BULL ON A RING

More Info. On Designs

The class ring design is nearly complete except for final drawing of the mascot to appear on one side of the ring. The ring will consist of a plain stone, (choice of color) with the words "University of South Florida" circling the top and these bordered by a rope of gold.

One side of the ring will contain the university seal. The other side is the one which has been under question since the ring was decided upon by the Executive Council last spring. At that time, there was no mascot. With the choosing of the mascot, comes the choosing of the design for the other side of the ring.

The matter of the ring is now in the hands of the Auxiliary service committee, headed by A. C. Rodgers, director of procurement and auxiliaries. Other members of the committee include staff members in the Auxiliary area such as the book store and housing, UC, and student personnel, plus student members of about equal number. These have seen the etching from the ring company, and have agreed on one basic design printed by the company with a modification on the facial expression of the bull. All are in agreement on the background and general set-up of the design. Recommendation has been sent by this committee and a proof of the design will be returned for final approval. The design will be reproduced in the campus edition for the benefit of the student body.

Other topics under recent discussion by this company concern the furnishing of the new core unit for the Argos residence complex, the food service sub-committee, and the matter of adding an extra towel a week for the resident students. Suggestions for the unit include the piping of music to the dining hall, movie and other recreational features. One suggestion on the food service question involved instituting greater variety of special dinners and barbecues since probably the main cause of dissatisfaction stems from the boredom involved in the meal-time routine.

Local Groups Establish USF Scholarships

A scholarship loan fund for University of South Florida students has been established by the citizens of Gadsden County and the Winn-Dixie Stores Foundation in memory of the late James Love, of Quincy. Mr. Love was chairman of the State Board of Control during the years when the University of South Florida was planned and a member of the board of directors of Winn-Dixie stores.

The scholarship loan fund represents contributions totaling $11,000, half of which was contributed by Gadsden County citizens and half by the Winn-Dixie Foundation. It will be held in deposit by the Quincy State Bank and administered by the university.

The fund will provide loans of up to $500 a year to qualified students, with Gadsden County students to be given preference.

The generosity of the citizens of Quincy and of Winn-Dixie is an expression of admiration for and devotion to James Love," USF President John S. Allen said. "I am proud to have been associated with him in his efforts to further higher education in Florida."

Robert Hess, manager of housing and food service, said that adding a fourth towel to the present three-a-week system would involve adding $1500 to the budget. The students on the auxiliary committee agreed that three towels a week are enough for anyone.

Poynter Speaks Today

President Kennedy's legislative program will be discussed here today by the co-publisher of the Congressional Quarterly News Service in CH 100 at 2:30 p.m.

Nelson Poynter, who also is editor and publisher of the St. Petersburg Times and the Evening Independent, will speak on the background and general set-up of the design. Recommendation has been sent by this committee and a proof of the design will be returned for final approval. The design will be reproduced in the campus edition for the benefit of the student body.

JUST A FRINGE BENEFIT

42 on Work-Study Earn $47,223 in Fall

While the Work-Study Program is designed primarily for students to gain experience in their professional area of interest it has a fringe benefit of earned income. And in the past trimester this fringe benefit grossed $47,223.24 for 34 men and eight women who worked with 16 employers cooperating on the program with the University of South Florida.

The average gross income for each student, according to George H. Miller, program director, was $1,124.36, which was $232 above the average of any other work period to date in the USF program.

Fourteen pre-engineering students topped the list with a combined income of $19,642.92 for an average of $1,403.07 for the work period, or an average of $87.69 a week.

Liberal Arts students ran second with 10 earning $12,937.86 for an average of $1,293.78 for the work period or an average of $80.86 a week.

Meanwhile, seven students in Business Administration earned a gross of $6,435.96, averaging $919.42 each or a weekly average of $57.46. Eleven Education majors grossed $8,206.50 for an average of $746.05, a weekly average of $46.63.

The fall trimester work period ran 16 weeks. Miller said some students started earlier than the official starting date and some worked a few days beyond which would probably push the total gross to approximately $50,000.

Currently there are 53 students out on a work period and they are expected to average slightly more than the group which reported in for the fall. The range of gross income for individual students ran from a low of $480 to a high of $1,700. The highest income, $1,700, was marked up by an engineering student, and a math major ran second with $1,600.

Currently the Work-Study Office is working on placement for the summer trimester which starts April 22. It is expected that between 60 and 75 students will be assigned to work periods during this trimester, most of them returning students from the 42 who were on a work period in the fall.

