'WEEK OF JAZZ' KICK-OFF TOMORROW WITH FOLK SING

Eddie Condon, Featured Guest, Here Thursday

By MARLENE HENNIS

"A Week of Jazz" will be presented this week by the University Center in conjunction with the Events Committee. A folk sing and panel discussion on jazz will kick-off the big occasion Tuesday, a jazz and poetry session will be on Wednesday, and Thursday will conclude the week with Eddie Condon and his Jazz All Stars.

The folk sing will take place in the UC Ballroom Tuesday afternoon at 5. Dr. Sy Kahn will lead the sing. a panel discussion on jazz will be moderated by Dr. Kahn and panel members will be Dr. William Wilks, Dr. Tony Zaitz, Duane Lake and Mark Morris. Following the panel the USF Jazz Lab Band will play progressive jazz and the Faculty Dixieland Band, consisting of Dr. Garrett, Dr. Sperry, Dr. Wilks, Mr. Hugoboom, Mr. Carr, Mr. Lake, Dr. Zaitz, Dr. Keifer and Dr. Fuson will also play.

Condon

A jazz and poetry reading session will be held in the TA Wednesday at 1 p.m. Reading poetry will be Dr. Kahn and Jim Woodall, and the jazz background will be provided by Mark Morris, Ron Murffin, Dr. Zaitz, Pepper Martin, Dave Treet and Jack Scanal.

Eddie Condon and his Jazz All Stars will give two performances Thursday, at 2 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Members of the All Stars include: Bobby Hackett, trumpet; Mickey Sheen, drums; Peanuts Hucko, clarinet; Eugene Schroeder, piano. They were recently featured on television's "Telephone Hour."

"Le Jazz intellectuel" has been enormously influenced by famed guitarist and concert artist Eddie Condon for two reasons: His wizardry on his instrument and the fact that he is articulate about his art. As a world-known leader and composer Eddie Condon has been the foremost spokesman in behalf of American jazz for over three decades. He went out on the road with bands when he was 15, was in Chicago during the golden age and was in the thick of the swing era during the 30's. He has his own famous jazz club in New York and his 30 big-selling record albums are collector's items on five continents.

Recently he took his band on a tour of Great Britain and soon he will be headed for the Orient. Critic Gilbert Seldes calls Condon "a true catalyst of jazz, the moving force behind some of the greatest jazz records ever made."

A general admission ticket is required for admittance. Tickets are available in the University Center. Off-campus people may reserve tickets by calling WE 8-4131, ext. 266.

ADMINISTRATORS COMMENT

Trimester Alters Policy and Plans

By WING PREODOR

The tri semester scheduling of the school year, which will begin in September, 1962, will necessitate several changes in policies and plans for the University of South Florida. Most of the policy changes will be decided at the November meeting of the State Board of Control. Super-imposed over the summer session, running from May 6 until Aug. 17, will be two short sessions, similar to the present 8 week summer session. The first of these will primarily include courses designed for the full time college student, who does not wish to attend year-round. The second will be scheduled so that secondary school teachers and recent high school graduates may attend and, according to present plans, will be designed for their benefit.

Faculty Work Schedule

To be determined at the November board meeting is a policy on the number of semesters a faculty member will be working per school year. Dr. John S. Allen, USF president, has said that because the enrollment will probably be smaller during the summer, in spite of the extra short sessions, approximately half the faculty will be needed during that time. All of the faculty will be needed during the other two semesters. Allen said, "We do not propose to have any faculty member teach more than 5 semesters out of 6."

Under the new system many students will be able to accrue enough credits to graduate before the previously projected date for the first formal graduation, June 1964. Regarding this Allen said that it is presently planned to give these students certificates rather than diplomas and invite them back to attend the first commencement ceremony, which will be held as soon as a sufficient number of students are prepared to graduate.

Question of Accreditation

Robert Dennard, busines manager, said that a university cannot apply for accreditation until it is in its senior year. Just what the definition of "senior year" will be under the new system is still undecided. Now it is defined as the year the first senior class graduates.

