STUDYING THE PAINTING OR?

This young couple in the University Gallery proves that spring fever may strike at any time on campus, even during a mid-summer art exhibition in the library. The two males in the left-hand corner of the picture seem unaffected by this all-university disease, but may be they are just waiting for two coeds to come study the painting.

BY SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION

Accreditation Report To Be Submitted

Three representatives of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools recently completed an informal visit to the University of South Florida and will submit a report on their observations to the university and the association's Committee on Colleges next month.

The Southern Association is the agency which has responsibility for accreditation of colleges in this region. The committee, which visited the campus for three days at the invitation of USF President John S. Allen, included Deans George Manners, Georgia State College; John Beery, University of Miami; and M. C. Huntley, Auburn University.

A similar visit was made to the campus last spring by Dr. Gordon W. Sweet, executive secretary of the Southern Association; Dr. Judson C. Ward Jr., vice president and dean of faculty at Emory University; Dr. Donald C. Agnew, president of Oglethorpe University; and Dr. Arnold Perry, dean of the school of education at the University of North Carolina.

When the university opened in 1960, Dr. Allen requested that the Southern Association send observers to the campus for informal visits each year, so they would be familiar with the development and operation when accreditation is formally requested.

Senate Votes To Require Senior GRE

At its May 25 meeting The University of South Florida Senate approved the recommendation that all USF seniors be required to take the aptitude part of the graduate record examination.

Three reasons were given for the recommendation: First, it is essential to have such data as USF moves toward accreditation, second it is to provide comparative information on national norms, and third, the exam is a prerequisite to entering many graduate schools.

The examination will be given each trimester starting with fall trimester, 1962. While it is required of all seniors, it will not serve as a criterion for graduation.

At the same meeting student senators Fred Jenkins and Jim Klapps were unanimously elected to serve on the committee on elections and the committee on education problems, respectively.

Jim Klapps read a statement from the executive council of the student association concerning John Committee investigation, and defending the university.

Three new engineering courses were approved in connection with the USF-University of Florida degree plan.

Band Membership Open to Everyone

Membership in the University of South Florida Band is open to all area residents during the eight week summer session whether or not they are enrolled as students at the university.

The band meets each Tuesday night from 7 to 10 p.m. in the University Center ballroom. Membership in the band will include graduating high school seniors and local residents who wish to keep in practice during the summer months as well as regular university students.

In addition to the eight rehearsals, the band will present a concert July 12 in TA.

Persons interested in participating with the band should contact Dr. Gale L. Sperry, director of bands at the university.

Busch Plans Long-Range Expansion Program for Gardens

Anheuser-Busch, Inc., which owns and operates the brewery and Busch Gardens a short distance from the USF campus, has announced a long-range $2.5-$4 million expansion program for the gardens which, when completed, will make it one of the nation's leading tourist attractions.

August A. Busch Jr., president of Anheuser-Busch, said $1.5 million has already been appropriated to get the expansion under way immediately. The project will include development of 105 acres surrounding the brewery and is scheduled for completion by the end of the year.

Busch said the expansion program was dictated by attendance projection studies recently made by the Case Institute of Technology. The studies project annual attendance at Busch Gardens will reach 3,616,000 by 1966, and 13,500,000 by 1971.

Busch Gardens, located on a 182-acre tract at the Florida home of Anheuser-Busch in the Tampa Industrial Park just south of the University, has been attracting record-breaking crowds in recent months. The Gardens have drawn as many as 19,000 visitors in a single day and attendance since Jan. 1, 1962, has reached 700,000. Since the Gardens and brewery were opened to the public in June, 1959, as a free attraction, more than 3-million people from every state and numerous foreign countries have toured the facilities.

Busch recently completed negotiations to purchase an additional 30 acres of land east and north of the brewery at a cost of some $120,000.

According to Busch, expansion plans call for construction of an authentic American Plains scene immediately behind the brewery, and an African

Students Offer Prof-Course Evaluations

At the end of each semester all teachers at the University of South Florida are asked to administer a Course and Teacher Evaluation Form to at least one of the courses or sections they taught this semester.

Results of these evaluations are compiled by Evaluation Services and made available to personnel.

A recent evaluation found that now only 13 per cent of the current students have not decided on a major field of interest, as compared with the 26 per cent of last year.

Last year 48 per cent of the students indicated they could get a great deal of personal help from their instructors, this year the percentage is only 38 per cent. This is a possible symptom of the increasing size of the university and reflective of the increased ratio of students to teachers.

Many of the students had high praise for their instructors, and rated them as "interesting" and "fair," and the material as "very clear in presentation," and "well organized."

Most of the students rated themselves as possessing only "average ability," and said that the courses they had taken had increased their powers of critical thinking as well as their work output.