Allen Says Committee Impressed

Many students and faculty were aware last week of the presence of an evaluation committee on campus.

President John S. Allen of USF had this to say on the subject: "At our (the administration's) invitation, the State Department of Education organized a visiting team of educators from various parts of the state from public and private institutions. This team was here from Sunday afternoon until Wednesday afternoon reviewing the teacher preparation program in relation to the entire university. The members of the committee were impressed with the quality of the program and made favorable comments. Their formal recommendation will go to the state board for action some time in the near future."

FROM BROOKSVILLE TO TAMPA

USF Student Makes 50-Mile Trek USMC Style—Forced March

By RICHARD OPPEL

The now common-place 50-mile hike may be all fine and dandy, but try it Marine Corps style in a forced march and wearing a marching pack, cartridge belt, canteen, and combat boots! According to Cpl. Joe Garcia it's just a little rougher.

Corporal Garcia, alias Joe Garcia Jr., USF sophomore, is a member of the First Amphibian Tractor Battalion, USMC Reserve. Joe was one of 11 members of the battalion who finished a 50-mile forced march from Brooksville to Tampa on Feb. 17.

"We almost got hit twice—once when two trucks passed each other and once when a driver of a car intentionally swerved at us," Joe said while telling of the harrowing march down what is often reputed to be the "longest" 50 miles in Florida, U.S. 41.

Started At Brooksville The contingent, headed by Maj. James Ghiotto, left from a point two miles north of Brooksville at 12:30 a.m. Sunday morning. The men knocked off the first eight miles in only one hour and 20 minutes, but then the pace slowed to about two miles per hour.

"The first 10 miles were easy, the next two were hard, and during the next five I was ready to quit," said Joe. "Then I saw the neon sign of the truck stop which was the half-way mark about eight miles down the road and I made up my mind that if I made that I'd go all the way."

He made it all right. The group arrived at 6:30 and spent a few minutes there eating breakfast.

After that point, the Leathernecks made rest stops every two to four miles. "We'd all take off our boots and the medic would go around patching up everyone's feet," Garcia's feet held out, but he spent Monday and Tuesday at home nursing a pair of legs that were stiff as boards.

Equipment Big Factor Joe felt that the equipment the men wore was a big factor in the march. Besides the customary utility trousers and jacket, the men wore marching packs, cartridge belts equipped with full canteens and first aid packets, and combat boots. The heavy combat boots are notoriously renowned among Marines for their abrasive action on the heels. "During the march many times I wished that all I had on was a T-shirt, shorts and sneakers," said Garcia.

The Marines arrived at the corner of West Shore and Gandy at 5:30 in the afternoon to end their long trek. Actual marching time was 15 hours.

The recent rash of endurance hikers was sparked when Marine Commandant David Shoup uncovered some old orders issued by President Theodore Roosevelt that directed all Marine officers to march 50 miles in less than 20 hours. However, the majority of today's marathon walkers are civilians clad in sneakers and other light apparel.

Allen Reveals Budget Woes

National Group Booked

The Limelighters in Tampa? Yes! The Student Association has made arrangements for this nationally-known singing group to appear at McKay Auditorium March 24—Big Name Night. The price of admission is yet to be announced, but a discount will be available to students. Tickets will be sold in the U.C. lobby.

The Limelighters are no strangers to music lovers on the Atlantic coast, where they have thrilled audiences with their folk songs and folk lore. As a singing and comedy group for college students, some regard them as giving more per dollar than any other singing group. This concert is something both resident students and commuters should be interested in backing. "If this project fails," says Lee Lombardia, "difficultly could arise in getting other groups to come to USF such as Peter Paul and Mary for the Christmas formal. It has to be successful not only financially but also in order, in order to kill the word 'apathy' attached to USF." This concert will eliminate the All-University Week-end, which is loaded with other events such as the spring formal.

"With a student body of over 3,000, USF is now able to offer such attractions. The question, will USF support this project so that similar programs might be offered once or twice each trimester?" asks Lombardia.

Interested staff and students are invited to attend.

More $'s Needed To Meet Growth

By JOHN GULLETT

The University of South Florida will be treated equally with other state universities when it comes to legislative appropriations this spring in Tallahassee, but this is not enough, according to President John S. Allen.

