Chatsworth House

What is life like today for the 12th Duke of Devonshire, who inherited the estate that has been in his family for 450 years? What really transpires behind closed doors? What is life like for the staff of 700? With all of the characters you'd expect to find in a great house, this engaging, three-part series is a fascinating look at class and tradition in a modern world that plays out like a real-life Downton Abbey.

Airs Wednesdays at 10 p.m.,
beginning April 10

Wild Africa Combining stunning aerial photography and ground-level action footage, this six-part BBC documentary series explores the wildlife of six vastly diverse—and richly gorgeous—African habitats, from the Danakil Depression to the summit of Kilimanjaro. Airs Thursdays at 9 p.m., beginning April 25.

Midsomer Murders The rural countryside of England is the backdrop for this series. In the first episode of season 11, Detective Chief Inspector Tom Barnaby embarks on an investigation concerning the deaths of an affluent woman and her younger lover. (Part one of two.) Airs Fridays at 10 p.m., beginning April 5.

Martha Bakes Martha Stewart hosts a new, 13-episode teaching series that enables the home baker to create, in his or her own kitchen, the tastiest desserts and sweet goodies—from the perfect cheesecake to melt-in-your-mouth puff pastry. Airs Sundays at 4:30 p.m., beginning April 7.

The

Honorable Miss Phryne Fisher (Essie Davis) is a thoroughly modern woman of the late 1920s operating in a mostly male world. The glamorous "lady detective" goes about her work with a pistol close at hand and, more often than not, a male admirer even closer. To the dismay of Detective Inspector Jack Robinson (Nathan Page), Phryne's investigations take her through the back alleys, jazz clubs, and shady markets of Melbourne. Ignoring the dangers all around her, she seems to glide through life determined to enjoy every moment. But beneath her devil-may-care attitude, Phryne hides ghosts from the past that continue to haunt her. Airs Fridays at 9 p.m., beginning April 5.