Campus Store Places Fifth

The University Bookstore placed fifth in a merchandising contest conducted by the National Association of College Stores, which held its annual meeting at New York recently.

John P. Gore, bookstore manager, said the $25 award received by the bookstore will be donated to the University of South Florida Foundation.

The university's entry, one of about 100 in the contest, was the Christmas book sale, Gore and Mrs. Wilma Schoenbohm, supervisor of books, attended the New York meeting.

Physical Plant Plans, Buzzes And Builds

The physical plant of the university is buzzing with activity, according to director Clyde B. Hill.

The new Humanities building is scheduled for completion in fall, 1963, while bids for the new Physics building will be taken in December, 1962.

A new design has been incorporated in the men's residence hall which will be in use beginning September, 1962. Unlike Alpha, the basement of the new hall will be useable.

Breaks in the wall will provide a quieter hall atmosphere. There is also a large center stairway, not designed for students coming in after sign-out time.

Director Hill is very much concerned with the problem of student grass-walkers. "How students who were here last year to see that sand can permit people to walk on our beautiful grass is beyond me," he stated. "New sidewalks will be built as soon as funds are appropriated."

Relieving some of the parking congestion will be a new student lot next to the library.

Bids are being taken for a 12,000 ton air conditioning unit, designed to make USF buildings even more comfortable.

EFFECTIVE JULY 1

Library To Gain Historical Collection

The Florida Historical Society will move its headquarters and library from the University of Florida to the University of South Florida July 1. The announcement was made recently by Dr. Frank Sessa of Miami, president of the society, and Dr. John S. Allen, president of the University of South Florida.

The move approved by society members at their annual meeting in Jacksonville early in May, will further plans to make the University of South Florida a center of Florida research for the West Coast area.

The society's library was not needed by the University of Florida because of its own outstanding Florida collection, the P. K. Yonge Library of Florida History. The collection will be housed in the special collections room at USF's well-equipped new library.

The move will necessitate a change in the society's headquarters staff. Mrs. Lois J. Sette, of Gainesville, is retiring from the office of executive secretary-treasurer of the Florida Historical Society and will be succeeded by Miss Margaret Chapman, special collections librarian at USF.

The USF Library's special collections room already houses a growing Florida collection as well as the University archives and rare books collection. The room is open for use by students, faculty members and authors who wish to do research on Florida, as well as visitors interested in the state's history, and the society's collection is expected to greatly stimulate Florida research projects in this area.

Author Series Hosts Radio Script-Writer

Robert M. Burt, director of the Blue Ridge Writers Colony and a well-known writer of radio serials, will be featured at the University of South Florida's "Meet the Author" series Tuesday (June 26) at 1:29 p.m. in UC264.

Burt, a veteran flyer, is probably best known for his radio serials "Capt. Midnight" and "Sky King." He was also co-author of the Paramount movie "The Sky Parade."

His life has been as exciting as the lives of some of the characters he has created. Six boyhood years were spent in the interior of China with his missionary parents including a three-month period in which the family was held captive by bandits in the hill country of Kwangsi Province.

He entered the aviation section of the Army Signal Corps in 1917, flying in combat with the Third Pursuit Group in France. After the war he was graduated from Columbia University.

Future "Meet the Author" programs during the summer session will feature Mrs. Lois Cardoza, an outstanding writer of children's literature, and Marjory Stoneman Douglas, director of the University of Miami Press.

Strayed and misinformed tourists will no longer accuse the USF campus of being an extension of a local brewery, for the physical plant has erected a large marker on Fowler Avenue.

The sign structure consists of the University seal in terrazo, centered in a buff brick wall. It has aluminum letters spelling out University of South Florida on both sides of the seal.

Architect Fred Clayton designed the sign more than a year ago, but construction was postponed because of lack of funds.

Philanthropist Stanton B. Sanson donated the money for the sign.

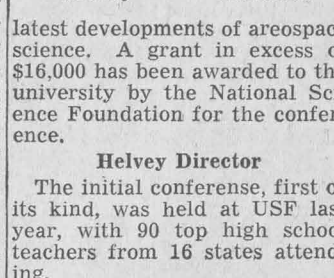

Third Dormitory Bid

C. A. Fielland Inc., of Tampa, submitted an apparent low bid of $2,008,000 for construction of a third residence hall and central service core unit at USF.

The hall will provide accommodations for 440 to 460 students.

Helvey

Bernardo

Helvey Director

The initial conference, first of its kind, was held at USF last year, with 90 top high school teachers from 16 states attending.

