THREE JOLLY CAMPAIGNERS

Graduate Study Openings

The need for post-graduate study and opportunities for fellowships and scholarships in this area will be discussed in an open meeting Thursday, 1:25, in CH-100.

A committee of professors and deans was assigned some time ago to explore the possibilities and opportunities for education beyond the bachelor's degree. Dr. Samuel Smith, assistant professor of history, is chairman of this committee.

Smith says, "The primary function of the committee is to advise the graduate study possibilities and the need for graduate students. It is important that juniors and even sophomores begin thinking about graduate study now."

For students' general information, the committee has collected several books and a box of recently published material about fellowships at particular colleges and placed them in the reference room of the library for easy access.

At the meeting on Thursday Dr. Herbert Wunderlich, dean of student affairs, will talk about the primary fellowships and scholarships offered for graduate study. Dr. Edwin Martin, dean of basic studies, will talk about the need for graduate students in today's world. A question and answer discussion period will follow the speakers' talks.

Math, Science Tests

Proficiency tests in Math and Science are to be given Thursday, Jan. 24. Students intending to take any mathematics or science courses beyond the Basic Studies level who have not taken the test should report to LY 516 between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m.

Buckley Lectures On Jan. 22

William F. Buckley Jr., editor of "National Review" and a leading spokesman for conservatism, will speak Tuesday, Jan. 22, at 8:30 p.m. at the University of South Florida.

Buckley, who is a best-selling author and a nationally syndicated columnist, will lecture on "Views of an American Conservative."

He first received national attention in 1951 with the publication of his best-selling book, "God and Man at Yale," which dealt with questions on what today's students are being taught. Later works included "McCarthy and His Enemies," an examination of the controversial senator and loyalty and security practices in government; "Up from Liberalism" and "The Committee and Its Critics," a symposium on the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Buckley, a native of New York, studied in England and France before entering the Army in World War II. He was graduated with honors from Yale where he was chairman of the college paper.

He is well known as a speaker and debater and has lectured throughout the United States in personal appearances and on television and radio programs.

Profiles and descriptions of his work have appeared in "Time," "Esquire," "Mademoiselle," "Information" and The Catholic World, and an Associated Press feature of Buckley appeared in some 350 newspapers in 1961.

All students and staff are urged to attend.

Campaign Speeches Hit SA Of Present And Past

Candidates Press Bids For Stronger Government

By LOUISE STEWART

To the tune of "Anchors Aweigh," "The Marine Hymn," and a few other rousing martial tunes, a couple hundred (more or less) students gathered to listen to the campaign speeches last Thursday.

Many people stayed in the background to listen to the speeches given on the west side of the library 'neath the open skies. They were apparently reluctant to brave the flies, spiders and tickly grass suffered by yours truly to get the campaign report.

Beginning rather slowly, the campaign picked up tempo as the rank of the offices picked up. Everyone seemed to agree that the present student association is weak and that we can strengthen it, though many did not elaborate upon how to accomplish the task.

Speaking first for the office of president, Fred Frey said that the present association's weakness lies in a lack of student interest in the affairs of the SA. He urged more student at-large participation in official matters.

Lee Lombardia expressed much the same feeling in his speech. "Students," he said, "are not taking full advantage of their opportunities." He felt that there should be much more constructive work taking place in the SA parliamentary sessions.

Speaking last on the presidential group was Larry Pendarvis, who is running on the basic idea: "Effective student government or none!" Pendarvis declared that the student association should not exist merely as a buffer obscuring the administration from the students. "Since," he says, "no magic will create student interest... I shall institute accurate scientific polling of student opinion on major issues."

Second only to these three candidates, the senators caused the most furor with their free-wheeling speeches.

Some of these candidates accused the SA of never making a strong stand on any issue, while others further attacked the body as merely being a puppet of the administration. The newly formed political PRP party advocated clearing up the "boondoggle" of student elections. Another candidate expressed a devotion to the university itself rather than to vague principles or administration.

Senatorial candidates are: Sarah Caldwell, Roscoe Davidson, Bob Erwin, David Fleer, Marsha Gayle Jones, Dave Jordan, Dave Kaufman, "J" Keiser, Charlie Money, Don Muse, and Frank Martinus.

