COMMITTEE SAYS

USF Potential Is Unlimited

A three member committee, representing the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, last week cited the University of South Florida as "an institution of unlimited potential," and said, "the state should have pride in this youngest of its universities." The committee, which visited the campus in May, presented these observations, in a report, to the association, and to Dr. John S. Allen, USF president. Members of the committee included Deans M. C. Huntley, George E. Mann, and John R. Berry of Auburn, Georgia State College, and the University of Miami, respectively.

Staff Commended

The report commended Dr. Allen, his staff and faculty for "remarkable progress toward creation of a university within a very short time."

"The committee said it found the spirit of USF students wholesome and commendable."

"The students were verbal, responsible, impressive, and the institution can, indeed, be proud of a student group which, almost unanimously, entered the institution in its first class and show almost no evidences of frustration from organizational factors," the report said.

The faculty was described by the committee as "young, excellently qualified, and very enthusiastic over the challenge offered for participation in the birth of a university."

"In training," the report added, "this faculty is equal if not superior to that of any university of the region."

The committee commented favorably on the organization and administration of the university, and cited the continuing efforts in planning and adjusting current programs.

In commenting on the academic program, the committee placed particular emphasis on the program in general education.

Unique Operation
"The integration of fields and discipline into a cohesive academic program is accomplished through its College of Basic Studies," the report said. "Faculty is principally drawn from the basic studies program of the university from the College of Liberal Arts. Integration of knowledge is an objective in both colleges. Consequently, a unique organizational pattern is supplemented by a unique relationship between these two colleges."

In the opinion of the committee, the College of Business Administration currently meets all applicable standards of the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business.

The committee also commended the teacher education program at the university, particularly with regard to the "all-university" approach to the program.

Need More Facilities

The report praised the physical plant of the university but cited the need of more facilities to accommodate the rapidly increasing enrollment. As projected buildings are constructed, these needs will be met, the report stated. It said the most pressing building needed at this time is one for health and physical education.

The committee was particularly impressed by a unique feature of the university: There are no streets through the campus.

"Even though its stay was brief, the committee departed the campus with an understanding of the philosophy of the university and appreciation of its endeavors," the report said.

"Within a short span of years the University of South Florida should be among the strongest state universities of the region."

10 Additions Made To University Staff

The appointment of a professor, two associate professors and seven instructors to the faculty of the University of South Florida was announced today by USF President John S. Allen. The new faculty members, who will join the staff Sept. 1, are: Dr. Louis C. Jurgensen, professor, College of Business Administration; assistant professors Dr. Guy Forman, physics, and Dr. Robert W. Long, botany; and instructors William D. Benham, economics and finance; Rolf Ekmanis, foreign languages; Luis P. Fonseca, foreign languages; William D. Heier, business administration; Ed Richard Pickering, botany; Eurus Sellers, education; and Gerard A. Wagner, speech.

Dr. Jurgensen received his Ph. D. degree from the University of Iowa and comes to USF from the University of Wyoming, where he was associate professor and later professor of auditing and accounting since 1954. He formerly taught at the University of Minnesota and Lehigh University.

Dr. Forman, a native of Ohio County, Ky., received his doctor's degree from the University of Kentucky. He has been on the faculty of Vanderbilt University for the last 19 years.

Dr. Long comes here from Ohio Wesleyan University, where he has been associate professor of botany since 1954. The Ashland, Ky., native received his doctor's degree from Indiana University.

Native of Latvia
Benham, a native of Somerville, Mass., received his master's degree from the University of Texas. For the last two years he has been managing training administrator and university coordinator for Lockheed Aircraft Company, Sunnyvale, Calif.

Ekmanis, a native of Riga, Latvia, was instructor of foreign languages at Utah State University. He received his master's degree in Slavic studies from the University of Minnesota.

Fonseca, a native of Ponce, Puerto Rico, has directed the Modern Language House at the University of Colorado for the last three summers. He received his master's degree in political science from the University of Madrid.

Heier, a former Marine Corps aviator, received his master's degree at George Washington University. He is a native of Oklahoma City, Okla.

To Get Doctorate
Pickering, who expects to receive his Ph.D. in botany from the University of California this summer, is a native of Cincinnati. He has been a teaching assistant and research assistant at the University of California since 1958.

Sellers, whose hometown is Geneva, Ala., received his master's degree from the University of Florida. He has been assistant professor of mathematics and education at Florida Southern College since 1957.

Wagner received his master's degree from Mississippi Southern College. The New Orleans native has been a teaching assistant in speech fundamentals at Indiana University since 1960.

39 Students On Work-Study Assignments This Summer

Fall Openings Available; 12 With U.S. Space Agency

Thirty-nine University of South Florida students are gaining experience in their professional field this summer through the University's Work-Study Cooperative Program of Education. Assignments range through many fields and include students majoring in the College of Education, College of Liberal Arts, College of Business Administration, and the College of Basic Studies. These students will earn from $480 up during their work period. While many will save some money toward their fall semester expenses all are expected to bring back knowledge gathered this summer that will be helpful in the classroom this fall.

