A fresh new website to better reflect who we are

Posted July 5, 2012 at 3:31 pm by Helen Levine, Vice Chancellor for External Affairs

Welcome to your new website.

We have completely redesigned the look of usfsp.edu to better reflect who we are and to make it easier for you to find what you are looking for.

It has been a collaborative, months-long effort involving students, faculty and staff from all corners of the campus. The result is a fresh approach that allows us to engage with the myriad groups who comprise the USF St. Petersburg community, both externally and internally.

There is much to explore here and more to come. Please take a few minutes to look around. You will find new features we're excited about, such as 'burg blogs, written by students and faculty, and videos offering a window onto our world. Meanwhile, all the features of the old website some of you have come to rely on remain, such as links to myUSF and news about USFSP.

This site will be as dynamic as USFSP — growing and changing, with updates and improvements as needed. We welcome and encourage your feedback, so please take a moment to tell us what you think.

I would like to thank everyone who participated in this important project. We appreciate the hard work and suggestions that made this reimaged site possible.

Community Connections

It comes as no surprise that USF St. Petersburg holds the Community Engagement Classification from the Carnegie Foundation.

Here are just a few examples of how we support dynamic and noteworthy community engagement.

Festival of Reading

The free Tampa Bay Times Festival of Reading is an annual celebration of the written word featuring
