

November 2013

Author Biographies

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarcommons.usf.edu/gsp>

Recommended Citation

(2013) "Author Biographies," Genocide Studies and Prevention: An International Journal: Vol. 8: Iss. 1: Article 12.

Available at: <https://scholarcommons.usf.edu/gsp/vol8/iss1/12>

This Front Matter is brought to you for free and open access by the Open Access Journals at Scholar Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Genocide Studies and Prevention: An International Journal by an authorized editor of Scholar Commons. For more information, please contact scholarcommons@usf.edu.

Author Biographies

GSP 8.1

María Belén Riveiro is an undergraduate student in her final year of the course of studies of Sociology at the Faculty of Social Sciences (Facultad de Ciencias Sociales, Universidad de Buenos Aires) and of English Sworn Translation at the Faculty of Modern Languages (Facultad de Lenguas Modernas, Universidad del Museo Social Argentino). She participates in the research group directed by Dr Daniel Feierstein, and is the holder of a research scholarship granted by the Consejo Interuniversitario Argentino (CIN). She is a member of the International Association of Genocide Scholars.

Douglas Irvin-Erickson is a Ph.D. candidate in Global Affairs at Rutgers University, Newark, and he holds an MA in English Literature from Rutgers. A graduate student associate of the Center for the Study of Genocide, Conflict Resolution, and Human Rights, Irvin-Erickson is completing a dissertation on the Life and Works of Raphael Lemkin: A History of the Idea of Genocide. He has done professional and academic work in the fields of international humanitarian law and peace building.

Antonio Miguez (1979) gained his PhD (2006) in Contemporary History from University of Santiago de Compostela (Galicia-Spain). He was visiting fellow in The Cañada Blanch Centre for Contemporary Spanish Studies (The London School of Economics and Political Science, London) and Centro de Estudios sobre Genocidio (Universidad Nacional de Tres de Febrero, Buenos Aires). His research interests centre upon the repression carried out by the Franco regime during and after the Civil War of 1936-1939, developing the idea that the application of a complex conceptualization as genocide, crimes against humanity or war crimes could help us to understand deeply the many facets of the phenomenon of violence studied. He participated in many research projects about the question of the mass state violence in Spain, and he is the principal investigator of two research projects about ordinary people, perpetrators and the Francoist violence within HISTAGRA Research Group. Among his recent publications are La construcción de la ciudadanía a través de los movimientos sociales (2008), "O que fixemos en Galicia", Essay toward the concept of genocidal practice (2009) and Xenocidio e represión franquista en Galicia (Genocide and Francoist Repression in Galicia) (2009), A Concise History of Galicia (2012). From 2012 on he is a Marie Curie Fellow at the Contemporary and American History Department of the University of Santiago de Compostela.

Lucrecia Molinari is a doctoral fellow of CONICET- Argentina and a researcher at Centro de Estudios sobre Genocidio (CEG) de la Universidad Nacional de Tres de Febrero (UNTREF – Argentina). She completed her BA in Sociology at Universidad de Buenos Aires (2005) and an MA in Latin-American Studies at Universidad Nacional de San Martín (2013). Among her most recent publications are "Movilización sindical y contrainsurgencia en El Salvador (1967-1968)", in De Gori y Rostica (Comp.) (en prensa); "Las elites salvadoreñas y la Doctrina de Seguridad Nacional en los 60" in Boletín de la Asociación para el Fomento de los Estudios Históricos en Centroamérica, Nº 49, San José de Costa Rica, 2011 and "Escuadrones de la muerte: Grupos paramilitares, violencia y muerte en Argentina ('73-'75) y El Salvador ('80)" in Diálogos - Revista Electrónica de Historia. Universidad de Costa Rica. Vol. 10 No. 1, 2009. She has also been editor of "Dossier El Salvador" Observatorio Latinoamericano from the Instituto de Estudios de América Latina y el Caribe. Facultad de Ciencias Sociales, UBA – november 2011.