Allen related in an interview last week his recent encounter with Gov. Farris Bryant's Budget Commission on this issue of state funds. "We probably will be

Pulitzer Winner Featured

A Pulitzer Prize winning editor will be featured at the next Meet the Author Program, March 6, 1:25 p.m. in U.C. 264-65.

Hodding Carter, winner of numerous awards and honors, has been publisher and editor of the Delta Democrat-Times, a daily in Greenville, Miss., since 1938.

The author of nine books and co-author of four others, Carter is most famous for "Where Main Street Meets the River" (1953) and "The Story of Reconstruction" (1959). He now has four other books in preparation.

Winning Editorials Carter won the Pulitzer Prize for editorials in 1946, and The Delta Democrat-Times has won the general excellence prize nine times in the past 12 years.

Carter served in Southeast Asia for the U.S. State Department Exchange Program, 1953-54. His other interests include historical research, race relations, sailing, and hunting. In addition to his other interests, Carter is the co-owner of Radio Station WDDT, Greenville, Miss.

Carter's wife, Betty, is also an author, researcher, and newspaperwoman. They have three sons.

slighted, but not more than the other institutions. But the point is, they should not be compared with us.

"Our growing rate is phenomenal because of our youth. If USF doesn't add a classroom building each fall, someday the university will not be able to open. We estimate 4,800 full-time students for next fall; the commission says 4,200."

Budgets are based on full-time equivalent students, anticipated for the coming biennium. On these figures, each university determines: The number of faculty members; the size of the library; and the size of its staff; the number of classrooms and laboratories; the addition of dormitory rooms; and the supporting services, including educational resources, food services, and building, ground and maintenance crews.

The other main cut in the university's proposed educational and general budget for the 1963-64 biennium came in the number of hours allowed for research. "It is very difficult to convince the layman that a university without graduate students engages in research," Allen said.

The university originally requested $6,804,474 for the 1963-64 year, and $6,641,879 for the 1964-65 year.

The budget commission cut the 1963-64 total down to less than six million, but a lengthy battle in the April legislative session will precede any sort of compromise.

The educational and general budget includes the teaching departments, the state supported research activities, the university administration, the library, and the operation and maintenance of the physical plant. Building funds are included in a separate budget, the budget for capital outlay.

The funds for all these facilities must come from somewhere other than the present revenue fund, admitted Allen, and they will have to come from taxes. Legislators from counties in which state universities are located met on campus Feb. 7, and the general agreement was for across-the-board sales tax, although some felt that prescribed medicine and food should be exempted.

But amid all the complaining about funds, or the lack thereof, Allen displayed a note of optimism: "The ever increasing need for higher education in Florida is causing the business, social, political and educational leaders all to recognize the need for expansion of facilities. I have never seen as strong a demand for higher education as exists now."

Magazine To Be Published In March

The 1963 "ie," the USF literary magazine, will be available in the latter part of March. It will contain more material, and, according to Don Gray, editor, "the quality of the selections is much better" than that of last year, and it will cost only 35c.

Gray added that the standards for the selections were much higher due to the volume of contributions. Of the total works submitted, about 10 percent were chosen. The selections were made by the editorial board of four students and approved by the three faculty sponsors, Sheldon Grebstein, Sy Kahn, and Hans Juergenson.

The selections were made on the basis of content, originality, and ability in the particular genre.

In addition to the short stories and poems by students, there are three contributions by faculty members.

Prof. Arnade First On TV Book Show

Dr. Charles Arnade became the first USF professor to appear on the ETV program "The World of Books," Feb. 21.

Dr. Arnade, associate professor of history, was interviewed on the subject of several of his social science books.

GOVERNOR DISTURBED

Rocky May Probe News Strike

NEW YORK (Feb. 25 (AP))—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says he may appoint a board of inquiry, with subpoena powers, to look into the 80-day-old New York City newspaper blackout.

The head of the striking printers says that if such a board were set up, "We'd respond." But as to accepting the findings of the board, adds Bertram A. Powers, "We reserve the right to accept or reject on the merits of the proposal."

There was no immediate comment by the publishers. Rockefeller told a television audience yesterday—two hours before printers and publishers began separate talks with Mayor Robert F. Wagner at city hall—that he "will have to consider a board of inquiry" if Wagner can't get the city's nine major papers back on the streets.

"WE HAVE arrived at the end of the road," Rockefeller said on the program. "... This thing cannot go any further."

The governor set no specific time for intervening in the dispute that he termed "critical" from an economic point of view. But he said he would act "pretty soon."

