Poll Shows Pros-Cons On Mascot

By VIRGINIA MONTES and JACK MCCLINTOCK

"I don't know why we had to have a mascot, at all," was Colman Rutkins' reaction to the announcement of the new university mascot, Golden Brahmas. To this he added: "If a design was needed for the school ring, there are classic Greek scrolls that could have been used. Golden Brahmas is a better choice than Barraudas, however."

USF's mascot contest has stirred up much interest. Opinions sampled last week, during the voting, ranged from unqualified support of some entries, to sardonic dismay, to dismal apathy. Most seemed to favor the Buccaneers, though there was outspoken loyalty to others.

Buccaneers Popular

Typical comments were: Gerald M. Weeks for "Buccaneers": "Because of the pirate heritage of the Tampa area, this would serve as a definite link between USF and Tampa, and a rallying point for the student body."

Bob Van Hook, also for the "Buccaneers": "I think a lot of angles could be worked from it; newspaper name, annual, band uniforms, and sexy female pirate costumes for cheerleaders and majorettes."

Name Blends Well

The "Buccaneers" also was spoken for by Dan Hersey, who believes that the name "blends in with the local surroundings and the history of Tampa."

The "Golden Brahma" was the choice of Porky Fleming, who said, "Years ago, Florida began to import the brahma bull because it could withstand the tropical weather here. It is responsible for Florida's eminence in the cattle-raising field."

Dr. Dean Is Back From Haitian Trip

Dr. Harris W. Dean, professor of education at the University of South Florida, went to Haiti last week on an evaluation trip for the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Dr. Dean, a member of the association's Latin American Committee, inspected the union school in Haiti. The school, operated for Americans and a limited number of Haitians, runs from kindergarten through high school and recently applied for accreditation.

OUR MAN AT THE CAPE

Campus Times Reporter Covers Schirra Shoot

By JAMES GLADSTONE

I arrived at Cape Canaveral at 2 a.m. As normal procedure before going to the Cape, I received my accreditation from NASA at the Cape Colony Motel News Center.

Then I proceeded to the Cape, arriving at the south gate at approximately 2:30 a.m. and waited for the 3 o'clock bus to the press site. I arrived on the press site at 3:15, and set up my camera. I then looked up some old friends from former Mercury shoots to get their opinions on whether everything would go A-O-K., as the astronauts say.

At approximately 4 a.m., the astronaut left Hanger S, entered the van and proceeded to pad #14 where he entered the Sigma 7 capsule to begin his manual check of the equipment in the capsule.

The only difficulty which held up this shoot was a radar station in the Canary Islands. This turned out to be a minor difficulty and all systems were "go" at 7 a.m. At 7:15, astronaut Walter Schirra lifted off of pad 14 in a very unusual manner.

He was the first astronaut to lift off at original time for take-off. We in the press area were very jubilant, and people were shouting, "Go, Walter, go!" I might add, it was an excellent day for pictures.

Among the other correspondents were Roy Neal, NBC-TV, Walter Cronkite, CBS-TV, and Jules Bergman, ABC-TV. There were also dignitaries from out of state: Gov. Orville Faubus of Arkansas, and many other Southern governors. They watched the launching from the top of Mercury Central Control

Press facilities provided for the news media were an ambulance on call, emergency power, and a chuck wagon. The emergency power system is used only in cases of abortion by the Mercury capsule. All other power on the Cape would be turned off immediately upon proclamation of an accident.

Forward Medical Center has approximately ten specialists ranging from a brain surgeon to a specialist in bones. These men are used only whenever there is a special need for them anywhere in the world, but they are stationed at the Cape.

Astronaut Walter M. Schirra, 39-year-old commander in the U.S. Navy, orbited higher than any previous man in space including the Russians—170 miles.

and I think we should recognize and honor this."

Mike Talber thought of the "Golden Brahma" as a "symbol of strength and beauty."

Of his choice, the "Buccaneers," Bob Bobier said, "It's a romantic symbol and would fit right in with Tampa's festivities."