Luciana Rosende has a degree in Journalism, obtained at the School Workshop Agency (TEA), and is developing her undergraduate thesis for her Degree in History at the Faculty of Philosophy and Literature at the University of Buenos Aires (FFyL, UBA). She participates in the research project "The concentration camps in Argentina as national reorganization devices. Step 1: Atlético-Banco-Olimpo, Campo de Mayo and Circuito Camps", led by Dr Daniel Feierstein at the Faculty of Social Sciences at the University of Buenos Aires (FCSoc, UBA). She attended seminars in Oral History and published, co-authored with Julia Rosenberg, "The Chilean road to socialism through the eyewitness account", in the Journal of Historical Studies Chilean Corporation. Along with Werner Pertot, she is co-author of the book Days without Lopez. The missing witness in a democracy (Buenos Aires: Planeta Editorial, 2013), an investigation into the case of a survivor of the network of the concentration camps called Circuito Camps, who was a complainant and gave testimony at the trial in which perpetrator Miguel Osvaldo Etchecolatz was sentenced to life imprisonment in 2006. During the trial, López was again abducted and disappeared; the crime remains unsolved.

Ernesto Verdeja is an Assistant Professor of Political Science and Peace Studies at the University of Notre Dame, United States. His interests include the causes of large-scale political violence (genocide, war crimes, crimes against humanity), transitional justice, forgiveness and reconciliation, trials, truth commissions, official apologies, and reparations. He is the author of Unchopping a Tree: Reconciliation in the Aftermath of Political Violence and coeditor of volumes on peacebuilding and social movements, the field of genocide studies, and the international politics of genocide. His current work is on the causes of genocide and early warning and risk assessment models. He also co-directs a project mapping state security force structures around the world. Verdeja serves on the boards of the International Association of Genocide Scholars and the Institute for the Study of Genocide. His website is at everdeja.weebly.com.

Lior Zylberman has a PhD in Social Sciences (UBA), a Master degree in Communication and Culture (UBA) and a degree in Sociology (UBA). He is Associate Professor at the Image and Sound Design course of studies (FADU-UBA). Currently, he is a fellow at CONICET and a member of the research team of the Center for Genocide Studies at the National University of Tres de Febrero. He is General Secretary of the Argentine Association of Cinema and Audiovisual Studies (ASAECA) and member of the Advisory Board of the International Association of Genocide Scholars. He is an editorial member of the academic journal Cine Documental (Documentary Cinema) and the Journal of Genocide Studies published by National University of Tres de Febrero. In his research, articles and book chapters he has studied the relationship between cinema, image, memory, dictatorship and genocide.

Marcelo Ferreira is Professor and Chair of Human Rights at the School of Philosophy and Literature, University of Buenos Aires (UBA). He is also Professor of Human Rights at the School of Law at UBA. He was a member of the "Dealing with the Past after overcoming Dictatorial Regimes –Differences and Similarities between Argentina, Chile, Germany, Poland and South Africa" Congress organized in Berlin from 14th to the 20th December, 1998, by the institutes Die Stiftung, Topographie Das Terrors at Berlin, the House of Wannsee Conference, and the Paulo Freire Society. As a member of the International People's Tribunal, a body of the Lelio Basso International Foundation based in Rome, he participated in the sessions of the Tribunal of Colombia on "Human Rights and Biodiversity" (2006), "The Oil Multinational Companies Trial: Oxi, Repsol, and British Petroleum" (2007), "Multinational Companies and Rights of the People in Colombia" (2008), "Neo-liberal Policies, Multinational Economic Groups" (2008), and he attended the "Final Session" (2008). Ferreira is the director of the research projects: "Transnational Corporations and State Terrorism: towards a model of International Responsibility" at the Law Faculty of the University of Buenos Aires, and "The Effects of State Terrorism on the University of Buenos Aires: an approach focused on the Faculty of Philosophy and Literature." Ferreira has written numerous papers on human rights and philosophy of the right.