EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Law Offices of Gregory T. Varian is a general practice law firm with a concentration in real estate, small business, life and estate planning, and administration. Gregory Varian, the only attorney within the firm, is well known throughout the city of New Rochelle due to his involvement in the community. Through his experience and commitment to the citizens of the greater Metropolitan area, Varian has successfully operated his law firm since 1996.

Varian has previously focused on gaining clients from networking and word-of-mouth predominately for real estate closings. However, during the economic recession many people held off and continue to delay purchasing or selling a house. Varian should strive to increase brand awareness of other services, mainly his concentration in land use, zoning, and variances. By targeting the media, Varian can target a new market and develop into the go-to expert on real estate law issues.

Other challenges the law firm faces are the increase in information provided on the Internet and a decline in income levels. With additional resources, these weaknesses can be transformed into strengths through the proposed action plans. The suggested action plans, when executed, will increase The Law Offices of Gregory T. Varian’s online presence as well as establish a stronger relationship with members throughout the community.

The total cost for the proposed action plans is $7,618. This is approximately 12 percent of last year’s net income. These performance expenditures are expected to increase Varian’s client referrals by 20 percent, the firm’s brand awareness by 25 percent, and the number of clientele by 2 percent per year.

PRODUCT STATEMENT

Known for his expertise in real estate law, Varian has run his own practice, the Law Office of Gregory T. Varian, since 1996. Prior to, Varian has been an associate and then partner of mid-sized law firms within Westchester County since 1981. His office is located at 270 North Avenue in downtown New Rochelle, New York. The law firm is a general practice firm with a concentration in real estate, small business, life and estate planning, and administration (Varian). These concentrations include municipal law, real estate development and closings, code compliance, land use, zoning, landlord-tenant, small business and franchising, estate planning, trusts, and probate (Cox - Varian).

Varian is very active in the New Rochelle community. He is currently a President of the New Rochelle Public Library Board of Trustees and he was once President of the New Rochelle Bar Association and President of the Halcyon Park Neighborhood Association. Varian’s civic commitments have a strong presence in the community consisting of arbitrator in the New Rochelle City Court, corporate council for the New Rochelle Chamber of Commerce, and guest lecturer for attorneys and architects discussing “Varian on Variances”. The New Rochelle Chamber of Commerce took notice of Varian’s vast achievements in 2007 and awarded him Professional Leader of the Year (Varian). His involvement in the community shows his desire to willingly help others and helps him network with local members of the community that may one day be in need of his services.
INDUSTRY TRENDS

The Law Firm Industry is estimated at approximately 417,500 firms with 38 percent of the industry concentrated in commercial law services, 18 percent in personal injury law services, 14 percent in intellectual property and trademark law services, 12 percent in property law services, and 18 percent in other services. This industry has been greatly affected by the changes in the economy, mainly for the worse. Many companies have cut costs by reducing spending on legal services. According to Kevin Culbert’s industry analysis, “businesses of all sizes are reining in spending on nonessential legal services and increasingly using smaller regional law firms.” Clients began missing payments and using legal services less. Culbert states, “By the third quarter of 2007, work slowed to a trickle as the effects of the credit crunch began taking their toll on real estate, structured finance and transactional law practices.” Many firms had to shut down, letting go thousands of attorneys.

Due to many experienced lawyers being unemployed, recent law school graduates are having an increasingly hard time finding jobs with top law firms. Everyone in the Law Firm industry is experiencing smaller salaries and increased competition. But, “some of those displaced by the layoffs are under performers being replaced by stronger associates, a trend that can cause revenue per lawyer to increase” (Culbert).

The downturn in the economy may leave a lasting impression on the structure of the Law Firm industry. The majority of firms bill clients on an hourly basis, but with the recession clients are seeking firms that bill based on performance. When being billed on an hourly basis, costs tend to accumulate to a higher total regardless of the outcome for the client (Culbert).
The Law Firm Industry is also experiencing a decline from families and individuals due to the increased volume in Internet use. Many people are seeking services from websites that provide legal advice and are less costly and more time efficient than actually meeting with an attorney. A large quantity of information is also provided free on the website “which to many devalues the information provided by lawyers” (Varian).

