Happy New Year everyone;

Does anyone own the Directory of Family Associations or any similar directory? A patron of mine is interested in finding out if there's an association for the (or a) McNary family. I looked online and didn't find anything, and I realize that even if one is listed the information may be dated, but I told my patron I'd ask, and he can go from there.

Thanks in advance,

Kim,

I would point the patron to the McNary surname list. Someone on that list would know whether or not there was a family association.

Thanks Drew.

He doesn't use computers, but I just signed up and will hopefully glean some information before unsubscribing. He's a regular patron, so I know he'll be back.

Have you had researchers enquiring about European royalty and other titles of nobility? - This series of books, which can be bought individually or as a collection, provides the answers. The books are offered at a 20% discount to U.S. Libraries.

THE ROYAL HOUSES OF EUROPE

This series of 32 volumes covers all the European Royal Dynasties and their descendants. They provide a full royal genealogy laid out in inter-connecting royal family trees of the Royal Houses of Europe. The books cover the reigning monarchies of Europe, the great Imperial Dynasties and the former monarchies of Europe. They include the British Royal House, now the House of Windsor, descended from Queen Victoria, and the British dynasties of Stuart, Hanover and Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. The dynasties of Hohenzollern, Romanov, Habsburg, Bonaparte and Bourbon have separate books on each, together with the Monarchies of Scandinavia, the Benelux, Liechtenstein, Iberia, Monaco, Italy and the Balkans, and the former German Kingdoms, and Grand Duchies. In all cases the full descent is shown, extending to related noble and commoner families, in Britain, across Europe, and in the U.S.A, Canada, Australia and Latin America. They are an essential source of information for genealogists providing details right down to the present day.

A new volume has now been published:

The German Grand Duchies of OLDENBURG and MECKLENBURG

The Genealogy of the Oldenburg and Mecklenburg dynasties of the former Grand Duchies in northern Germany. The Oldenburg Grand Ducal line, together with its Russian off-shoot. The lines of the Schwerin and Strelitz Grand Duchies of Mecklenburg, together with the Russian off-shoot of the latter, with its Carlow morganatic line, which has secured the continuation of the dynasty. 193 pages.

?P. Arnold, 2013 ISBN 978-0-9569100-9-7

SSDI HAS NEW RESTRICTIONS

We learned last week from Legal Genealogist Judy Russell's blog that Congress has imposed new restrictions on access to the Social Security Death Index. <http://www.legalgenealogist.com/blog/2013/12/30/ssdi-access-now-limited/> <<http://www.legalgenealogist.com/blog/2013/12/30/ssdi-access-now-limited/>> We will no longer have access to death information on persons who died within the past three years ? and there is no point in sending a FOIA request to SSA to obtain such data. Judy and her readers have pointed out a large number of problems this will cause, not only for genealogists, but for others who have legal, forensic and personal reasons for needing that data. Her blog includes comments on how concerned persons can address the problem.

LIBRARY TO CONDUCT ONLINE SURVEY

The Prince William Public Library System will be conducting an online survey Wednesday January 15th through Saturday February 15th, 2014 to find out how our patrons use the library's computers and Internet connection and how this service has made a positive impact on their lives. This information will help the library improve its technology services and communicate the value of providing free access to computers and the Internet within the community. The Impact Survey is anonymous, available in English and Spanish, and takes 10-15 minutes to complete. Patrons who complete the survey will be taken to a separate page to enter their name and contact information into a weekly drawing for a 2 GB USB flash drive! Drawings will be held January 21, January 27, February 3, February 10 and February 18 from entries received the prior week. In the case of multiple entries only one prize per patron will be awarded.

As part of this survey, RELIC is interested in learning what impact our online services have on our customers. Do you use our Digital Library? Electronic resources such as Heritage Quest, Obituaries and Death Notices, or the Local Newspaper Index? Our pathfinders such as ?Roots in Prince William? or ?Chasing the Civil War?? Interlibrary loan? Please let us know. Thanks.

Dear Librarian:

Genealogical.com is the leading publisher of genealogy books and CDs in the United States. Our award-winning titles include hundreds of how-to books and manuals, and more than a thousand collections of genealogical source records and compiled genealogies. The latter cover pioneering American ancestors from the 17th century to the 19th century, plus a growing collection of Native American records. Still other publications will help you trace your forebears across the Atlantic to Great Britain and mainland Europe, as well as to the Caribbean and Latin America. You can download a free copy of our catalogue of popular titles (published in January) at the following link: http://www.genealogical.com/upload_images/GPCCatalog.pdf.