In reference to the question of when the University of South Florida will officially apply for accreditation Allen brought out several points. He said that the final formal accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges, "for us is something we must go through, but it doesn't worry us." We have already been okayed by the National Merit Scholarship Foundation, and our credits are acceptable in most universities right now.

Other Administrators Comment

Dr. Howard Johnshoy, dean of student affairs, says he does not think the new system will make much difference as far as student activities are concerned. They will continue year-round, and their success depends upon the amount of student leadership available during each semester

Dr. Sidney J. French, dean of the College of Basic Studies, said that the new plan will not pose any problems to his college. Both beginning and advanced sections of each basic studies course will be offered each of the three semesters. He said, "There will be no major changes in our curriculum structure."

George H. Miller, director of Work-Study, says that with the new schedule a student in the co-op program will be able to qualify for graduation in 4 years rather than the previous 4½ or 5. This should make the co-op program even more acceptable to business and industry because it will condense the training period, and an employee will be qualified for full-time work sooner.

845 VOTE

Run-Off Ends Student Elections

By BILL BLALOCK

A large turnout of 845 students voted in the run-off election last Monday to complete the roster of officers for the Student Association. The number voting was termed as favorable due to the short period between elections. Officers elected for the coming year are: Jim Woodroffe, president; Frank Meiners, vice president; David Aycock, treasurer; Sandi Marti, recording secretary; and Paula Paster, corresponding secretary.

Five at Large

The five representatives at large are Roscoe Davidson, Jackie Diaz, Fred Frey, Don Gray, and Sandy Jones.

The first things on the agenda for the new student government will be the formation of Civic Units and the legislature, as well as the organization of the President's Advisory Committee.

Decisions To Be Made

The advent of the tri-semester system necessitates a decision on the number of elections to be held each academic year as well as how many semesters constitute one term in office.

To begin with the legislature will be made up of the recently elected representatives-at-large and the five university senators. When the 20 Civic Units are formed, 40 representatives will be added to the legislature.

Advisory Committee

The President's Advisory Committee will begin operation with representatives from the presently established interest councils. It will be the job of the advisory committee to organize the rest of the interest councils. Two representatives will be selected from each of the student interest (councils) for membership on the President's Advisory Committee.

When the new officers will take over has not been officially released. The Interim Steering Committee will decide when an inauguration of officers will be held, and when the committee itself will be dissolved.

Honor System At USF—Yes, No?

The subject of honor systems has been knocking around campus for so long that two members of USF Debate Club have decided to bring the subject into the open. Louise Stewart and Bernard Zaidman will stage a debate on the subject in one of the Chem building's two lecture halls. The tentative date has been set as Wednesday, Nov. 8, 1 p.m.

SUGGESTS IMPROVEMENTS

Mayhew Evaluates Campus Edition

By PATSY GATLING

"There are several main improvements I would like to see in the USF edition of The T a m p2a Times," said Dr. Lewis B. Mayhew, director of evaluation services and institutional research.

"I believe students should give more of their attention to international relations. Consequently, the newspaper should give more emphasis to this field. Also, good editorials are needed to cover the fundamental educational problems facing the university and its population." Dr. Mayhew has definite ideas on who should write the editorials. He is convinced that students should do the writing and use the faculty only as a resource.

Areas of Coverage Suggested

His ideas for improving the USF edition include a coverage of, the cultural events, the lectures, a review of the "all university books," and a synopsis of the plays presented.

He also said that because the library is continually receiving new books, the students should be informed of the books and their titles.

Too Much Emphasis on Clubs

"Even though a newspaper should print and reflect the current happenings of the social atmosphere, I think too much emphasis is placed upon clubs and extra curricular activities," he related.

Dr. Mayhew would rather see the USF edition set up on more of a New York Times basis. Te is an advocate of this newspaper and would like to feel at home reading USF's campus editon with even a few characteristics of the New York Times.