TECHNOLOGICAL TRENDS

Technological advancements are helping law firms stay competitive through the recession. Everyone is concerned with expenses and pressing lawyers to perform the same services for a lower cost. Many firms are taking this into account and creating new ways to provide their clients with accurate and easily accessible billing information. Foley & Lardner, LLP, a law firm, has developed a Web-based system allowing lawyers to enter their time and expenses into a budgeting system that their clients can access through a secure website. Nathan Koppel, a Wall Street Journal writer, states, “The software also marries cost data to budgets, so that lawyers can track when they have used up 75 percent of the budgeted cost for taking depositions, for example.” Attorneys can easily keep track of their client’s predetermined budgets, especially with the email alerts option offered.

Other firms are using technology to help clients become self-educated. Bryan Cave, LLP has “created a Web-based training service, called TradeZone, which it licenses to clients to help them self-navigate the dizzying array of laws that govern international trade agreements” (Koppel). This type of technology helps decrease the time spent with attorneys and therefore decreases costs billed to clients while increasing the value of the firm.

The use of the Internet has even allowed for some firms to completely eliminate their offices. The Virtual Law Partners is a law firm where all the lawyers work from home. Because office expenses do not exist, what is saved goes to the lawyers and their clients. Each partner of the firm sets his/her own billing rate but all associates pay an equal share of the malpractice insurance. All other aspects of the firm are the same as a traditional law firm minus the office space (Ward).
ECONOMIC TRENDS

Much concentration and concern has been on the United States economy. Almost everyone has seen the effects of the downturn including the government, large and small businesses, and individuals. However, many people feel as though the country is starting to improve. One of the best ways to measure the stability of the economy is through the gross domestic product (GDP). In the third quarter of 2010, the GDP had increased by 2.6 percent from the prior quarter and then increased another 2.8 percent by the end of the fourth quarter (Mataloni). There are many other aspects to consider before drawing a definite conclusion regarding the outcome of the economy. The most helpful factors include gross domestic product, income levels, employment trends, inflation, and the consumer confidence index.

Gross Domestic Product

According to the Bureau of Economic Analysis, the real GDP has increased at an annual rate of 2.8 percent in the fourth quarter of 2010. This increase “reflected positive contributions from personal consumption expenditures (PCE), exports, and nonresidential fixed investment” (Mataloni). Nonresidential structures investment increased by 4.5 percent compared to a decrease of 3.5 percent the prior quarter. Real residential fixed investment increased by 2.8 percent compared to a decrease of 27.3 percent the prior quarter. These increases show how the real estate investment market may be improving.
Income Levels

As reported by the U.S. Census Bureau in 2009, the real median household income for the United States was $49,777. This was a 0.7 decrease from the prior year. Both men and women who worked full-time, year round, saw an approximate 2 percent increase in real median earnings between 2008 and 2009 (Newsroom). The Bureau of Labor statistics reported that the average weekly earnings in February 2011 were $782.15. This was an increase from the $764.32 reported in February 2010: “Over the past 12 months, average hourly earnings have increased by 1.7 percent” (Employment Situation).

Employment Trends

The Conference Board Employment Trends Index (ETI) was reported to be 101.7 as of March 2011. This was the fifth consecutive month that there was an increase. In the past six months, “the economy has been adding, on average, about 110,000 jobs per month” (Courter - ETI Increases). There are eight different factors that are included in determining the ETI which are the percentage of respondents who say they find “jobs hard to get," the number of initial claims for unemployment insurance, the percentage of firms with positions not able to fill right now, the number of employees hired by the Temporary-Help Industry, the number of part-time workers for economic reasons, the number of job openings, the level of industrial production, and the level of real manufacturing and trade sales (Courter - ETI Increases).
Inflation

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that over the last 12 months, the all items Consumer Price Index (CPI) increased by 2.1 percent. This 12 month upward trend can be seen throughout all major indexes. In February the shelter index rose 0.1 percent “with rent and owners’ equivalent rent both also rising 0.1 percent” (Consumer). Over the past 12 months, the shelter index has increased by a total of 0.8 percent with the rent index increasing by a total of 1.1 percent (Consumer).