Some Disagree

Not every one was enthusiastic, however. Carol Wolfgang observed, "I don't have any right to complain because I didn't vote or suggest a mascot, but I didn't really like any of them." And one student who asked for obvious reasons to remain anonymous thought the whole idea corny and ridiculous.

Michael Forrester, who voted for Buccaneers, had this to say: "The contest was rather sloppily run; it was very inconsistent. Brahmas was not the best choice, but it will have to do. Suzanne Shackelford, sophomore from Plant City: "The contest was run all right. I did not like the selection of Brahma Bull; however, I did not like very many of the entrants anyway."

Choice Was Fair

George Bukota: "Brahmas was one of the better choices. Declaring it the winner over Buccaneers was the only fair thing to do, since Buccaneers is used by Pensacola College."

Sue Stuart, Tarpon Springs sophomore: "I don't like the choice of Golden Brahmas. I can't see where it will fit into academic or extracurricular activities. I feel there should be a re-vote, so that those who voted for Buccaneers could get a chance to make their own second choice."

Mike Wheeler: "Mascots of the other state institutions should have been ruled out before voting began. I do not like the Brahmas, but I did not like the other choices either, although I like Brahmas better than Buccaneers."

Now that the contest is over students are taking more interest in it; because they know what's going on. Now, I feel that the contest could really be a success, and should be re-organized and re-voted upon."

New Contest Requested

Ann Foster, junior from Tampa, commented: "I don't like Golden Brahmas as a mascot choice. I feel we should have another election, and the entire contest should be reorganized." Jeff Thorne: "I liked the Brahmas. I thought the contest was carried out in the only fair way possible: giving everyone a chance to enter."

The campus edition was very helpful in acquainting students with the contest entrants and results. The contest cartoons were especially cute."

Mary McAvoy had this to say: "I like the Brahma; I think it's pretty cute. I thought the contest was conducted very well, although I'm sure many students did not vote."

Yvonne Suarez, a freshman from Tampa also approved of the choice of Golden Brahmas. She added that she felt, "choosing Brahmas was only fair, since Buccaneers is used by another state institution."

Group Selects Buccaneers Over Brahmas As Mascot

New Winner Gets Nod After Question Resolved

EDITORIAL

Just a Lot of Bull?

The USF campus has recently witnessed the culmination of an interesting set of events which began last spring—the great mascot turnover.

The Student Association, in a lightning burst of speed during the last stages of the 1962 spring semester, had a rash of business meetings. At one of these meetings it was suddenly discovered that USF was ordering class rings for 1964.

When the representatives of the ring company presented their designs to the assembled council, all ideas were approved. There was a hitch, however, when the businessmen announced that they had left one side of the ring blank for the school mascot. What mascot?

The majority of the council did not wish to accept the Executive's officer's suggestion of a sailfish on the class ring and all agreed that the students should select the mascot. Plans were made to arrange this the group was told.

This was the last talk of a mascot until the University Center announced at the end of the summer session that they would shoulder the burden of instigating a contest if the Student Association would handle the affair from there. Here occurred the first passing of the buck.

Then in an executive announcement, the council members were informed that at their second meeting of the fall season, they would become an electoral college to select fifteen semi-finalists from among the various entries.

At this meeting, Don Gordon, of the UC Program council and representative to the Executive Council, presented the long list of entries to the assembled council for their discussion and selection. In the true fashion of the Executive Council, the names were banded in loose discussion. Several names were known to be mascots to other schools and were not considered in the voting. Since no one introduced a resolution to the effect that those entries that were mascots of other universities should be disqualified, these names went on to become finalists.

When Buccaneers copped the prize by a huge margin of three votes, Duane Lake, director of the University Center made a long distance call to Pensacola, and was told that their mascot title was Buccaneers. Gordon, who by now had lost much sleep over the contest, decided that the Buccaneers would win first prize in the contest by rights, but that the second place Brahmas should take the title.

Since then, the judiciary committee has met and decided that Buccaneers is the official USF mascot. Another long distance call had been made, this time to the president of Pensacola, J. C., who said that their official name is the Pirates.