We are pleased to state that 2013 has been a banner year for new publications at Genealogical.com. Here are the highlights:

International Vital Records Handbook

<http://www.genealogical.com/index.php?main_page=product_info&item_number=3148> , 6th Edition, by Thomas Jay Kemp

A best-selling library reference book, the International Vital Records Handbook offers complete, up-to-date information on where and how to request vital records (birth, marriage, death, divorce, and adoption records). One-hundred pages longer than its predecessor, the new 6th edition contains the latest ordering forms and information for each of the fifty states and also furnishes details about records that were created prior to statewide vital records registration. Then, in alphabetical sequence, it covers the other countries of the world, giving, where available, the current application forms and instructions, as well as the key addresses of repositories or embassies that might help you obtain copies of vital records.

Sustainable Genealogy: Separating Fact from Fiction in Family Legends

<http://www.genealogical.com/index.php?main_page=product_info&item_number=2752> , by Richard Hite

Sustainable Genealogy explains how to avoid the traps many family historians fall into. Whether it's a proud family legend, a venerable publication, or the claims of an Internet family tree, the unsubstantiated genealogical source is like a house of sticks before the Big Bad Wolf--it won't stand up. Taking "heed of the cautions cited and putting into practice the lessons learned in this book will make you all much better family historians and ensure that your genealogical legacy will be one to be trusted."

Without Indentures: Index to White Slave Children in Colonial Court Records
<http://www.genealogical.com/index.php?main_page=product_info&item_number=4606> , by Richard Hayes Phillips

Richard Hayes Phillips' shocking new study of colonial slave labor contains the names of more than 5,000 children kidnapped from Ireland, Scotland, England, and New England and sold into slavery in Maryland and Virginia, ca. 1660-1720. We have long known about indentured servants, who agreed in writing, by indenture, to work without wages for a number of years to pay off the cost of their passage and lodging, after which time they were freed. We were never told--until now--about white slaves who did not consent and who never contracted in writing!

Generations: The WPA Ex-Slave Narrative Genealogical Resource Database.
Volume I: Ex-Slaves with Virginia Origins,
<http://www.genealogical.com/index.php?main_page=product_info&item_number=8531> by Dr. James Rose [DVD]

Thousands of interviews with former African-American slaves were conducted by the WPA between 1937 and 1938. However, few researchers have exploited the genealogical potential of these African-American sources. In the DVD Generations: The WPA Ex-Slave Narrative Genealogical Resource Database, Dr. James Rose rectifies this oversight. The inaugural volume in this series discusses ex-slaves who were living throughout the United States but were born in Virginia, or who had parents or grandparents born in Virginia.

The Florida State Genealogical Society is considering to not print a hard copy of their quarterly. A PDF link will be sent to all members and libraries. What is your opinion about receiving a publication this way?

Our library had no choice when North Carolina, and a four other societies stopped printing and just sent us a link. I print them out, but it is expensive. On the other hand, fewer patrons are using our printers. Most are putting their prints on flash drives. So, we are saving on one hand and spending on the other.

I would appreciate your opinion about this.

If that is the case, I hope they are not charging a higher price for library subscriptions than for private members (as many societies do).?

Private members may choose to read from their link only and not print, but libraries would be doing their patrons a disservice if they did not have a print copy available.

I can see the point of view from the other side as well. I am also an active member in a genealogical society which has just decided to offer an online option. We discussed whether we should encourage this by offering a discount to members who decline the print option, because we save on print and mailing costs - or to charge more for the print option. Perhaps it will take some experimentation to keep it fair and "revenue neutral."?

I can come back at this two ways. When I was working, we got the local RGS newsletter in hard copy, put it on the shelf, and since it was quarterly, bound it when they got thick enough to make it worthwhile (our processing dept. did cheap inhouse binding). That was OK, but in 30 years maybe 6 people asked for it. Don't know what my successor is doing.

