WUSF opens first St. Petersburg studio at USFSP

Regional Chancellor Sophia Wisniewska (left), and Mayor Rick Kriseman talk with WUSF General Manager JoAnn Urofsky after Friday's ribbon cutting.

A ribbon cutting ceremony Friday marked the official opening of WUSF's first studio in St. Petersburg. Mayor Rick Kriseman joined USFSP Regional Chancellor Sophia Wisniewska and WUSF General Manager JoAnn Urofsky in cutting the ribbon during a ceremony in the courtyard of the Peter Rudy Wallace Center for Teachers, home to the studio and the USFSP Journalism and Media Studies Department. "Having an award-winning NPR affiliate on our campus is something we should all be proud of," Wisniewska said. "It will be an excellent opportunity for our journalism students, who can gain valuable on-air experience, working closely with seasoned professionals. I particularly look forward to the stories our students produce through the Neighborhood News Bureau in Midtown, an important part of this city where Mayor Kriseman is focusing much needed attention."

Business Forum to focus on senior entrepreneurship

Stacy Prouty (left) and Bevan Gray-Rogel

The first Walgreens Bayside Business Forum of 2014, sponsored by the College of Business Advisory Board, will focus on one of the hottest topics among entrepreneurs, economists, and policy makers today: how to address the various needs of the world's growing aging population. "Increasingly, people over 50 are moving to Florida and starting companies instead of retiring from working life," said Dr. Maling Ebrahimpour, Ph.D., dean of the College of Business. "In the past few years, Tampa Bay has become a major destination for senior entrepreneurs and a desirable test bed for products and services that help people age in place, successfully manage chronic diseases and maintain optimal physical performance well into their advanced years. All of this is great news for Florida's future economic growth, which is being fueled by entrepreneurs from multiple generations." The Forum will be held Friday, Jan. 17 from 7:30 a.m. to 9 a.m. at Franklin Templeton, 100 Fountain Parkway North, Building 100, St. Petersburg. The Forum is free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served. Seating is limited, so call (727) 873-4700 or e-mail cob-events@usfsp.edu by Thursday, January 16 to reserve your spot. Read more.

Student Research Colloquium takes Florida focus

This month's Student Research Colloquium takes a Florida focus with presentations by Florida Studies graduate students on the architect of the St. Petersburg Pier and on efforts to preserve some of the oldest records in the United States. In "William Harvard, Sr. and St. Petersburg's Mid-Century Modern Pier," Kyle Pierson will examine the modernist influences on the controversial inverted pyramid design of The Pier. In "Discovering La Florida in the Oldest Diocesan Archive of America," Saber Gray will discuss the preservation of documents dating back to 1594 at the Diocesan Archive of St. Augustine that shed light on the lives of Florida's earliest Europeans, Africans, and Christianized Indians. The Colloquium will be Wednesday at noon at the Nelson Poynter Memorial Library.

Rick Baker honored at 2013 Fall Commencement

More than 400 students received diplomas and former St. Petersburg Mayor Rick Baker received USFSP's highest honor during the Fall 2013 Commencement ceremonies at the Mahaffey Theater Dec. 15. "The vibrant and engaging city we all know and love today is the direct result of the visionary leadership of Rick Baker," said USFSP regional chancellor Sophia Wisniewska in bestowing him with the Chancellor's Award for Civic Leadership. Baker urged graduates to keep learning "and never let anyone tell you that you can't do anything." | Tampa Bay Times