CAMPUS ACTIVITY

UC Personnel Feature Tours

University Center personnel are planning an activity filled summer for USF students. A series of three programs mainly of interest to women, and covering flower arranging, everyday charm and fashions, begins this Thursday. Swimming and golf will highlight a party to be held at the Temple Terrace Golf Club Friday, July 13.

Green fees are $1.50, and the pool fee is 50 cents. Also featured during the evening will be a smorgasbord at moderate prices. You must register in order to attend these events.

A tour to Sarasota's Asolo Theater will be held during the summer. The party will include dinner, a tour of the theater, and the play "The Music Master." Registration begins July 7.

Chinsegut Hill, Weeki Wachee Springs, and Tarpon Springs will be covered on a July 12 tour. Interested parties must sign up before Monday afternoon, July 9.

The group will leave Tampa at 12:30, and arrive at Chinsegut at 1:30 p.m. While at Chinsegut, the group will be given a special tour of the University-owned property by Dr. James Ray, head of biological sciences department here at USF.

The tour will arrive in Weeki Wachee for the 3:15 show, and at 5:15 will journey to Tarpon Springs for a visit to the wharf and sponge docks. That evening the group will be feted to a special dinner at Louis Pappas Restaurant, famous for special Greek Salad. The group will arrive in Tampa that evening at 8:15 p.m.

Tickets Go On Sale
Tickets for the Miami-Tampa Tarpons, July 6 game, will go on sale this week at the UC Desk. The tickets are 50 cents per person, and can be purchased singly or in groups. This special price has been provided through the cooperation of Bill Harbour, Tampa Tarpons general manager.

GMC Scholar To Enter USF In September
Joy Baynard, 18-year-old Tarpon Springs High School senior, won a four-year scholarship from General Motors Corporation under its national plan scholarship program.

Miss Baynard, who will enter the University of South Florida in September, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse L. Baynard, of 234 High Street, Tarpon Springs. She was selected as one of 100 scholarship recipients from among 20,000 high school seniors who competed for the awards.

The scholarships pay from $200 to $2,000 a year, depending on the need of the student. Recipients select their own course of study and are under no obligation to work for the corporation upon graduation.

The only other Florida winner in the competition was John W. Senterfitt III, Ocala High school senior who competed for the awards.

The scholarship pay from $200 to $2,000 a year, depending on the need of the student. Recipients select their own course of study and are under no obligation to work for the corporation upon graduation.

Application for openings may be made at the Work-Study Office, AD1070, phone ext. 172 or 173.

18,700 VISIT USF

University Center Welcomes Tourists

By SARAH CALDWELL
According to Mrs. Phyllis Marshall, program advisor for the University Center, Florida's tourist industry is booming. Under Mrs. Marshall's direction the various UC committees entertained more than 18,700 visitors during the past academic year. As a result of High School Hospitality Day, tours, receptions, and open houses, sponsored by the Hospitality Committee, 8,300 persons viewed the campus.

The Movie Committee presented seven motion pictures during the year, and 1,960 students and guests were in attendance.

Fun and Games
Fun and games received major attention, too, 667 students participated in the Recreation Committee's tournaments and the moonlight cruise.

Jam sessions accompanied by poetry and stereo hours sponsored by the Music Committee drew more than 787 spectators.

1,100 Met Authors
"Meet the Author" sessions, and the talent show, brought 1,100 onlookers to USF.

The Dance Committee sponsored 22 dances and drew crowds that amounted to a grand total of 3,977. Both men and women composed the 475 persons in attendance at the two fashion shows.

Bridge and Dancing
There are 672 new bridge players on campus as a result of UC lessons. South Florida dancers now have 520 new partners to choose from, as the lessons committee taught them too.

At the beginning of the fall trimester University Center vacancies will be open to anyone who cares to apply.

To qualify for committee membership you must secure an application at the UC desk, submit it, be interviewed, and plan to be a jolly worker.

Softball Can Be Organized
Dr. Richard D. Hunter, assistant professor of intramurals and physical education, has announced that anyone interested in organizing a softball game or similar intramural competitive events could contact him for further information.

Hunter elaborated, "I am ready and willing to help the students organize competitive activities on campus this summer. Since I don't wish to force intramural sports on anyone, I am waiting for them to contact me."

Physical education equipment is available for student and staff use, and can be picked up from the P. E. Locker building.

AT AGE 70

William E. Hamner, Local Developer, Dies

William Edward Hamner, a developer of more than 40 subdivisions in Hillsborough County in the past 50 years, died Sunday afternoon in a Tampa hospital. He was 70.