Whatever the name is, many students are unhappy about the way in which the contest was run. Some names did not get in the running since the chairman of the contest did not deem them worthy. Worthy or not, they were entries and entitled to being open to public decisions of unworthiness.

The whole difficulty in the contest fiasco seems to be a general round robin of buck passing and inability to work together. Groups in power seem not to have the pride and perseverance to carry through in a thorough manner the projects which they have started.

Now that the mascot and the Constitutional revisions have been passed by 10 per cent of the student body, many of these voters are demanding a run-off between Buccaneers and the Brahmas with a narrow margin of three votes difference.

The run-off may not have been stipulated in the contest, but when we analyze the contest history, we find that many of the contest rules were ad-libbed when deemed necessary. We feel that a three-vote margin does not indicate an overwhelming desire on the students' part for the Buccaneers to reign at USF.

A moment of truth should occur in the arena between the Buccaneer and the Golden Brahma.—L.M.S.

By SARAH CALDWELL

A 12-member judiciary committee has decided that the plurality winner of the mascot contest, "Buccaneers," will serve as the USF mascot.

The "Golden Brahma" was previously designated mascot pending the decision of the committee. The conflict came as a result of a report that Pensacola Junior College had already claimed buccaneers as their mascot.

A long distance telephone call to the president of Pensacola J.C., uncovered the fact that Pensacolians are known as "Pirates."

In view of this information, the committee decided that student vote had already chosen "Buccaneers," and since there was no duplication, it was not up to them to change the decision.

This information came on Wednesday, Oct. 3, almost one week after the close of the contest, and was reported to President Allen before the public announcement.

Taken into consideration by the committee was the small vote—10 per cent of the qualified voters, and the fact that "Buccaneers" won over "Brahmas" by only three votes.

Serving on the committee were: Dean Battle, college of education; Robert Dennard, business manager; John Egerton, editor of the news bureau; Duane Lake, director of the university center; Dean Milligan, college of business administration; Dean French, dean of academic affairs; Sarah Caldwell, Don Gordon, Bob Connell, Frank Meiners and Skipper Smith.

More on The Forged ID Investigation

The Campus Edition has been informed that there has recently been forging of voter registration cards and of selective service cards for students at USF.

A campus official told of discussing the matter with a local FBI agent, but when contacted by the Campus Edition the agent refused to comment, and the local Selective Service Board and the supervisor of voting registration for Hillsborough County all denied knowledge of the violations.

Use of forged voter registration cards is a misdemeanor, carrying a penalty of $100 or 30-60 days in jail, but any person who alters, forges, or in any manner changes a selective service certificate violates a federal regulation, and may be fined up to $10,000 or be imprisoned for not more than five years, or both.

The Campus Times learned that the forged voter registration cards involved girls, and the Selective Service cards are being used illegally in Hillsborough County.

This investigation coincides with the current State Beverage Commission investigation of forged student identification cards, reported in the Oct. 1 issue of the Campus Edition.

STUDENT'S EYE-VIEW

Cripples Most

By LORETTA GOLDSTEIN

Do you have tired muscles? Over-all body fatigue? Respiratory weakness? If these symptoms sound familiar, you are probably one of those unfortunates enrolled in the supposedly "crip" course of Functional Physical Education. After a summer of relaxation and little strenuous exercise (teasing her hair, getting into a tight bathing suit) a girl finds herself taking quite a beating in the phase of USF's physical fitness program known as "motor ability" tests.

Parallel to President Kennedy's aspirations of a physically fit America, this program sums up USF's picture of total fitness. Included in this series is the tennis ball bounce. Aptly named, this test is to reveal responses to the stimulating experience of throwing and retrieving a tennis ball 10 times in succession as quickly as ineptitude permits. Sounds simple, doesn't it?