Consumer Confidence Index

The Conference Board Consumer Confidence Index was reported to be 70.4 as of February 2011. This was an improvement from 64.8 in January and a reported 52.9 in June of 2010. The Consumer Confidence Index was even lower at 52.3 in March of 2010 (Rooney). Lynn Franco, the Director, says “The Consumer Confidence Index is now at a three-year high, due to growing optimism about the short-term future” (Courter - Conference Board). Consumers are feeling positive about the economy but are still unsure about employment. Consumers’ short-term outlook was more optimistic than in January, with “those expecting business conditions to improve over the next six months increased to 24.4 percent from 24.0 percent, while those anticipating business conditions will worsen declined to 10.4 percent from 12.2 percent” (Courter - Conference Board).
POLITICAL, LEGAL, AND REGULATORY TRENDS

The Law Office of Gregory T. Varian is subject to the laws, rules, and regulations governing the practice of law by the state of New York and the New York State and Federal Judiciaries (Varian).

CULTURAL, SOCIETAL, & DEMOGRAPHIC TRENDS

Cultural Value Trends

America was built on the land of the free and the home of the brave. Today, many people take that saying to mean the land of the free to sue and the home of the brave in court. People constantly use the threat of legal action in order to get what they want, because they have seen this tactic work for others, creating an increasingly litigious society. Television plays a large role by influencing viewers to believe that lawsuits are part of everyday life. There are many commercials from law firms and lawyer referral services encouraging people to call them if they have been in a car accident, taken certain prescription drugs, or even fallen down because they may be entitled to a cash settlement. There are numerous shows on television such as Judge Judy, Judge Joe Brown, and the People’s Court, all depicting lawsuits and court cases as a form of entertainment. People enjoy watching “reality shows” in order to make themselves feel better. Judge Judy states, “People do stupid things, they get themselves in messes and I have to use my knowledge and intuition to find the solution. But if this [were] a perfect world with perfect people, I would have no show. So, I am very grateful for this imperfect world” (Berman). The law firm industry has embedded itself into American culture by using this media outlet.
Lifestyle Trends

With the increase in technology over the last decade, people commonly use the Internet to solve all their problems. There are even websites, such as WebMD.com, that allow people to try and diagnose medical issues without going to the doctor. As opposed to younger generations, “older generations use the internet less for socializing and entertainment and more as a tool for information searches, emailing, and buying products. In particular, older internet users are significantly more likely than younger generations to look online for health information” (Jones). It is important for the law firm industry to keep this trend in mind when creating their advertising campaigns, as well as introducing technology into the workplace.

Another lifestyle trend that America is experiencing today is the decline in real estate purchases and the increase in rental properties. For the third straight month in January, U.S. home prices fell, “adding to evidence that the housing market is weakening even though the economy is improving” (Zibel). Home prices are falling because houses are continuously hitting the market after foreclosures, causing buyers to postpone purchases because they continue to wait for a better deal to hit the market (Zibel). Robert Andrews’ states in his industry analysis, that “an increase in homeownership subsequently decreases the demand for rental property. This driver is expected to fall over the next year, making it a potential opportunity for industry growth” (Andrews).
Demographics Trends

The city of New Rochelle had 76.5 percent of its population 18 years and over, with 15.2 percent 65 years and over, on average between 2005 and 2009. These percentages were very similar to those reported in 2000. The 2005 to 2009 average recorded a median age for New Rochelle of 38.2 years, which was a slight increase from 2000, when the median age was recorded at 37 years. The 2005 to 2009 average for families below the poverty line was reported as 6.5 percent compared to 9.9 percent in the United States. This is a decrease from 2000, when 7.9 percent of families were below the poverty line in New Rochelle. In 2000, 80 percent of the population in New Rochelle had a high school diploma with an increased average for 2005 to 2009 reported as 83 percent (United States).
CUSTOMER ANALYSIS

Who?

The Law Office of Gregory T. Varian is a general practice law firm assisting clients throughout the greater metropolitan area of New York. Because Varian is well known for his knowledge of land use, zoning, and variances, many clients seek his real estate services. In any given year, the services Varian provides for buying or selling a home account for approximately 20 to 40 percent of gross revenues, with 30 to 50 percent of gross revenues generating from specialized real estate (zoning, planning, code, development, and land/tenant), 10 to 30 percent generating from small business clients (franchises and business acquisitions), and 10 to 20 percent of gross revenues generating from the services for estates, trusts, and probate (Varian).