But a short while ago, the RGS society realized that doing everything on paper was too time consuming and expensive. Someone now lays it out on a computer; it is saved as a PDF, and goes out on a mailing list to paid members. Past issues are available for free here:
<http://nyrgs.org/hearYe/hearYe.htm>. That seems to please most people.

Thank you to those who replied to me privately and through Genealib.

FSGS does not charge a higher price for institutions. I am getting a sense that most of you agree this is fine to do and each library deals with it according to their own requests and needs. I heard that one library has a dedicated computer for searchable documents such as periodicals.

Hi all,

Last September, the Wisconsin Historical Society Library Archives hosted a very successful 4 part series of webinars on websites that are used by genealogists around the world. This series is directed to librarians around the world. The current series contains 4 free webinars. The first 3 will provide guidance on 3 key websites and a final webinar directs librarians to a variety of key sites that are used daily at the Wisconsin Historical Society Library Archives Reference Desk, one of the top 5 genealogical libraries in North America.

Go to these links below to register. After the series is completed, I will post links on this list to the recordings, for a limited time.

The class will only run if at least 5 people enroll. If it does not run, your registration will be refunded. Feel free to contact me with any questions.

Introduction to Genealogical Librarianship

Instructor: Sarah A.V. Kirby
Dates: February 3-28
Credits: 1.5 CEUs
Price: $175

<http://libraryjuiceacademy.com/056-genealogical.php>

Many short courses in genealogical librarianship actually focus on genealogy and only discuss library concerns briefly. This course seeks to reverse that. While a brief introduction to genealogy will be given, the majority of the course will focus on collection development, reference interviews, programming, and support for genealogical researchers. By the end of the course you will understand how genealogy reference interviews differ from normal reference interviews. You will also be familiar with the core print and online references needed to support most basic genealogical questions. Finally, you will have been introduced to some of the resources that can help you develop programming or be used in other ways to support your genealogical reference activities.

Sarah A.V. Kirby is a librarian, professional genealogist, teacher, and rocket scientist (aerospace engineer). As a genealogist her specialization is in New England, New York, and the Midwest. Sarah holds a Professional Learning Certificate in Genealogical Studies, concentrating in Genealogical Librarianship, from the National Institute for Genealogical Studies. She serves as the lead volunteer librarian for the Lake County (IL) Genealogical Society. She has been a corporate librarian for over a decade, and operates a library services consulting firm, Appletree Knowledge Services. In her first career, she worked at NASA's Mission Control and worked in the Space Shuttle, Astronaut on Mir, and Space Station programs.

Course structure

This is an online class that is taught asynchronously, meaning that participants do the work on their own time as their schedules allow. The class does not meet together at any particular times, although the instructor may set up optional synchronous chat sessions. Instruction includes readings and assignments in one-week segments. Class participation is in an online forum environment.

Payment info

You can register in this course through the first week of instruction. The "Register" button on the website goes to our credit card payment gateway, which may be used with personal or institutional credit cards. (Be sure to use the appropriate billing address). Melissa, one thing you can do is check for a pension application by his widow if he was married or by his parents if he was single. You might also try searching for clues in WorldConnect database on Rootsweb.

Melissa,

This comes with the usual caveat about secondary information, but you and/or your patron might try looking on the DAR site to see if he is an established ancestor. That record might have place of birth and will have a residence in the Revolution. You might try to figure out which company he is in using the book Don suggested. Then see if you can find other members of the company and look at them also. If the location doesn't make any sense- sometimes men would go to serve with or for a relative.

One other possibility is White's book of pension abstracts - he may have done an affidavit for another man.

The final possibility is there is/was a lineage society just for soldiers who served at Valley Forge. They may have records of him.

I was going to say something similar, but then you can go to the pension files on Fold3 and read the affidavits about service, etc. I read many files from people who had fought in North Carolina, and it was fascinating.

And on top of that, I think they've all been microfilmed and are digitized on Fold3.

The Florida State Genealogical Society <<http://www.flsgs.org/>>

(<http://www.flsgs.org> <<http://www.flsgs.org/>>) has $500 for a Florida librarian. We have extended the deadline to February 1 because FSGS would love to give this to a deserving librarian. It can be used at our 37 <<http://www.flsgs.org/aem.php?eid=3>> th Annual FSGS Conference which is March 28-30. Or, it can be used for a combination of seminars and conferences.