AAUP Plans For Year; Elects Veep

The USF chapter of the American Association of University Professors met Friday, Oct. 20, in the University Center to discuss plans for this year.

Sponsorship of a monthly dinner and discussion—to which all members of the faculty and administration will be invited—was planned by the group.

Dr. Robert Heywood was elected vice president, replacing Dr. Simon Messing, who has taken a leave of absence.

UC218 To Be Smoke-Filled Room for SG

Executive offices of the Student Association are soon to be set up in UC218, said Jim Woodroffe, president of the student government. Present plans call for staffing the office from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. A telephone line will be installed.

Woodroffe said the establishment of the centralized office would facilitate communication between students and the government officers.

Also with the thought of improving communication, Woodroffe said a mimeographed newsletter would be begun sometime soon

Dr. Thomas Rich said that the number of student visitors has increased daily with the spread of interest.

BUTCHER, BAKER, CANDLESTICK MAKER?

Planning a career takes a lot of study as students Vivian Ferraro and Sam Napoli discovered when they browsed through the Development Center display of career materials in Room 1054 of the Administration Building. The exhibit will be open from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. daily through Friday of this week.

HI IN THE SKY

Chic Penthouse Is Staff Lounge

By RONDA ZIDRICH

Up, up, way up to the fifth floor of the Library go the Library staff and faculty to convene in their little haven. It is a place where they can completely relax and have a cup of coffee or tea with a donut if they wish.

This room is furnished with cushioned chairs, card tables, and a very large oblong table surrounded by chairs, used for conferences. Here, the staff and faculty can read any of the current issues of magazines, which are put there for their enjoyment, watch television, play scrabble and chess, or just have a coffee break. Lush green carpeting and light green drapes help to give the room a restful atmosphere, and the view of the campus from its windows and balcony is absolutely breathtaking.

Refreshment Counter

Being off bounds for students, the lounge is a place where the staff and faculty can completely be away from the constant chatter and antics of the students.

The donuts and cups are put on the refreshment counter, and everyone serves himself. However, the maid in charge, Mrs. Ethel L. Scrivens, pours the coffee and serves the "zippy" cokes. These cokes contain more carbonation than other cokes, and really lift the spirits.

Honor System

Mrs. Scrivens' other duties are to keep the tables clear, ash trays clean, napkin dispensers filled, and the kitchen clean. She serves between 100 to 120 cups of coffee, 40 cups or glasses of tea, and approximately 70 donuts a day.

Payment for these refreshments is based on an honor system. As of yet, no IOU slips have been found in the small white money box on the counter. It is gathered from this fact, that our staff and faculty are quite trustworthy; and also quite habit forming, as more and more, the staff and faculty are finding themselves up, up, way up on the fifth floor of the Library.

SHE KEEPS 'EM HAPPY—BY POURING

High in the sky in the staff lounge atop the USF Library, Mrs. Ethel L. Scrivens keeps members happy during hurried coffee and coke breaks by quick and courteous "pouring." To staff members who are World War II veterans, this is their present-day version of "Top O' Th' Mark."

Blindness No Hinderance

By RONDA ZIDRICH

"Realize your disabilities and keep them in the back of your mind. Realize your assets and capitalize on them."

This is the main philosophy professed by Sherry McCormack, an exceptional student at USF. Born with congenital damage of the retina in both eyes, Sherry has been without sight since the age of twelve.

Sherry's sight defection was realized when she was nine months old, but nothing could be done to restore her normal eyesight. Surgery or the use of glasses would be to no avail, and at the age of three, Sherry had her eyes removed, examined, and returned. This operation was futile, and no one could tell just when her eyesight would completely leave.

At the age of eight, she was taken to the hospital because of a blood infection from her tonsils and adenoids. It was during this time that Sherry lost all sight in her left eye, and vision decreased in her right eye. The reason for this is unknown and will remain a puzzle to her doctors for many years. Although there was no more eye damage occurring, her eyesight was gradually becoming worse.