Five hours later, Powers spoke on a radio program and gave his reaction to the governor's statement.

Powers, president of striking Local 6 of the OFL-CIO International Typographical Union (ITU), was asked if the printers preferred Wagner or Rockefeller to act as umpire in the dispute. Powers replied, "We have no preference."

Later, as the Democratic mayor left city hall, he said the dispute should not become involved in politics and that he believes the Republican governor feels the same way.

President Kennedy suggested last week that the publishers and printers submit their differences to an independent determination of some kind.

WAGNER THEN offered to act as umpire and recommended a settlement, "if such a recommendation should become necessary." But first, he said last night, he wants to "continue mediation, until we find that mediation can in no way bring about the desired results." Wagner has been acting as mediator since Jan. 26.

TO HELP STOP CAPITAL OUTFLOW

Alliance for Progress Bond Sale Urged

By CHARLES KEELY
Copley News Service
WASHINGTON — "Alliance for Progress Bonds," have been recommended for sale to Latin Americans to help halt the flow of capital from that area.

The proposal comes from John Rand, vice president of the A. J. Armstrong Co., the largest U.S. international commercial finance organization with wide experience in Latin America.

RAND says such bonds would provide funds for Latin programs and at the same time reduce the American taxpayer's burden. "The problem in Latin America," he said "is that all these countries have been sustained by foreign capital investment or bailed out by loans from the United States and other governments."

Alliance bonds, according to Rand, should be "payable at a decent rate of interest and with assurances that the names of bond holders would not be disclosed."

Rand sees a brighter economic outlook in Latin America in 1963 "because it couldn't get any worse."

"I HAVE never seen Latin America as a whole in such a state of turmoil and confusion," he said. "If countries like Argentina and Chile cannot resolve their problems, what can be expected of the other countries. "I wonder if those who talk of a so-called 'future' for Latin America think in terms of our generation or a hundred years from now."

Rand offered these suggestions for Latin nations:
1. National elections every three years so that politicians would try to "do more good more quickly."
2. Compulsory education to age 16 and a $50-a-year subsidy to families for each child attending school.

3. Effective taxation and tax collection.
4. Elimination of dual exchange rates to stem the loss of hard currency.

5. Reduction of armed forces to police proportions with an all-Latin military establishment, similar to NATO, for external defense.

Billiards, Fashions Movie, on Agenda

Jimmy Caras, four times the billiard champion of the world and a member of the Brunswick's billiard advisory staff, will appear in the UC ballroom at 1:25 p.m. and 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 26 for billiard exhibitions.

A native of Scranton, Penn., Caras now lives in Upper Derby. He began playing pocket billiards on a miniature table at age seven, earning the title of "boy wonder of the billiard world" by defeating Ralph Greenleaf in an exhibition match in 1927 at age seventeen. Greenleaf was then the world billiard champion.

The University Center Recreation Committee is sponsoring an all-university billiards tournament beginning Wednesday, Feb. 27 and running until there is a winner. The three will be straight pockets, snooker and carams. The women's division will include straight pocket billiards. The tournament is open to all students. Contestants may register at the UC information desk today.

USF Culture Center May Be Reality

A culture center was proposed at a Chineseget retreat, according to Russell Cooper, dean of liberal arts.

According to Dean Cooper "nothing is definite yet." However, a committee has been formed to investigate the prospect of establishing a center on campus. It was first suggested that an Asian Center be established, but most students seem to feel that a more diversified International Center is needed at USF.

Just how a culture center would be incorporated is in the discussion stage; however, other schools have approached the problem in two ways: Through the addition of courses and/or by setting up a physical center.

Barbed Fence Near Alpha Startles Grass-Trackers

By JACK MCCLINTOCK

One morning last week, students walking to class from the dorms were startled by the sight of a barbed wire fence erected along the sidewalk near Alpha Hall, evidently to prevent anyone's walking on the grass.

Within the hour, a cluster of sardonically worded signs had appeared magically on the fence, and plans were current to have students patrol the stockade with broomstick artillery on their shoulders. Clearly, went the murmurings, this barrier was an insult to the intelligence of the student and an encroachment upon his inalienable right to walk where he damn well pleased.

From whence, then, had sprung this irritating and not very subtle edifice? Clyde Hill, physical plant director and the man responsible for its construction, said, "Its purpose is to prevent walking on the grass. The main reason we can't have this condition continue is because of the warring conditions—aside from the fact that it doesn't look good."

