presented Wednesday at 2 p.m. in S-100. This is the second in a series of three Audubon Screen Tours, and will be given by Walter J. Breckenridge, director of the Minnesota Museum of Natural History.

AN EDITORIAL

Campus Dress Standards

The dress on campus at the University of South Florida has been exceptionally well and in keeping with campus styles of many universities throughout the nation. For this reason, it should be pointed out that old sayings such as "clothes make the man (or woman)" may be altered to mean the university or college as a whole.

During exam week it was noted by many students and faculty members that our previously high standards in dress were abandoned for a more casual attire. In some people's opinion, casual could be replaced by sloppy. Most of us want to be proud of our school and in the way we are looked upon by visitors and by other college students who may be on campus for various reasons. Our dress patterns are of prime importance in making the proverbial good first impression.

The appropriate clothing for any given time is something that reflects on the individual as well as his associates and classmates. The proper dress for academic work has been exceptional with our one-time disregard during exams. The proper dress for recreation and play is not acceptable for attending class, unless of course it is a physical education class and the prescribed dress has been set for such events.

No Rules Yet

At present, and as far into the future as we can readily foresee, there are and will be no rules determining what is accepted as appropriate dress on campus. This leaves the students the responsibility to set the policy that will undoubtedly be followed by 10 times our present enrollment in the very near future.

The most logical reason for our past excellent showing was the season of the year and the newness of our school. Having no set tradition to follow, and each of us eager to get off on the right foot socially and academically, have more or less outdone ourselves in personal appearance. This has been the pattern thus far, and should continue to be the standard.

It is the feeling of many, however, that certain problems shall arise as the weather becomes warmer and spring fever attacks as it has done regularly on campuses across the nation. It is feared that the persons who now are setting the trend in appropriate dress will fall into the traditions set by other southern colleges to see who can become the most outlandishly dressed campus personality. This, we hope can be curbed prior to its formal appearance on campus. Surely we can adopt a more sophisticated outlook than many of our sister colleges. The standard of dress has already been established on USF's campus; the continuation of this standard is of utmost importance to all of us and our future underclassmen—J. D.

USF Answer—'That's Where The Boys Are'

The University of South Florida's answer to the traditional Spring Vacation Weekend is a University Center sponsored trip to Nassau.

Jan Harper, co-chairman of the Recreational Committee, which is making the plans, said the USF group will be limited to 30. Total cost will be $60 including meals, room and chartered bus from Tampa to Miami where the tour will board the ship, the S.S. Bahama Star, for Nassau. Other student groups from University of Florida, Stetson, North Carolina and other schools are planning to make the trip.

The ship will have an orchestra, floor show and proper going away music. On the island side students can look forward to the land of the limbo, native bands, the straw market and voodoo nightclub tours.

Dates for the tour are March 31-April 3. Miss Harper adds that faculty and staff with the $60 may make the jaunt with the students.

MORE MEN NEEDED

Student Referees Whistle for Help

The University of South Florida Officials Association, greatly undermanned, has given an open invitation to all interested male students to attend the next meeting 10 a.m. tomorrow in Rm. 1051 of the Administration Building, to look into possibilities of joining the group.

The association members, ten strong, are learning the fundamentals of officiating and gaining experience by refereeing intramural league games on campus. Currently in session is the basketball league, which operates every Tuesday at 4:15 p.m., King High School. The members are paid for officiating these games, while receiving valuable experience.

These students may become qualified to referee athletic events on the junior and senior high school level by their junior year.

With spring sports near, a greater number of officials will be needed than ever before. Interested persons may contact Richard D. Hunter, advisor to the group, in Rm. 1073 of the Administration Building.

Role of Varsity Athletics Debated

By JOHN GULLETT

The part intercollegiate athletics will play in the future of USF is in the hands, for the moment at least, of the Planning and Policies Committee.

The committee, which is headed by Dr. Sidney J. French, dean of the College of Basic Studies, proposes to take up this much debated subject at the committee's next weekly meeting Tuesday, Feb. 21. The big question members are concerned with is "when will athletics on the intercollegiate or varsity level be introduced to our university?" Dean French, in a recent interview, gave his prediction of the decision of committee. "The ruling will probably be in favor of separation from this form of athletics until at least after the first class has graduated."