Compared to the test just illustrated, John Q. Student is totally unprepared for what is to follow: The 220-yard dash. This event, unlike those preceding it, is run with both sexes simultaneously, and it is interesting to watch the crush for a rear position in vain hope that no one will be around to notice in the event (and there were a few) that the fairer sex maintained the advantage.

At the starting flag, the dust rose as the contestants pushed themselves relentlessly on, breath coming in short gasps, legs weak from the unaccustomed exercise, as they approached their final goal, the 220-yard line. Collapsing over the line, they manage a tired request for their time. The reassuring reply given, they make their way to the the PE building in eager anticipation of tomorrow's class.

Sheriff's Father Dies at 79

R. Ed Blackburn Sr., 79, former Tampa tax assessor and father of Sheriff Ed Blackburn, died last night at Tampa General Hospital. He had suffered a stroke last Monday.

A resident of 6002 Suwannee, Mr. Blackburn had resided in Tampa for 62 years, having come here from DeSoto County in 1900. A native of Dade City, he married Mary Edmondson in 1909 at Plant City. Mr. Blackburn has been active in many facets of the business world. For many years he was a special agent for the Prudential Insurance Co. and operated his own real estate and insurance office. At the time of his death he was with Jackson Logan, Inc., insurance firm.

He served two years of a four-year term as city tax assessor from 1943 to 1945. At this time the office was consolidated with that of the county tax assessor.

Survivors include his widow; son, R. E. Blackburn Jr.; a daughter, Mrs. Mary Jane Glove of Tampa, and three grandchildren. Blount Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Negro Dentist Seeks Georgia Senate Seat

ATLANTA Oct. 8 (UPI) — Dr. Roy Bell, Negro dentist and leader in the local desegregation movement, announced yesterday his candidacy for a seat in Georgia's newly-reapportioned state senate.

He is the first Negro since Reconstruction Days to seek a seat in the Georgia Legislature. Bell, special projects director of the Rev. Martin Luther King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), is seeking to represent the 35th District. It is one of seven senate districts in Fulton (Atlanta) County and one of the two made up predominately of Negroes.

"I will seek everyone's support in my efforts to make this a better community in which to live," Bell said. "I believe by successfully seeking public office I will be better able to serve all of the people of the community in which I live."

Fulton County formerly had one senate seat.

U.S. Doubling Viet Nam Helicopter Force

The United States is almost doubling its helicopter force in South Viet Nam. In addition to two new Army companies of just-arrived 20 H-21 helicopters, two more are on the way and a company of new Hula jet turbine choppers has been arriving piecemeal over the past two and a half months. The additions will give the U.S. a total of 184 helicopters in Viet Nam. Informal sources say the goal is one company for each of Viet Nam's nine Army divisions, or a total of 204. All but the 20 Hulas are capable of carrying a squad of troops each.

European Drift Back to Algeria Seen

French officials see hopeful signs of what could be the beginnings of a drift back to Algeria by the 600,000 Europeans who fled to France. For the first time since last June, the numbers of returnees has exceeded the numbers of those still fleeing to France by boat and plane. Algeria desperately needs French technicians and French know-how.

De Gaulle Confident on Referendum

President Charles de Gaulle remains supremely confident that the French people will back him solidly in the Oct. 28 constitutional referendum. De Gaulle is demanding changes to make the French president elected directly by the people. He is opposed by politicians who see in his plan for a strong presidency the end of the parliamentary system. De Gaulle's confidence is not reflected by some political experts who believe he might obtain no more than, and possibly less than, 60 per cent of the vote. In such an event, De Gaulle might decide to quit.

SCHOOL BIBLE READING

High Court Faces New Religion Issues

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (UPI)—The Supreme Court faced more religion-in-school problems today at its first business session of the 1962-63 term.

These were among the issues the justices have been grappling with in private conference during the past week. The appeals came in during the summer adjournment.

Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, who was sworn in last Monday, has been having his first look "behind the scenes." In past years as a top-flight labor attorney he has argued important cases at the high court's bar. A kind of sequel to last term's

New York prayer decision developed from challenges of a Baltimore mother and a Unitarian couple in Abington Township, Pa., to Bible reading as part of public school opening exercises.

