Profs Honored by Florida Humanities Council

University of South Florida St. Petersburg history professor Gary Mormino received the first Humanist of the Year award from the Florida Humanities Council on Friday, Oct. 17. The award was presented at an awards program at the St. Petersburg Museum of History.

Mormino is the co-director for the Florida Studies Program, one of USF St. Petersburg's Programs of Distinction. He is the author of Hillsborough Goes to War and the co-author Spanish Pathways in Florida and The Immigrant World of Ybor City.

Tampa Mayor Pam Iorio and St. Petersburg Mayor Rick Baker were the featured speakers at the awards program for A Sunshine State of Mind, a three-day event spotlighting Florida's unique cultural development and influence.

Mormino and Ray Arsenault, co-director for the Florida Studies Program, joined the mayors in a lively discussion, "A Tale of Two Cities," that highlighted the

NOTICE:

This is sent on behalf of Suzanne Roberts, Purchasing & Financial Services. Please contact Suzanne at 4-6050 if you have any questions.

Purchasing & Financial Services received the following notification from the Office of the Chancellor, Division of Colleges & Universities, Florida Department of Education in the courier mail this morning.

"URGENT: PONY EXPRESS COURIER SERVICE TO BE DISCONTINUED
Because of the recent reorganization in the Division of Colleges and Universities and Department of Education, it has been decided that the use of the everyday Pony Express Courier Service is no longer economically reasonable and will be discontinued after Wednesday, October 15, 2003. Please notify all appropriate staff at your university that Wednesday will be the last date for the mail bags from DCU to be delivered to your campus. Please keep in mind, therefore, that we will no longer be able to accept your packages in our courier office for distribution to other SUS campuses."

Effective immediately, USF will only forward mail addressed to Tallahassee (including FAMU and FSU) through the Pony Express Courier Service each day. Mail addressed to other State universities cannot be included in these shipments. Departments should send items to other State universities through regular deliveries.

USF will monitor the usage to determine if it is cost effective to continue this service under these new limits.

Please contact Suzanne Roberts at 4-6050 with any questions.