When Sight Failed

As Sherry's eyesight began to dwindle, she became more helpless. However, she kept attending public school and participated in sports and school clubs. She then enrolled in a school for the blind, but refused to learn Braille because of what it stood for. Gradually she began realizing that her life wasn't over, and in two months learned to read and write Braille.

It was also at this school that Sherry learned to sew and cook. After four years, she was again enrolled at a public school, Hamilton High East, in Trenton, N.J. Writing for the school newspaper, debating, and singing in the school choir and operetta, and being a member of one of the sororities were some of the activities she participated in, while at high school. In June, Sherry graduated from high school with honors and then began looking forward to college.

Friend Suggested USF

A friend of Sherry's suggested USF to her, and loving the south and its warm climate, she decided that was the college for her. Now that she is here, she has fallen in love with the campus. Sherry plans to major in psychology and journalism, thus someday becoming a social worker and helping underprivileged children. She also intends to write a novel.

Dancing, swimming, collecting records, roller skating, horseback riding, and ice skating are a few of Sherry's social activities. She also wants to learn to bowl and perfect her water skiing. Blindness and deafness in one ear are not considered handicaps by Sherry.

"Cricket" Helps

Cricket, her canine companion, is always ready to help Sherry. All decisions are made by Cricket, and Sherry trusts her implicitly.

Because of her blindness, Sherry has become more aware of her sense of touch, odors, and sounds. When going to class she knows which halls to walk through by feeling the walls. The smell of food means the UC is near, and the sound of fountains can be heard by her when approaching the Administration building.

All Business

One important thing Sherry would like all students to know is that whenever she is holding Cricket's harness it is all business and she asks that no one talk to or pat Cricket. Talking to Sherry is fine, but not to Cricket. However, if she is holding Cricket by the leash, anyone is very welcome to speak to, and pet Cricket.

The schedule Sherry has, concerning classes, is functional English, biology, mass media masterpieces of American literature, and choir. She is also on the dance committee. Her room mate, Diana Karr, helps her by reading text books to her, and recording lectures. Bill Belvin sophomore, also helps her with her studying. All of Sherry's text books are obtained from the Commission for the Blind.

An Independent Citizen

Although many others would feel handicapped with out their sight, Sherry does not. She feels that most everyone goes through life looking at everything but seeing nothing. Sherry's only wish is that people accept her for what she is trying to be—an independent citizen.

SHERRY AND 'BRAVE NEW WORLD'
Considering her blindness as a small handicap, Sherry McCormack studies and takes notes in braille. All of her text-books are in braille, but many of the paper back books required in Functional English must be read to her by her roommate with the the possible exception of "Brave New World" on her desk.

Crew From Backstage Takes a Bow

By LOUISE STEWART

USF's premiere production of "Trumpet Calling" is moving along at a rapid rate. John Caldwell, associate professor of theater arts, has issued the ultimatum on scripts. On Saturday, Oct. 28, all scripts were called in.

Actors have been advised that if they don't know how people act when they're standing around in a crowd they should take a trip to town and observe people standing around. However, the three drunken sailors look more like they are releasing suppressed emotions, (perhaps a good study for the Human Behavior classes).

They Are There, Too

Last week a list of the cast members appeared. Now for equal billing to the people who are never seen but play a most important part in the production. They are the construction crews headed by Russell Whaley, assistant professor of fine arts, designer of sets and costumes.

Students on the properties crew are Bonnie Touchton, Mary Ann Perryn, Karen Engstrom, Judy Spicola, and Alice Antilla.

More Back Stage

The construction, lighting and sound crew members: Sam Dickinson, Roy Kicklighter, David Ludwig, Jim Lupfer, Jim Gladstone, Barbara Buerke, David Clayton, Dave Taylor, John Heist, and Janet Palmer. Mrs. Elaine Derby from the Temple Terrace Little Theater technical division is doing construction work with this group.