Born in Kansas City, Mo., Mr. Hamner came to Valrico 50 years ago after graduating from University of Kansas, and moved to Tampa about 42 years ago.

Mr. Hamner made the original purchase from the Potter

Palmer estate of Temple Terrace. Later he acquired Forest Hills.

In addition to his extensive subdivision developments, he was a builder. He started the development of the electrical supply business in the Garrison Channel area with the General Electric building, and later built Caldwell Bonded Warehouse and other buildings in that section.

Since 1945, he had maintained his real estate office at 9341 Florida Ave. with his nephew, J. B. Hamner Miller.

During World War I, he was a first lieutenant in the same field artillery brigade with Sgt. Alvin York. Mr. Hamner also was an organizer of the 116th Field Artillery of the Florida National Guard, in which he served as a battery commander. He also helped establish Benjamin Field.

One of the organizers of the Exchange Club as well as the old Victory National Life Insurance Co. (now Gulf Life), Mr. Hamner was a member of the Tampa Board of Realtors, University Club and the Tampa Yacht and Country Club.

He is survived by his widow, the former Marjory Beckwith, and several nieces and nephews.

Automated Medicine

CHICAGO (UPI)—Medicine is getting so automated these days that a doctor can get a good idea how his patient's heart is beating by merely checking his "heartbeats" and "heartblinks."

A battery-powered device strapped to a patient's arm will alert doctors to changes in his heart condition or activity with either beeping sounds or a blinking light. The device was developed by Chemtron Corp.

REVISED DRASTICALLY IN COMMITTEES

Kefauver Drug Bill Emerges—Mangled

Editor's note: The controversial Kefauver investigation of the drug industry involved testimony that would have filled 20 books. Now that it is all over, the bill which has emerged is a far cry from what Senator Kefauver originally wanted. The following dispatch tells what happened.

WASHINGTON, July 2 (UPI)—Disowned by friends and foes alike, Sen. Estes Kefauver's much-mangled drug bill has been consigned to a legislative orphanage. A similar fate apparently awaits a companion measure in the House.

What started out to be a bill that would tightly regulate the drug industry has been revised drastically in Senate committees.

For Kefauver, this is a calamity for the American people, who has fought down the line against what it called government encroachment, it is a welcome development.

Few bills in recent years aroused senatorial tempers the way the drug bill did. Kefauver believes it was sidetracked in part by ineptness on the part of the New Frontier.

In his view, the redrafted bill has been stripped of practically everything except the title, the "Drug Industry Antitrust Act."

Only 55 lines of the original 35-page bill remain untouched.

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., one of those who Kefauver said "cut up" the bill, sought to cheer the bill Tennessee Democrat.

"His patience is certainly equal to that of Job," Dirksen said in an oratorical flourish. "He is as single-minded as an Apache Indian."

He is as gracious as a Victorian lady. There is a rare diligence about him, and a rare consistency about him also."

Dirksen was talking about the fact that Kefauver called 210 witnesses before the Senate Antitrust Subcommittee in a 45-day long investigation of drug industry abuses that began on Dec. 7, 1959.

Kefauver summoned 107 more witnesses to testify about the bill that grew out of the investigation. The combined testimony filled 12,884 pages in 20 books, probably all time record.

The 35-page bill would have imposed stiff government controls on drug makers. It would have reduced patent monopolies on new drugs from 17 to three years; barred marketing of any new drug in the absence of "preponderant" evidence that it worked as advertised; prohibited patents on medicines that were not substantially different from those already on the market; required a full listing of side effects, and a bold printing of the drugs' official names.

These would have been drastic moves.

Kefauver's bill grew out of his conviction that drug industry is a near monopoly that exacts excessive prices for its products. The industry, he said, wastes millions—24 cents on the sales dollar—advertising "molecular modifications" of existing patented drugs and covers up dangerous side effects.

(One company, according to the testimony, withheld a report showing that 500 of 2,000 clinical case studies developed skin irritations and even jaundice from a much-ballyhooed anti-biotic.)

Relaxing patent protection, Kefauver believes, would drive prices down by infusing more competition into the industry. And if all manufacturers were licensed, he believes, doctors would be encouraged to prescribe drugs by chemical rather than trade name, thus permitting patients to shop for the cheapest brand.

The drug industry, represented by the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association (PMA), challenged Kefauver's charges. PMA said industry-financed breakthroughs in drug therapy, particularly new wonder drugs and tranquilizers, contributed heavily to the nation's better health.

Costly drug research to conquer cancer and other killer diseases can be paid for only by healthy industry profits, PMA said. And even if all profits were eliminated, according to industry spokesmen, the price of the average prescription would not drop by more than a dime.

The manufacturers agreed to a few of Kefauver's objections, but fought most provisions of the original bill, particularly the patent section. PMA agreed that no new drug should be marketed unless there is substantial evidence that it works as advertised.