Demographics and Psychographics: The company’s clients range from all different income levels, educational backgrounds, ethnicities, and ages. Current and potential clients of all ages and lifestyles have a need for Varian’s services from the “successful immigrants buying a home to the masters of the universe on Wall Street” (Varian). The company’s clients range from those purchasing a co-op or $100,000 home to those purchasing multi million-dollar mansions on the water. The majority of the clients purchasing homes are either married or engaged. The clients’ lifestyles are “as varied as there are people” (Varian).
How Many?

The Law Office of Gregory T. Varian has only one office with one lawyer so there are a limited number of clients that can be handled at any given time. Varian services approximately twenty clients on average with an estimated 2,000 clients over the history of the law firm. There are roughly fifty other attorneys in the area that compete with the Law Office of Gregory T. Varian on transactional real estate, as well as estate planning (Varian).

What?

The Law Office of Gregory T. Varian is a general practice law firm with a focus in real estate closings, specialized real estate services, small business client services, and life and estate planning.

Where?

The Law Office of Gregory T. Varian was established in the Chase building located in downtown New Rochelle at 270 North Avenue, where Varian primarily services his clientele. Office space was shared with another local law firm, Kettner and Kettner. After the firm’s growth, offices were moved down the hall of the same building in order to acquire larger office space. Varian currently uses Facebook and LinkedIn for social networking and to broaden his reach to potential clients (Varian).
When?

Consumer confidence in the housing industry directly impacts the Law Office of Gregory T. Varian’s amount of business; and “therefore, the strength of the property market influences demand for law firms that have expertise in property legislation” (Culbert). However, it is projected that “over the long term, demand for wills and estate activity will likely increase as more baby boomers reach retirement age” (Culbert).

Why and How?

The Law Office of Gregory T. Varian acquires many of its clients because of Varian’s reputation. He is well known as an “enthusiastic advocate for his clients, profession, neighborhood and City” (Professional of the Year). Varian is also known in the area as a “competent provider of legal advice regardless of the specialty” (Varian). Clients can pay for the services provided either by cash or check, but credit is not accepted as a form of payment. The goal is for clients to always “pay in full at the time of close, or have enough money up front” (Varian).

Why Non-Customers?

Varian is well known throughout the community, but potential clients may not choose him as their attorney because they are not aware of his reputation and expertise. Culbert states “competition between industry participants occurs on the basis of service quality and price.” Another reason clients may choose a different attorney is because they are not willing to pay what Varian charges. For small local firms, like the Law Office of Gregory T. Varian, “that perform general legal services, price is a key basis of competition since households account for a large share of total revenue” (Culbert). Other factors that have an effect on the non-customer population are the variation in specialty, location, and availability.
FINANCIAL PERFORMANCE

The Law Office of Gregory T. Varian has had fluctuations in revenues for the past couple of years. Gross profit for 2007 was reported as $122,160 but decreased to $110,882 in 2008 and then slightly increased to $111,680 in 2009. Net income has experienced similar fluctuations starting at $53,169 in 2007, decreasing to $43,004 in 2008, and increasing to $45,120 in 2009. Expenses fluctuated between 55 and 61 percent of gross profits over this three-year period. In 2010, gross profit increased and was the highest over the past four years at $126,186. Expenses decreased to 51 percent of gross profits, causing an increase in net income to $61,516. The Law Office of Gregory T. Varian is a private firm, and therefore, does not report Earnings per Share (Varian).
MARKETING STRATEGIES

Image

Started in 1996 in New Rochelle, New York, the Law Office of Gregory T. Varian was formed to help friends and neighbors throughout the New Rochelle community. Today, Varian is still highly involved in the neighborhood and is known for his law services, as well as his volunteer work. All of the firm’s actions are taken in order to keep the community growing in a direction that is both beneficial for businesses and the residences.