This may seem like a direct slap in the face of a potential athletic department at first glance. But sound reasoning may be found behind such action upon closer inspection. Of course, participation in athletic programs contributes greatly to health and happiness, physical skill and emotional maturity, social competence and moral values. But does the level of such a program matter markedly? The initial goal of the University, as Dean French pointed out, is the development of a strong intramural program. This, many feel, will serve the purpose adequately.

At least intramural athletics is not marked by the high-pressure competition, promotion, and commmercialism found in many varsity programs across the country.

Of course alumni pressures in years to come will probably force USF into a full-fledged intercollegiate program, even football.

But intramural athletics can cover the entire campus, every student, in their goal of fostering the growth and well-being of the individual student. Maybe each student should ask himself, which type would benefit me most, a strong intramural program, or fine varsity teams?"

But why not both?

Spring Sports Begin

Softball will soon take over the spotlight in men's intramurals. Richard D. Hunter, intramural coordinator, set a tentative starting date for league play in the popular sun sport—the second week in March.

Construction began last week on the campus tennis courts. Completion date is set for the middle of March, at which time a tourney of singles and doubles play will begin. Plans call for a number of such tournaments in the following weeks.

Golf tourneys are also on tap for this spring. No schedule of number or size of any spring sports event has been posted. They all depend on the amount of student interest.

P. E. Classes Hampered

The delayed completion date of the new shower facilities for P. E. classes has had varying effects. Golf, archery, and dance courses were not affected. Others were not so lucky.

Tennis meets once a week in a classroom discussion, while weight training follows the same procedure twice a week. Special conditioning classes are not scheduled to begin until facilities are completed on March 1st.

Lights on Campus Given New Design

A decision has been made to rearrange the lights on campus in a more geometric design instead of leaving them in their original positions.

This decision has caused the digging up of some grass. However, the physical plant division announced that this is a normal "sign of progress."

Girls Plan Program Of Sports

The committee concerned with girls' intramurals, the W.S.C.B., held its initial meeting Tuesday, Feb. 14. The W.S.C.B., Women's Sports Coordinating Board, consists of seven students including: Toyette Ditzler, Ellen West, Shari Ann Sherman, Pat Johnson, Kathy Shown, Sandi Marti, and Tish Gable.

The W.S.C.B. has recommended that a Women's Sports Association be under the U.S.C.B. The preliminary details of the association qualifications and membership, point system and purpose will be drafted at a later date.

It has been decided to have the first field day on a Saturday in the later part of March. Contests in archery, badminton, track and field events, volleyball, basketball, and free throw shooting.

The W.S.C.B. has also announced that it would like to attempt a women's softball league and conclude it with a tournament around the end of April.

The Swimming Fest has been postponed until sometime in May due to the "unusually" cold weather during February and March.

Also, "Ladder Tournaments" in tennis and archery are scheduled to take place as soon as the tennis courts are completed and safety measures are established for archery.

Egerton Still Man In Hospital Rm. 302

John W. Egerton, editor of the USF News Bureau, who was injured in an auto accident in early October, remains in Room 302 at the Tampa General Hospital. Mr. Egerton underwent surgery last week which it is hoped will speed his recovery.

Mr. Egerton welcomes visitors from the USF campus including students, staff and faculty.

George H. Miller, director of Program, continues as acting editor of the News Bureau in Egerton's absence.

English Live or TV, Take Your Choice

All Functional English second semester lectures have been scheduled for Monday, according to Dr. Robert Zetler, chairman of English. Live lectures will be given at 9 a.m., 3 p.m., and 4 p.m. in Room S-100 of the Science Building. Meanwhile, the lectures will be carried at 12 noon on "live" television in both Room S-100 and S-111. H. C. Kiefer, assistant professor in English, is today's lecturer.

Another Problem Yet To Be Faced

When someone asked why the streets on the USF campus did not have names it caught a few officials scratching their heads. No one had thought about it.

But apparently when the thinking is done it will be handled by the Space Committee. Meanwhile, the only street getting into the vocabulary is the divided highway leading from the Administration Building referred to as the "Double Dragstrip."