Dr. T. C. Helvey, associate professor of biology at the University of South Florida, again will be conference director. Co-director will be Dr. David Williams, professor of physics in the department of aeronautical engineering at the University of Florida. James V. Bernardo, director of educational programs division of office of educational programs and services, will make the keynote address at the conference.

Dr. Helvey said the grant provides for support of teachers from 16 states at this year's conference. As far as space permits, the conference will be open to any other teachers who wish to attend without financial support. Two hours credit will be given for completion of the conference.

One of the highlights of the conference will be a tour of the missile center at Cape Canaveral, scheduled July 18. On display again this year at the conference will be a Mercury space capsule like that used in the United States' "Spacemobile," a traveling science demonstration unit.

"Aerospace science is moving so fast that teachers have difficulty keeping up with its pace," Dr. Helvey said, "yet high school students pick up information here and there and would like to have details about it from their teachers."

"To bring the teachers up to date in the science we are assembling the top talent in the United States to give firsthand information to the participants," he said.

Dr. Helvey explained that the crowded program will keep the participating teachers on the go, but said he felt they didn't expect the conference to be a vacation.

"But they are type of teachers for whom this kind of business is pleasure," he added. "Although the program is designed for teachers, it will be open to others interested in the field of aerospace science."

French Plans Orientation Day

A one-day orientation program for faculty is planned for Sept. 4, according to Dr. Sidney J. French, dean of academic affairs.

The program, which will take the place of previous week-long orientations, will be supplemented by letters written to new faculty members explaining the university operation.

The day will be divided into two sections. The morning session will begin at 8:30 a.m. with a speech by Dr. John S. Allen, president. The morning session will be attended by both old and new faculty members.

The afternoon session will be solely for new faculty members. It will be an explanation of business procedures, educational resources, the library, USF Foundation, and student activities. Orientation into the specific college areas will be handled by college heads and course chairmen.

Bargain's A Bargain —Anyplace

BERLIN, June 25 (UPI)—West Berliners have a customs-free shopping paradise in — of all places—East Berlin.

The Communists run two duty-free stores at the elevated railroad station at Friedrichstrasse. West Berliners can and do buy there without having to enter East Berlin itself—which they are banned from doing anyway.

East Germany sells American cigarettes, French cognac, Scotch whisky, French perfume, lipstick, nylon stockings and even Cuban canned pineapple in the two shops.

Goods can be bought only with hard currency, preferably West German marks. They are all as much as twice or three times cheaper than in West Berlin.

The elevated station is a stop for West Berliners who use the Communist-run elevated railway. They go to Friedrichstrasse to change trains for another part of West Berlin.

Although most West Berliners boycott the elevated so as not to provide East Germany with hard West German marks, some still use the transport system because it is cheap.

"We get about 40 to 50 West Berlin customers a day," a saleswoman said.

"Most of them buy for small amounts but daily there are between two and three persons, all men, who buy at each of the shops for between 400 and 500 marks ($100 and $125)," she said.

SEEK TO STIFFEN GOP

Lonely Conservatives Eye Left's Successes

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International
WASHINGTON, June 23 — This is the season for deploring and condemning the scattered pockets of conservative-minded voters who seek to put some conservative backbone into the Republican party.

These conservatives are denounced as rightists, now a dirty word. They are accused of reckless rule-or-ruin intent. All of them for their conservative persuasion are tagged with the shoot-the-moon futility of seeking to impeach Chief Justice Earl Warren or of picturing Dwight D. Eisenhower as a Communist sympathizer.

The bill or particulars is phony. Their alleged intent to rule or ruin is unproved. It is a fact, however, that in some areas little pockets of homeless conservatives are examining with interest the success of organized leftists in shaping Democratic party policies.

For example: The Liberal party in the state of New York. For another: Organized labor in Michigan. For several more: Any of the heavily industrialized states. In these areas the organized left-of-center can be and often is the tail that wags the dog.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York was deploring last week the effort to organize a conservative splinter party in his state. Unless the shoot-the-mooners obtain control of that proposed splinter, its effect merely would be to give New York's conservative Republicans some leverage on party policy.

What the conservative organizers seek in New York is the kind and degree of leverage on the Republican Party that the splinter liberal party imposes on the Democratic Party of New York State. When the Democratic and Liberal parties in New York support the same nominees, it often happens that their man is elected with the aid of liberal votes and would have been defeated without them.

That Liberal Party is to the left of the Democratic Party. It is a party with an organized labor foundation. It pressures the Democratic Party toward candidates and policies the older party might not otherwise accept. It is no more ridiculous to accuse the Liberal Party in New York State of Communism than it is to accuse all unhappy conservative Republicans there or elsewhere of seeking to impeach Warren.

All of these alliances, strategies and tactics add up to the political dominance enjoyed now by the Democratic Party in the United States.