Rain falling on the grass area, Hill explained, had been running down the worn pathways and undermining the sidewalks and even the building itself.

That night, however, a series of protest meetings were held in the dorms, in an attempt to decide upon ways to deal with the crisis. The consensus seemed to be for destruction of the offending fence, and so plans were made to stage a raid on the obstruction at approximately 12 midnight. But there was a leak and the security patrol heard of the plans, immediately posting a guard on the fence.

When the delegation of destruction arrived that night, they were met by a small squad of uniformed policemen, backed up by a cadre of those anathemas of the conscientious student rioter, the R.A.'s. The R.A.'s bore pencils and paper to carry out their sinister tasks.

Meanwhile, in a meeting of the Residence Hall Council, debate on the thorny problem was going strong. The upshot of it all was a compromise: The fence would be removed in exchange for the students' promise to stay off the cotton-pickin' grass. Agreed.

So the hall council reps went back to their halls, held meetings, and extracted promises from their residents to remain on the sidewalks instead of strolling on the greenery. And back at the scene of the "riot," the crowd was dispersing and in due time all became tranquil.

Next morning the fence was gone, and so ended another of the myriad trials which beset us as we slog resolutely toward our goal of education.

Harvard Psychologist To Appear

"Teaching Machines and the New Technology of Education" will be the topic of a lecture given by James G. Holland at the University of South Florida Teaching Auditorium - Theater on Thursday, Feb. 28, at 1:25 p.m.

Holland received his Ph.D. in psychology from the University of Virginia in 1955. He is a research psychologist with the United States Air Force and Office of Naval Research. He is also a consulting editor to Appleton-Century-Croft.

No tickets are required for the lecture.

Work, Cash Scholarships For Tri-III

A limited number of scholarships will be offered for students who intend to remain in school for Trimester III. They will be based upon student need and scholastic average. There are two categories of scholarships available; work scholarships and cash awards.

Those students who have financial statements on file for either the 1962-63 or the 1963-64 academic years will not be required to furnish additional statements. Those students applying only for Trimester III will have to file a Parent's Confidential Statement in addition to the scholarship application at the Student Affairs office.

'Streetcar' Tryouts Feb. 25, 26

Tryouts for the University of South Florida Theatre's next production, Tennessee Williams' "A Streetcar Named Desire," will be held Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 25 and 26, at 7:30 p.m. in UC 264.

Broadway actress Joan Potter will star as Blanche in the newest campus production, which will play four performances in a three-day run beginning April 4. Miss Potter is one of the 149 actor-members of the famed Actors Studio in New York, headed by Lee Strasberg.

Jack Clay, director of the University Theatre, said all other roles in Williams' drama remain uncast, and auditions are open to students, staff members and all community residents.

The Florida Chapter of the National Association of Educational Buyers will hold its annual meeting here Feb. 25 and 26.

Between 30 and 40 representatives from Florida colleges are expected to attend the conference, which will focus its attention on the purchasing problems of junior colleges and smaller private colleges. Registration for the conference will begin on Feb. 25 at 11 a.m. in the UC.

Speakers at the meeting will include: George Schwab of Louisiana State University, president-elect of the NAEB, Bert Aherns, executive secretary of the NAEB, and Bill Price, head of Educational and Institutional Cooperative Buying Services. Young Democrats To Hear Farnell

J. Crockett Farnell, superintendent of public instruction for Hillsborough County, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Young Democrats of USF, Wednesday, Feb. 27 at 1:25 p.m. in CH 100. The meeting is open to the public. Farnell's topic will be "Education and Politics."

Pre-Law Club To Discuss Convention

South Florida's chapter of the Florida Association of Pre-Law Clubs will report on the recent state-wide convention tonight at 7 o'clock in UC200.

The group, composed of students interested in pre-law education, will be meeting for the first time with a constitution to guide them. A temporary constitution, drawn up by the local group, was adopted at the state convention in Gainesville, Feb. 15-16. The convention was the first state meeting of its sort in the U.S.

Ann Francis, one of four student representatives from USF attending the convention, was elected secretary-general of the state association for the coming year. She will attend all executive board meetings, including the May 4 meeting in Daytona Beach, to take minutes and get the information to the rest of the association members.

Others attending the convention include: James Leonard, Jim Wells, Pat Brown, and Dr. Fred Horrigan, assistant professor of political science, and advisor of the group.

