Last Chance to See

In 1990, celebrated author Douglas Adams (The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy) and naturalist Mark Carwardine set off on a series of epic expeditions around the world to find rare and endangered animals. Carwardine provided the knowledge, experience and expertise, while Adams, in his own words, provided the ability to point at things and say, "Gosh, what's that?" The result was the book Last Chance to See. Now, 20 years after that expedition and the death of Adams in 2001, actor Stephen Fry teams up with Carwardine to celebrate the memory of their mutual friend—and to see how things have changed. Which animals still exist and which have become endangered since then? We've gotten smarter in 20 years, but are we any wiser? Aired Thursdays at 10 p.m., beginning April 7.

fresh air

Fresh Air with Terry Gross, the weekday magazine of contemporary arts and issues, is one of public radio's most popular programs. Though Fresh Air has been categorized as a "talk show," it hardly fits the mold. Its 1994 Peabody Award citation credits Fresh Air with "probing questions, revelatory interviews and unusual insights." A variety of top publications count Gross among the country's leading interviewers. The show gives interviews as much time as needed, and complements them with comments from well-known critics and commentators. Airs Monday-Friday 12-1 p.m. and reruns 7-8 p.m.