Target Markets

The Law Office of Gregory T. Varian focuses on individuals and families in the greater Metropolitan area that need assistance with real estate issues, especially land use, zoning, and variances, as well as estate planning, wills and trusts, landlord-tenant, franchising, trusts, and probate. Through public services, Varian has been able to attract a wide variety of clientele. Clients are typically in need of an attorney with experience and a reputation for customer satisfaction.
MARKETING PROGRAMS

Product and Price

Any service provided by the Law Office of Gregory T. Varian begins with a consultation with the client at approximately $300 per hour but is always based on a competitive rate. All services range in price depending on the client’s needs. A real estate closing can range from $1,200 to $2,800 based on whether the closing is on a co-op or house, new development or foreclosure sale. Specialized real estate services can range from $2,250 to $15,000 depending on how many public hearings are required, number of variances sought, and the complexity of the matter. For small business client services, prices can range from $900 to $5,000, whether the client is determining the most effective business entity or selling or buying a merger. Estate planning can range from $500 to $25,000, again, depending on the details of the services provided. These rates generally place the Law Office of Gregory T. Varian in the upper-middle price range in the market for the Metropolitan area (Varian).

Caseload

During the real estate boom, the Law Office of Gregory T. Varian handled approximately 50 new cases per year. However, this number declined after the boom and Varian only set up 24 new files for the entire year of 2010. The firm is beginning to come back from the recession and, in 2011, the firm has already set up close to half that amount in the first 3 months (Cassara).
Sales Promotions & Effectiveness

The Law Office of Gregory T. Varian does not currently, and has not in the past, offered any form of sales promotions to its clientele.

Advertising & Public Services

Varian does not participate in any direct advertising. However, he is known throughout the New Rochelle area through his numerous public services. Varian has been involved in many community legal issues, such as the battle with Iona College for student housing locations and the zoning of the Dunkin Donuts on North Avenue. Varian attended City Council meetings on behalf of the community residents to argue against having Iona College student housing. At the City Council meeting held on December 10th, Varian stated that “Iona’s dorm proposal contradicts everything we’ve learned over 25 years of studies, comprehensive plans and common sense experience as to what it will take to make this dysfunctional section of North Avenue….. functional… And that is low rise and mixed-use along North Avenue, not single use high rise abutting single family residential neighborhoods” (Cox - Remarks). He addressed issues of zoning, claiming that what Iona College is doing is illegal.

Varian supported local residents when discussing the Dunkin Donuts situation at a City Council meeting. He argued that the “Zoning Ordinance prohibition against extended hours… all night hours… was enacted in 2004 to protect abutting residential neighborhoods” (Varian). Varian claimed that waiving the zoning prohibition for Dunkin Donuts would cause other businesses, such as gas stations, to then seek variances in order to have the same hours. This would then lead to more and more businesses “effectively overturning city-wide policy enacted by our elected officials” (Varian).

1. People are doing more research online before making purchases, which opens businesses to more advertising and marketing opportunities.
2. Many law firms are using technological advancements to lower the cost to the client, such as a Web-based system allowing lawyers to enter their time and expenses into a budgeting system that their clients can access through a secure website. “The software also marries cost data to budgets, so that lawyers can track when they have used up 75 percent of the budgeted cost for taking depositions” (Koppel).
3. Nonresidential structures investment increased by 4.5 percent compared to a decrease of 3.5 percent the prior quarter. Real residential fixed investment increased by 2.8 percent compared to a decrease of 27.3 percent the prior quarter. These increases show how the real estate investment market may be improving.

1. With a decline in income levels by 0.7 percent from the prior year, clients have less money to spend on non-essential items such as buying a new home or completing home improvements both of which may require an attorney’s services (Newsroom).
2. Home prices are falling because houses are continuously hitting the market after foreclosures. This is causing buyers to postpone purchases because they continue to wait for a better deal to hit the market (Zibel).
3. Many people are seeking services from websites that provide legal advice and are less costly and more time efficient than actually meeting with an attorney. A large quantity of information is also provided free on the website “which to many devalues the information provided by lawyers” (Varian).
ISSUES ANALYSIS

The Law Office of Gregory T. Varian has an issue with marketing. Varian needs to begin a marketing campaign in order to expand the firm. Within the marketing campaign, there needs to be a promotion mix including advertising, sales promotion, and direct selling; none of which currently exist. Once a marketing campaign has been initiated, the next issue Varian will face is how to handle the increase in clients and caseload. He will need to evaluate his staffing situation and see if it is financially feasible to hire a full-time assistant, a partner, or any other employees in order to successfully manage the amplified workload. With more help, Varian can continue to expand the firm, as well as his marketing efforts and continue through the growth cycle.
