The Hazel Talley Evans Collection

The Poynter Library serves as the repository for the papers of Hazel Talley Evans (1931-1997), a longtime Pinellas County resident and activist in the local, state, and national politics. This collection includes correspondence, political ephemera, photographs, and research materials related to political campaigns from the 1960s through 1980s. The collection will be available for researchers after arrangement and conservation activities are finished. Included in this display are representative items from the Hazel Evans papers. For more information about the collection, please visit the special collections area on the third floor (room 321) or call 553-1094.