In the Baltimore case, recitation of the Lord's Prayer also was an issue. The Lord's Prayer is used in Abington Township, too, but it is not required by state law and is not a factor in the suit.

If the court agrees to examine these disputes, it will hear arguments some time this term and later will hand down written opinions.

Last June 25 the court ruled that state officials may not compose a prayer and compel its use in public schools. It forbade use in New Hyde Park, N.Y., schools of a non-denominational prayer written by the state board of regents.

The Maryland and Pennsylvania cases now being appealed were decided in opposite ways by lower courts.

A special three-judge federal panel in Philadelphia last Feb. 1 ruled Bible reading an unconstitutional "establishment of religion."

The case was started by Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Schempp, who have two children in the Abington Township schools.

The Maryland Court of Appeals, on the other hand, upheld the Bible reading. Mrs. Madalyn E. Murray, who describes herself as an atheist, appealed that ruling. Her son, William J. Murray III, is in a Baltimore school.

Other appeals where religion plays a part deal with an Oregon law under which parochial schools are supplied with textbooks at public expense, and a Kentucky case challenging the leasing to a Roman Catholic organization of a city-county hospital built with public funds.

UC Slates New Activities

By JACKIE MONTES

"College Unions: Image and Reality" will be the theme of the Region IV Association of College Unions Conference to be held in Greensboro, N.C. this week. The conference will convene at the Women's College of North Carolina.

Representing USF at this conference will be Bob Connell, Rena Antinori, Tish Gabel, and Ann Frances. The group will travel by automobile with Mrs. Phyllis Marshall, program advisor. While enroute to and from Greensboro, they will have the opportunity to visit several Southeastern campuses, including Duke, N.C. State College, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and Wake Forest College at Winston-Salem.

The conference will begin Thursday, Oct. 11, and end Saturday, Oct. 13. The delegates will be housed at the Holiday House in Greensboro.

The recreation committee of the University Center is sponsoring a moonlight cruise Saturday, Oct. 27. The cruise will take place from 8 to 12 p.m. Those who plan to attend would be at the Tampa City Docks promptly at 8 p.m. The cruise will be on the "Miss Pinellas" and will go to the Skyway Bridge and then return to the dock. Music is provided by "The Casuals," a local band, and refreshments will be available. Dress for this occasion will be casual. The cruise will be under the supervision of Larry Hilker.

Tickets for the cruise are $4.00 per couple. A $1.00 deposit must be made by Wednesday, Oct. 17, and the final payment made by Wednesday, Oct. 24.

The Recreation Committee is making plans for a bicycle outing. Early November is the time which has been tentatively speculated for the event.

The first jazz and poetry session for the fall trimester will begin at 1:25 p.m. in UC 264 on Thursday, Oct. 11. Sponsored by the Music Committee, the event will feature jazz by a combo of professional musicians in the Tampa Bay area, and poetry read by members of USF's Peninsular Players, Jim Woodall and John Sikes.

Night Club
October 13 will be the opening date of USF's night club. The "Poise 'n' Ivy" tickets for the dance will be on sale all week at the U.C. desk and are $2.00 per couple. There will be only 200 tickets available. Each ticket provides for table reservation, refreshments, and entertainment during intermission. A different band will be featured each month. This Saturday Bob Lake and his band will provide the music.

USF Art Is Shown

Two university professors and three students have works of art on display in the Non-Juried Members Exhibit now open at the Tampa Art Institute. They are art professors: Harrison Covington and Claude W. Houk and art students: Roberta Hanson, Jim Felter and Robert Stackhouse.

Theatrics Conference Scheduled

The annual convention of the Florida Theater Conference has been scheduled for Oct. 20 and 21 at the University of South Florida, with 100 to 150 representatives of community, college and professional theaters from throughout the state expected to attend.

Production of Shakespearean plays and musicals will be discussed at the convention and an example of each will be staged for the convention delegates. The Peninsular Players of the University of South Florida will present a special matinee performance of "Hamlet" Oct. 20, and Tampa Community Theater will stage the musical "Damn Yankees" Oct. 21.