The ulcer producing job of stage manager falls on Terry Tessem. The costume crew headed by Mrs. Maryon Moise includes Ann Foster, Tobie Cavisi, and Barbara Ellison. Orchids also to the many, many others.

USF Music Teacher Festival Conductor

A University of South Florida faculty member served as guest conductor at the Indiana All-State Choral Festival in Indianapolis Oct. 26.

Dr. R. Wayne Hugoboom, associate professor of music at USF, led the group of 500 selected high school students in a choral program presented as a highlight of the Indiana Music Educators Association sponsored festival. Hugoboom participated in an association workshop comprised of approximately 100 music educators from all over the state.

Students Perform in Concert

The Lyre & Aulos Music Club and the Division of Fine Arts presented Dr. Armin Watkins, violinist, and three of his advanced piano students in a violin-piano sonata concert of national interest Oct. 25. Of special significance was the fact that the violin sonata "Poeme Mystique" by Ernest Bloch was presented for the first time in the South. Another probable first presentation was the First Violin Sonata in D minor, by Camille Saint-Saens. The third number presented was the Mozart Violin Sonata in E minor, K.304, which is not often heard.

As a rule, the piano often overpowered the violin through the entire performance and as a consequence the violin often lost some of its effectiveness.

The sonatas were given very careful attention, especially the Bloch sonata which demands the utmost care and coaxing in order for the deep emotional expressions to be transmitted to the audience. Especially noteworthy were the opening phrases by the violinist.

In the Saint-Saens sonata Miss Vanderipe gave an excellent performance with her very impressive virtuosity at the piano. As a whole, the piano students gave a fine performance and came close to professional level. The three piano students performing were Miss Kay Blake, Miss Yvonne Bentley, and Miss Averill Vanderipe.

PROJECTS—PARTIES

Varied Activities Among Social Clubs

By MARLENE HENNIS

Social Clubs on campus have been engaging in many varied activities. The agenda thus far reads:

ARETE: The pledges of Arete have elected officers who will preside over the new pledges, they are as follows: Skip Komlodi, president; Wayne Falby, vice president; Al Nichols, secretary-treasurer.

The pledges treated the brothers of Arete to a listening party this past Saturday. Everyone gathered to hear the Florida Homecoming football game.

DELPHI: A fall formal has been planned for Nov. 24 by the sisters of Delphi. Music will be provided by Ed Krochman's Showmen and only the sisters, pledges, advisers and guests will attend the dance.

New sweaters have been ordered by the club and will be seen on campus with the coming of winter.

As a service project for the coming year, members of the club will work with the Childrens Home of Tampa and the Womens Auxiliary Volunteers at the Tampa General Hospital.

ENOTAS: Enotas have announced plans to select a club sweetheart. The choosing of a sweetheart will be done within the organization and the girl selected will be published next week.

ETHELONTES: Plans are under way for community and university projects. An informal slumber party will be held at Lula Wykoff's home in a few weeks.

New members are now being selected, and an informal iniation will be taking place soon.

Miss Patsy Robles, former vice president of Ethelontes, has pledged Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority at the University of Florida.

FIDES: A dance for sisters, pledges, advisors and dates will be held Nov. 10 and following the dance the sisters and pledges will stay the night at the home of Linda McKnight.

Fides are sporting their new navy blazers this semester. The blazers were made by the girls themselves and are attired with the club's crest on the Blazer and white pleated skirts are worn with them.

Miss Paula Paster, social chairman of Fides, was recently elected corresponding secretary of the Student Association.

A coffee was given Oct. 14 for the new pledges. It was held in the UC that afternoon.

SIGES: The Siges are sponsoring an 8-year-old orphan from the Children's Home named Ruth McKinney. Ruth heartily enjoyed her trip to town where the Siges bought her lunch at Morrison's Cafeteria and a cuddly baby doll. She was also taken to Lowry Park's Fairyland by several of the clubs sisters.

Any social organization wishing to have news of their happenings printed are asked to contact Marlene Hennis in the Campus Publications Office no later than Wednesday 3 p.m.