Kefauver nudged the bill out of the monopoly subcommittee by a 3-2 party line vote and from there it went to Sen. James O. Eastland's judiciary committee. The combined votes of southern Democrats and Republicans sent it to Sen. John L. McClellan's patents subcommittee for further scrutiny. McClellan's panel struck the patent section, which Kefauver regarded as the key cost-cutting feature.

Weeks of pulling and hauling followed in full committee. Eastland, without notifying Kefauver, called in "certain individuals designated by the administration" to work up "realistic" amendments that all sides could support.

Eastland remarked later that it would have been "futile" to notify Kefauver. "I did not think he would make an agreement with respect to anything," Eastland said.

MEN are selfish

When summer rolls around, who spends the working day in an air conditioned office—has lunch in an air conditioned restaurant? The breadwinner, of course, not the bread baker.

So, pampered Papa, marriage is a 50-50 proposition—your wife deserves a cool work day, too. And for far less than you think, you can give her whole-house air conditioning by Chrysler. So surprise your loving wife before the temperature zooms. Let Chrysler help you with your air conditioning problems. Send today for your FREE copy of "Common Sense About Year-Round Comfort." Better still, phone and ask us to arrange a no-cost, no-obligation survey of your home. We'll be happy to help you.

Treatment of Eye Illnesses Should Be Entrusted to Expert

By W. C. ALVAREZ, M.D.
In an excellent article in the magazine, "Light," published by the Braille Institute of America, Los Angeles 29, Dr. W. A. Pettit, a former state ophthalmologist (eye specialist) of California, gives some valuable suggestions in regard to the immediate home care of eye injuries.

I feel strongly about this because I get so many hundreds of letters from people who say that they are losing their sight and what would I suggest in the way of treatment. My answer always is, "For goodness' sake, hurry and see an expert eye specialist." Our eyes are so important that we must never neglect them even for a day or for any reason.

Incidentally, every person who works in a factory or machine shop in which there is any chance of bits of metal flying around, always should wear protective goggles. There are hundreds of people going about today with a white cane because once they refused to wear goggles, when told to do so by the head of the shop. All of us can, at times, as on a windy day, get sand or dust or something in our eye, and it is not always well to let a bystander try to get it out. The cornea or transparent window of the eye can get badly scratched and then infected.

As Dr. Pettit says, of the approximately 30,000 blind people in California, some 20,000 should never have lost their sight. They are what he calls needlessly blind, and what a tragedy that is. As the doctor says, so much of this blindness is due partly to ignorance and neglect. Those 20,000 blind people probably would be able to see and work as usual today if they had only quickly gone to an eye specialist and received sensible and expert treatment.

What is sad is that so many millions of people do not know that a "mild, apparently harmless trouble" can lead to the loss of vision.

Glaucoma, a fairly common disease in which the tension in the inside of the eye becomes so great that it destroys the retina (seeing part of the eye) can "sneak up" on people. It is most likely to occur in later years and especially in families in which the disease tends to run. Obviously, it is highly important that a person discover the disease before it has done irreparable injury to his eye.

As one can easily see, it is unwise for a person with some distress in his eyes to trust his vision to some advertised eye drops. There may be nothing wrong with them, but if he sadly needs some special eye drops, or some medicine to be taken by mouth, or a little operation on the eye, he is likely to lose his sight. A common practice with a man who is losing his sight is to go and get a new pair of glasses. That only wastes precious time.

Dr. Pettit says that when you have something in your eye, don't rub it. Lift the upper eyelid a little—away from the eyeball and perhaps the tears will wash out the particle. If the tears don't wash the particle out, quickly see an eye specialist. If the particle gets stuck in the cornea, on a Saturday afternoon, when one cannot expect to find an eye specialist in his office, the person must not wait until Monday morning. He or she can go to the emergency room of a big hospital where there may be a resident doctor on the eye service. He can get the foreign body out safely.

A cut in the eyeball can be a very serious matter, especially if it should get infected. Again, an eye specialist should be consulted immediately. People might remember that Braille, the man who invented the writing that is used today by the blind, lost his eyesight when he was a boy. He was so near-sighted that when he was using a sharp instrument in his hand, and it slipped, it went into one of his eyes. He lost the sight of that eye, and then, by what is called "sympathetic ophthalmia," he lost the sight in the other eye.

As Dr. Pettit says, some persons get a burn on the front of the eye due to a flare or to a drop of some irritant chemical. The thing to do is immediately to wash out the eye with water. Hold the head under a faucet or have someone pour water into the eye from a glass or small pitcher. Burns should be seen by an eye specialist as soon as possible. They can leave the cornea (front window) of the eye scarred and "frosted."

because our eyes are so precious, whenever we are suffering disturbing symptoms we should see an eye specialist immediately.