Directing for the Peninsular Players will be Jack Clay, assistant professor of fine arts at USF. Anita Granis will direct the Community Theater production.

Guest speaker at the convention will be Alan Freedman, a young Broadway director well qualified to discuss both types of productions. He has had considerable experience in directing Shakespearean plays and his musical credits include last spring's Broadway production of "The Gay Life" and the London production of "West Side Story" and "Bells Are Ringing."

University Choir Officers Elected

By CHARLOTTE FRESE

The UNIVERSITY CHOIR has new officers and new ideas. The new officers, recently elected to serve for 1962-63, are: President, Jean Casagrande; vice president, Richard J. Winters; secretary-treasurer, Patricia Williams; librarians, James Rogers and Gerald Brandon; publicity and historian, JoAnn Porter; fine arts council representative, Averill Vanderprie; sectional librarians, Gerald Brandon, Jean Casagrande, Judy Rheinberger, and Suzanne Russell.

One of the new ideas that the choir plans to put into effect is the holding of open rehearsals. These rehearsals will give students, faculty, and friends an opportunity to view the group in actual rehearsal. The dates for the rehearsals, which will be held in the University Center, will be announced later.

The SAILING CLUB will hold a meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 9, at the free hour. Anyone interested in sailing is invited to attend. The Physical Education Department is making arrangements to purchase one Thistle and two Flying Jrs.

The club will also have access to an additional Flying Jr. for regattas. The Davis Island Yacht Club has agreed to let the club use their launching and storage facilities. In addition to participating in regattas, the club will offer sailing classes for the beginners. For further

Abstract Art Won't Disturb The Emotions

Someone has said that abstract art is "action painting." If this is so, the exhibit of the "New Water Colors from France" in the University Gallery depicts a range of "action" that is as wide as a gamut of the emotion.

The clashing shapes and forbidding colors hurtling across the canvases, certainly evoke a sensation of suffering, which the artist must have felt as he painted.

On the other hand the soft harmonies of tones in some of the paintings suggest a peaceful mood. Landscapes are suggested by myriad unexpected forms.

These paintings deal with nature, man, and the spirits, as the artists saw them, reduced to color and form. The absence of the disciplines used in realistic paintings leaves each viewer to see what he wishes in the swirling colors and forms.

The paintings are easy to live with as the mind and emotions are not disturbed by them, and the imagination is free to see what he wishes in them, as you might feel free to evoke whatever images you wished in watching the clouds on a summer day.

name of the club in this way: "The name of the club is meant to convey a collegiate theme (ivy) and still maintain a somewhat sophisticated night club atmosphere. Poise."

The "Meet the Author" coffee was cancelled last week due to the illness of Mr. Richard Glendinning, who was admitted to the hospital in Sarasota. It is anticipated that USF will have Mr. Glendinning back later in the school year.

Art Exhibit

The Arts and Exhibits Committee of the University Center, under the leadership of Jean Casagrande, is presenting its second art exhibit of the trimester. Paintings by members of the Tampa Art Institute will be on display for two weeks in the Gallery Lounge (UC108) of the University Center. The show contains paintings of both professional and amateur artists, and offers a wide variety of styles and media.

Freshman Awarded $200 Scholarship

Phyllis Solomon, University of South Florida freshman, has been awarded a $200 scholarship by the North Tampa Business and Professional Women's Club.

The scholarship, named the Eleanor Gilbert Memorial Scholarship in honor of the late former president of the club, is given annually to a girl student selected by the university.

Lyle Gilbert, husband of the late Mrs. Gilbert, has assisted the club with donations to the scholarship fund. Club members Mrs. Shirley Dibble and Mrs. Delores Johnson, daughters of Mrs. Gilbert, made the check presentation to the university.

Miss Solomon, a graduate of King High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Solomon, 3405 54th St.

The sisters have challenged Siges to a "four worse" bowling match to be played in the near future. This is an annual event between the two societies.