Candidates for representative at-large are Joe Beckham, Bob Blunt, Bob Dubay, Henry Fernandez, Kathy Ladd, Mickey Laurence, Cliff Opp, and Larry Vickers.

For vice president are: Tal Bray, Louis Chalifoux, and Dick Wheeler. For treasurer are: Milt Pressley and Nicky Rockwell.

For the recording and corresponding secretaries are: Roni Lerner, Rosemary Taylor, and Rosemary Oelrich.

Ear-Speech Center Offers Therapy

By FRANCES FREEMAN

"Sorry, I couldn't quite catch what you said." This is a typical remark from a student who finally finds his way to the Speech and Hearing Center for help. Although every student who enters the university is screened for speech or hearing deficiencies, some defects go unobserved. It is then the student's own responsibility to make an appointment for further testing and assistance.

Dr. Harris I. Pomerantz, head of the speech and hearing therapy staff, insists that lack of motivation on the part of the student is the biggest problem to overcome. Many are unwilling to admit any deficiency and resent attempts at therapy. For this reason the student is usually permitted to hear a tape of his voice before beginning a corrective program.

Communication
The primary concern of the Speech and Hearing Center is communication. The staff works toward the successful development of the mechanics of speech which include articulation, stuttering, structural deviation of the mouth, organic disorders of the larynx, and extreme accents.

A more rarely encountered problem is language deviation due to emotional and brain disorders. Nevertheless, the department is not involved with the aesthetic qualities of speech. The student who can speak successfully as far as mechanics are concerned but desires further instruction is referred to the standard speech classes.

Limits On Coherence
A speech or hearing deficiency naturally limits understanding. It is for this reason that the university requires a speech and hearing test for every student. Anyone who finds that he has a weakness in either phase of communication should ask for assistance.

The Speech and Hearing Center is located in the Development Office in the Administration Building.

Congo Missionary To Speak at USF
The Rev. Ben Clay Hobgood, a missionary of the Christian Churches, Disciples of Christ, to the Congo, will speak at USF Wednesday, Jan. 23, at 1:25 p.m. in CH 100.

Baptist Students Union, in cooperation with the Florida Chain of Missions sponsors him. The missionary and his wife have been under appointment to the Congo since 1955.

'Jazz Week' To Feature Blues Theme

This week has been designated as "Jazz Week" on the USF campus. The kick-off will be a stereo hour tomorrow during the free hour, in the television lounge.

Bob Gower and Yvonne Bentley of the University Center music committee will be in charge of the program, presenting music by Dave Brubeck, "Dizzy" Gillespie, Sarah Vaughan, Al Hirt and George and Ira Gershwin.

Another traditional USF-style jazz and poetry session will be held Thursday at 3:35 p.m. in the ballroom.

These sessions, and there have been six, have become one of the most popular activities on campus. Approximately 1,200 people attended the last three.

The theme this time will be "the blues." The attempt to explain what the "blues" are and what they mean will include Negro poetry, lyrics from folk songs, and contemporary blues.

Some of the poetry used in these sessions is written especially for that purpose by USF staff and students.

Dr. Sy Kahn, assistant professor of English, will be reading poetry to a background of jazz by local musicians.

X-Ray Unit Here
Hillsborough County's mobile TB X-ray unit will be on campus today through Wednesday, Jan. 21-23 outside of the University Center. The unit will be set up for service from 9-12 a.m. and 1-4 p.m.

Co-Op Education Leaders Register

Delegates from more than 50 colleges and universities from throughout the U.S. and Canada, plus an educational observer from Australia, and a like number representing business, industry, and governmental agencies register today for a three-day midwinter conference of the Cooperative Education Division of the American Society for Engineering Education.

Headquarters for the conference, which runs through Wednesday, is the Causeway Inn but most of Tuesday's sessions will be at USF, the host school.

The first day's sessions will be mainly devoted to studying the opportunities for students in the field of cooperative education. The second day the conference delegates will discuss cooperative graduate programs as well as programs in the technical and non-technical fields. Wednesday they will turn their attention to the goals set for cooperative education in the next decade.

President John S. Allen of USF will officially welcome the group Monday evening and Richard E. Dutton, project engineer, Heavy Space Vehicles System, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Launch Operation Center, Cape Canaveral, will be the banquet speaker Tuesday.

