How can I expand the reach of my research without increasing my workload?

What is the best way to share my work with colleagues and students?

How can I increase the impact and longevity of my scholarship?

A service of the USF Tampa Library, Scholar Commons extends the reach and impact of the USF research community without increasing faculty workloads.

The publications hosted on USF Scholar Commons are open access, making them freely accessible to anyone with access to the Internet. Open access also means that the work of the USF research community is available to contribute to solutions to pressing societal and scientific challenges. By submitting their completed scholarly works, researchers can provide immediate global access through permanent URLs, as while asserting intellectual property rights.

USF Scholar Commons

Members of the USF academic community are encouraged to contribute completed scholarship for long-term preservation and worldwide electronic accessibility. Search engine optimization within Scholar Commons means your publications are easily found via a web search. As an author, you can track interest in your work through the author dashboard or monthly readership reports sent via email.

"USF Scholar Commons has allowed me to reach broader audiences with my research."

Dr. Karen Liller, Professor of Public Health, AAAS Fellow, and Director of the USF Doctoral Student Leadership Institute

"USF Scholar Commons has substantially extended our Journal's reach, readership, and impact"

Dr. Randy Borum, Professor, College of Behavioral & Community Sciences

Getting Started

1. Update your CV to include all work completed since arriving at USF.
2. Write a short email giving us permission to post your research. We will seek copyright permission to post the digital item(s).
3. Attach your CV and send the email to: scholarcommons@usf.edu

It's that easy!

Publishing

As part of our commitment to open access publishing, library staff assists with training, creating metadata for content, and archiving digital content for long-term preservation. Communities can also be used to promote and manage conferences, including abstract/paper submission, peer review system, and publication online. Publishing conference proceedings means your content will have life beyond the physical event.

Current open access journals are available at: scholarcommons.usf.edu/journals.html

Data Management

Tampa library staff can assist PIs with data management planning and supply standards-compliant metadata appropriate for the community of practice. Developed and managed by the USF Tampa Library, the Geoportal & Data Repository (GDR) supports discovery, exchange, and use of multiple data formats generated by researchers.

For more information, email scholarcommons@usf.edu or visit scholarcommons.usf.edu

SelectedWorks Accounts

USF community members are encouraged to create a free SelectedWorks account at works.bepress.com. Benefits include effective presentation of personal activities, the ability to take content with you, and high visibility throughout the online community of researchers. When asked to identify a home institution, select University of South Florida; this will link the account with USF branding and researchers from across campus.

SelectedWorks authors can be seen at: scholarcommons.usf.edu/sw\_gallery.html

SelectedWorks accounts are separate from Scholar Commons.