I-M ACTIVITIES

Women Begin I-M's Today

By RICHARD OPPEL

The 62-63 Intramurals got off to a good start this past week with the men's bowling tourney comprising the only actual participation. However, the Intramural office has been a hub of activity as team managers, representatives, and officials met with I-M coordinator

Murphy Osborne to work the wrinkles out of the intramural calendar for this trimester.

One of the meetings brought forth the election of officers of the intramural managers. John Ward, president; Betty Jane Salem, vice president; Eileen Strout, secretary, and Roger Weaver, treasurer, will be at the helm this trimester.

The Nov. 17 field-day was discussed during the meetings. If approved, this event could very well prove to be the "University Olympics" of the year!

This afternoon the women bowlers begin blasting the timber as they initiate their tourney. At 4:30 Siges is scheduled to take on Paleida, while Antiphides is matched with Tri-Sis. The seventeen teams entered is the largest number ever in any girl's intramural event.

The following is this week's schedule of bowling contests among intramural teams (all contests begin at 4:30 p.m. at Florida Lanes):

Monday—Siges vs. Paleida; Antiphides vs. Tri-Sis. Tuesday—Delphi vs. Fla No. 1; Fla No. 2 vs. Tri-Sis. Wednesday—Fides vs. Alpha East IV; Alpha West II No. 1 vs. Alpha East IV; Thursday—Alpha West IV vs. Alpha West II; Alpha West III vs. Alpha West II No. 2; Alpha West II.

Most of the Work-Study students believe their experience will prove valuable in their future work and studies. The aim of the program is to balance work experience with formal education, blending theory with practice, according to George H. Miller, director of Work-Study.

Students interested in signing up for the program, including first semester freshmen, should pick up an application in the Work-Study Office, AD 1070. At present, there are a number of openings for business administration, liberal arts, engineering, and education majors. Students desiring placement with the Space Administration should make application immediately as it frequently takes several months to gain security clearance. The next work period will start Dec. 31.

Employers and students participating in the current work period include:

First Federal Savings & Loan Assoc. of Tampa—John S. Carr. First National Bank of Tampa—Manuel Baleserio, Jr. Florida Power Corp., offices in St. Petersburg—Gerald Heley.

General Telephone Co.—David H. Brewer. General Electric Co., Pinellas Park Plant—Lawrence Valdes. Hillsborough County Board of Public Instruction—Max Hudson and Jack Thornburgh at East Bay High School; Martha Cerra at Forrest Hills Elementary School; Sandra Hazelton at the library, Buchanan Junior High School; Clayton J. Keiser at the library, Chamberlain High School; Diane C. Fernandez and Thomas F. Clark, library, School Service Center; and Miriam Tanenhaus, guidance office, Plant High School.

International Minerals and Chemical Corp., Bartow—Joe L. Saunders. Maas Brothers, Tampa downtown store—Danio Bazo. Northside Bank of Tampa—Howard Jamieson.

Polk County Board of Public Instruction, Bartow—Sharyn Symes. Pinellas County Board of Public Instruction—Morton S. Poll at Board offices in Clearwater.

Orange County Board of Public Instruction—Carol Boynton. Paul Smith Construction Co.—Richard Hernandez. Hillsborough County Board of Public Assistance—Clyfford Fischer at Tampa General Hospital.

University of South Florida—Sarah Platt at USF Library, and Fred Jenkins, assistant program adviser, University Center. National Aeronautics and Space Administration—George Van Arsdale, James Gary Lindebert, Mary Ann Hauswald, Douglas McDuffie, Robert Mims,

On Oct. 12, the Smothers Brothers will appear in a show at Tampa Municipal Auditorium. Tickets for the event are available in Mr. Duane Lake's office in the UC.

Loren Padelford, Melvyn Phillips, Gary Rhoden, Paul Rice, James E. Scott, Glenn V. Swanson, and Clifford Wood, all at the Launch Operations Center at Cape Canaveral; and James S. Douglas, Larry Felix, Michael Foley, Jr., P. Wayne Meriwether, Richard J. Gold, Julian Cannon, and Parks Miller, III, all at the George Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala.

