New Business

USFSP ethics and compliance initiative

Dr. White and Dr. Elliott presented their vision of an initiative to create a “climate where learning and creativity thrives.” Dr. Elliott is spearheading the effort to develop an office to promote positive community and collegial relationships, and serve as the primary facilitator between the St. Petersburg campus and the USF Ethics and Compliance Program. The proposed new office will provide assistance in addressing expressions of concern raised by individuals or referring administrators; provide resource information relating to ethics in higher education as well as relevant rules and regulations; and enhance ethical culture by providing workshops and presentations to promote ethically ideal action. Although there are offices on the campus that deal with the specifics of legal rules, regulations, statistics, and compliance, this initiative is directed towards the broader goal of creating an environmental or campus culture where all are valued.

Dr. Elliott described the new web site that is being developed and invited Council members to visit and provide feedback. The web site compiles useful information, names of contact people, and promotes programs / lectures that pertain to this effort. Dr. Elliott is providing funds from her Chair to support a program series currently being organized. She will also be attending various meeting and forums around the country, collaborating with other organizations that are exploring similar projects.

The presentation was followed by general discussion and Council members made some suggestions.