The first program in cooperative education, where students alternate between work and study, opened at the University of Cincinnati in 1906 and today more than 65 colleges and universities in the U.S. have such a program. The University of South Florida opened its program in June, 1961, as the first students reached the end of their freshman year. Today USF has more than 100 students assigned to teams in the USF program with additional expansion planned for the coming year.

Assisting with local arrangements for the conference are members of the Work-Study Cooperative Program Council at the University of South Florida including: George H. Miller, Dr. Donald Harkness, Dr. William Bott, Dr. James E. Popovich, Dr. Miles Hardy, Dr. Guy Forman, and Richard E. Pasternak, and Mrs. Binnie J. Neel, member of the USF Work-Study staff. Others from Tampa working with the committee include Ross.

JOB IS TO ARRANGE THINGS

Dean Martin Enjoys Music, Reading; Rests With Baseball

By JACK MCCLINTOCK

He sprawled in his chair so nonchalantly that I wondered how he could be comfortable, but although Dean Edwin P. Martin answered my questions with casual ease, I sensed that here was a man who took his job seriously.

"My job," he said, "is to help arrange things so that the faculty is able to devote plenty of time to their jobs: Teaching and research."

He leaned back, even farther and continued, "I do this in many ways: Hiring policies; that is, the number and kinds of people we hire; teaching loads; class schedules; course patterns—all these are methods we use." Martin was careful to point out that he can do nothing without the advice and help of the faculty.

Martin took his B.S. in zoology at Cornell College in 1947, and went for an M.A. from Kansas State in 1948; then, later, took his Ph.D. at the University of Kansas, still in zoology. He did research for some time on something called Mammalian Population Dynamics, and served for four years in the Army in western Europe.

His background also includes a stint as coordinator of the North Central Association of Schools and Colleges.

While he says that his interests include such intellectual areas as reading and music, he also enjoys watching baseball games, "both on TV and in the stadium."

Romance at Cornell

Dean Martin met his wife at Cornell when both were students; they have four children, ranging from nursery school age to the ninth grade.

Since he is Dean of Basic Studies, I asked just what "basic studies" means. He sat up, looked at his pipe, and told me that there are many definitions for the basic studies concept. "One is," he said with his pipe held just out of his mouth, "the part of university education required of everybody. Its purpose is to provide an introduction into the various kinds of education that are offered at a university." Martin said that the University of Florida requires a similar program and calls it the University College, but it is analogous to our Basic Studies program.

Research Essential
Martin hasn't done any research in nearly a year and says he misses it. He considers research an essential part of the scholar's life.

When Martin bobbed his head agreeably to my thanks for the interview, I thought, "Well there goes another illusion. When somebody says 'Dean Martin,' I'll never again be able to conjure up the image of a sad-eyed crooner with a fifth in one hand and a girl in the other." Dean Martin, to me, is now a scholar with serious and very definite ideas on education.

"THE WORLD IS A BEAUTIFUL PLACE TO BE BORN INTO" Thus spake Ferlinghetti. Many profound poetic statements crop up in the Jazz and Poetry sessions. Jim Woodall, theater arts student, and Dr. Sy Kahn, assistant professor of English, periodically get together for poetry reading to a jazz musical background. These sessions are fast becoming the best attended events on campus. Highlighting Jazz Week beginning today, is a Jazz and Poetry reading Thursday, Jan. 24 at 3:35 p.m. in the UC Ballroom. Theme is "The Blues."

Canine Sniffs Out $625 Worth of Bonds

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 21 (AP)—Aking is a dog with a sharp scent—for money.

The German shepherd, while being walked yesterday in a park, ran to a snow-covered metal box and began sniffing it.

The dog's owner, Allan Mac-hamer opened the box and found $625 worth of bonds. He turned them over to police, who said the box originally contained $3,000 worth of bonds and $40 in cash when it was stolen from a home Saturday, time 1943.

Peacetime Record

NEW YORK — U.S. copper production in 1962 set a peacetime record of 1,538,000 tons shipped, as both mine production and refined output advanced for the third consecutive year. The all-time record: 1,644,000 tons, shipped in wartime 1943.

Another delegate to the convention later apologized for the outburst.

The Republicans, split into feuding conservatives, middle-of-the-road and liberal groups even before Richard M. Nixon lost the gubernatorial race last November, called the meeting in an effort to close the breach.