These 42 students will remain on their work period until Dec. 28 at which time they will be replaced by students now on campus.

STRING QUARTET

Performance Gets Good Reception

The University String Quartet gave its first performance of the year last Tuesday evening in the TA. And what a performance it was. The quartet reached an early climax as their rendering of Beethoven's Quartet in C Major, Opus 59, No. 3, left little to be desired.

The first movement, reputed to be the most difficult to interpret, was handled magnificently. The second movement was highlighted by the pizzicato of cellist, Margery Enix. The entire work was, on the whole, profoundly executed in the intonations and other technical aspects. The depth of understanding reached its zenith in the Fugue, perhaps the finest single performance of the evening.

The last two selections were outshone by Beethoven, but gave the audience an excellent comparison of styles. Quartet No. 1, Opus 49, is the best work of Shostakovich in the last 25 years. It shows more imagination than any other comparable work in the contemporary period.

The final selection of the evening, Glazunov's Four Nocturnes, Opus 15, is most unique. It features music unusually light for a string quartet. Its only shortcoming is, perhaps, that Glazunov uses more conventional harmony and thereby does not fully capture the expressiveness available in the various themes.

In closing, I personally believe that anyone who does not avail themselves of the next opportunity to hear one of the finest string quartets in the South is doing himself a grave injustice.—L.S.

Directing for the Peninsular Players will be Jack Clay, assistant professor of fine arts at USF. Anita Granis will direct the Community Theater production.

Guest speaker at the convention will be Alan Freedman, a young Broadway director well qualified to discuss both types of productions. He has had considerable experience in directing Shakespearean plays and his musical credits include last spring's Broadway production of "The Gay Life" and the London production of "West Side Story" and "Bells Are Ringing."

Information contact Ed Taubman. All students interested in the visual arts are invited to attend the meetings of BOEFA, Thursday in UC 205, during the free hour at 1:25 p.m. This is a student organization established to promote the visual arts at USF.

Members of the organization plan sketching trips, exhibits, and art auctions. Plans are now being made for a competitive exhibit in which the winner will receive an art supply scholarship. Any fine arts or art education major with a 2.3 grade point average and six hours or more of art studio is eligible and should contact Ron Bouvrot, BOEFA president, for further details.

The CIVITAN CLUB will meet Wednesday, Oct. 10, at 4:30 p.m. The meeting will be held in UC 167. There will be a meeting for all students interested in joining an intramural JUDO CLUB, Wednesday, Oct. 10 in UC 257.

ARETE: As one of their various service projects ARETE has made plans to visit the Florida Boys' Ranch. Brothers and pledges have volunteered their services for this Saturday.

Officers of the new pledge class of ARETE are: President, Pete Adamag; vice president, Bill Worley; secretary-treasurer, Sam Lewis.

CIEO: The brothers of CIEO have offered their services to the Physical Education Department for the development of athletic facilities.

Plans are now under way for a hayride this month and a formal dinner and dance to be held in November.

ENOTAS: Newly elected officers of Enotas are: Recording secretary, Joe Hill; corresponding secretary, Glenn Ellis. Milt Presley was elected parliamentarian of the CFS.

A dance was held Saturday at the Phi Delta Kappa House. The Downbeats and Skylarks played for dancing.

Enotas have accepted an invitation from Fides to play them in a volleyball game Tuesday, Oct. 9.

TALOS: John Zien has been elected chairman of the pledge class. The brothers entertained the pledges at a pledge dance. Talos is planning a car wash in the near future.

ETHELONTES: Formal initiation was held Saturday at the home of pledge captain, Patsy Robles. A spaghetti dinner was also held at which time pledges were presented favors. An informal party was held following the initiation.

The sisters have challenged Siges to a "four worse" bowling match to be played in the near future. This is an annual event between the two societies.

The sisters are in the midst of organizing intramural teams and hope to retain their activities championship.