The local pre-law club is open to any student who has even the slightest interest in law. It is being supported here and at other campuses so that students may be properly guided on the undergraduate level," according to Miss Francis.

Horrigan will open the meeting tonight with a look at information developed at the conference, followed by a panel discussion presented by the other delegates.

New Building To House Science Labs

A new addition to the growing USF campus is now under construction south of and adjacent to the Chemistry building. When completed the Physical Science Building will consist of a central core, a lecture hall-planetary room, and a shop.

The Physical Science plant will be a three-story project including a basement for classrooms and labs. The first floor will be highlighted by a gigantic pendulum swinging from the third floor down to the lobby. Various labs, nuclear and electronic, will comprise the second floor with the third floor being devoted to an observation gallery for social science students and office space.

Furthermore, a penthouse arrangement on the roof will have decks at either end for budding astronomers with their telescopes.

To the southeast corner a one-story shop, complete with a monorail for moving heavy equipment will be built.

In the northwest quadrant the Lecture Hall-Planetarium will rise. In addition, an observatory will be built north of Fletcher Avenue complete with class rooms and a sliding roof giving unobstructed vision for a large telescope.

The entire complex will cost $2.8 million and is expected to be completed by the fall of 1964.

Co-op Staff Visits Cape Canaveral

Members of the Work-Study staff, George H. Miller and Mrs. Binnie J. Neel, visited the National Aeronautics and Space Administration installations at Cape Canaveral recently reviewing the work students currently assigned there are doing and arranging for additional placement of USF students.

While there they toured the "ready" area where the capsule for Leroy Gordon Cooper's 22-orbit flight is being prepared and also saw Cooper. The visit included the Saturn pad, Mercury Control, and other points where USF Work-Study students are assigned as trainees.

Job Opportunities

PART-TIME WORK opportunity is available for a person with a car who is free four nights a week for three-hour sessions. Pay is fifty dollars weekly; information at ph. 639-2582.

Personnel Services, AD1009, also lists jobs for five men who are free until 10:30 a.m. Monday through Saturday. The jobs involve two and one-half hours of work for six days at $1.25 per hour. Location near East Gate. Appointment for interview should be arranged through Personnel Services.

GIFT OF GAVEL

Discussions, Bills And Resolutions

President Lee Lombardia of the Student Association initiated the practice of the president's opening statement to the Executive Council at the Feb. 14 meeting. In his remarks he cited the need for council representatives to drop the idea that each council is pulling for itself and take up more the idea of working for the over-all group good. He also stated the wish that every council be fully represented at each meeting.

Lombardia reported the business of the Jan. 31 legislature and in his remarks included the announcement of a bill to provide a gavel to present and future SA presidents to use while in office and keep afterwards as a memento.

Senate Report

Sarah Caldwell gave the report from the University Senate. The College of Education has introduced plans to develop a curriculum library and an audio-visual service center meeting state requirements for use of students and faculty within that college.

Sarah was appointed to the Election Rules Committee and Dave Jordan to the Educational Policies Committee.

Lombardia requested the council to request in their budget reports for the coming fiscal year.

Dean Wunderlich of Student Affairs suggested that USF should plan to have a float to put in future parades. The members of the council agreed that this would be a good way to put USF before the public favorably.

Legislature News
At the Feb. 21 session of the USF Legislature, four resolutions were passed. Mark Siegle introduced the resolution that students support the Food Service subcommittee by filling in their criticisms on Form I as provided at the UC Information Desk.

A resolution to "censor" the administrators responsible for the erection of a barbed wire fence near Alpha was submitted by Larry Thornberry.

Robert Nall introduced a resolution that the administration provide funds for constructing permanent outdoor bulletin boards at focal areas on the campus.

The editor of the campus edition was requested via resolution to clarify the mechanics of a newspaper working with the Student Association governing bodies. The resolution was introduced by John Cicero.

Gamma Hall To Augment Housing Here

USF will be able to house 1,311 students on campus by next fall. The number of students who live on campus now is 825; this means that there will be an increase of 286 resident students by September.

The increase will be made possible by the completion of Gamma Hall, presently under construction. The existing halls, both Alpha and Beta, will then be turned over to the exclusive use of men students and the new Gamma Hall will be used for women.

Also under consideration is a new core area which will be connected to all three halls by covered walkways. This area will be comprised of a kitchen, cafeteria, private dining room, study area, activities meeting space, games room, administrative offices, guest apartment and possibly other conveniences for use of the students and faculty.