Attached is the application or you can go to our Awards and Scholarship <<http://www.flsgs.org/cpage.php?pt=12>> page. Suggestions for what it can be used for are also on that page. Questions? Ask our Awards Chair, Kearby Parker awards at flsgs.org

Just want to mention that the Dee Parmer Woodtor book, Finding a Place Called Home: A Guide to African American Genealogy is a valuable resource, not only for African-Americans, but for anyone who faces trying to trace family history with few records, changed names, relocations, etc. The information on collecting and interpreting oral history is very good.

Susan,

Thanks for your tip. You always share good things. I thought this was a good list and printed it out to look through later.

We have a good many of these and other research aids.

What we need is "How to Get Researchers to Study Up". LOL

Thanks for the compliment. I like books like the Woodtor "how-to" because sometimes I can get a "newbie" who has no clue where to start (or wants to start with more advanced research resources) to sit down and read a chapter or hint list by saying "Why don't' you take a look at this for a few minutes while I have to assist someone else, then you can decide what records you would like to look at."

I also smilingly advise people to "do some homework" by reading some of the research advice posted on our Web page and in our newsletters, or in the handouts I give them, particularly about what records are available and where to find them. I help them get started while they are in the library, but tell them they will be able to make better use of their time and will find research less frustrating if they "study up" as you said. It probably works less than half the time, but every little bit helps!

Thanks for the invitation and the good tip.

I know this would help me and I might be able to watch the recording during "closed" hours sometime. It seems a good and generous opportunity to me.

Message-ID: <BAY173-W316D4C4A2CEE83B1D428FC9A60@phx.gbl>

For those of you who have patrons actively trying to break down brick walls in genealogical research in the State of Missouri, ten volumes of comprehensive newspaper and Civil War resources have just become available through Gone West Publications. The new volumes are as follows:

Genealogical Abstracts from Pike co, MO Newspapers, Vol. 5 (1894-1896), by Sherry Raleigh-Adams ? EVERYTHING of genealogical significance found in the Bowling Green Times for this period has been abstracted and indexed. The index is an every-name index and people of color are italicized in it to facilitate research on these difficult lines. As always, the index to the volume is available for your perusal on the website, www.gonewestpub.com . 206 pages.

Civil War Records, Missouri State Officers, Union Army, Vol. 1

Civil War Records, Missouri State Guard and Missouri Confederate Officers, Vol. 1

Civil War Records, Missouri State Volunteer Officers, Union Army, Vol. 1

These 3 volumes, compiled by Kenneth Weant, represent the most comprehensive list of participants in the Civil War in Missouri. Over 18,000 names are arranged by surnames, rank, units and place of enlistment. Bushwhackers and guerillas are included as well as Enrolled Missouri Militia, Home Guard, and Volunteer Units.

Missourians in the Civil War, Articles from Missouri Newspapers, Vols. 1-6

6 volumes, compiled by Kenneth Weant. Because so many newspaper accounts from the era of the Civil War bring extraordinary information to light to their readers without including the surnames or specific identity of the soldiers named, Kenneth referred to his comprehensive list of Civil War participants (3 volumes described above) to flesh out these stories and make them useful to today's researchers. The result is over 15,000 soldiers mentioned in Missouri newspapers during the Civil War have been identified and indexed by name, military service and county identification.

Hello All,

I have a patron who recently published a great index to the 1873 landownership atlas for Frederick County, Maryland. Known in my world as the "Titus Atlas". I thought it might interest some of you. It is available on Amazon at http://www.amazon.com/Index-Atlas-Frederick-County-Maryland/dp/1304713482/ref=sr_1_1?ie=UTF8&qid=1390506563&sr=8-1&keywords=index+1873

Besides the ever popular landowners, he also indexed businesses, churches, schools, and natural features.

It is a nice work.

Message-ID: <1390937690.82059.YahooMailBasic@web162403.mail.bf1.yahoo.com>

To all - two new books of interest that we just received:

Why we left : untold stories and songs of America's first immigrants / Joanna Brooks

University of Minnesota Press, 2013

ISBN: 9780816681259

?Brooks (American Lazarus) makes an intriguing case that, rather than a land of opportunity, colonial America represented a harsh sanctuary. Drawing upon the archives of colonial ballads, she describes the circumstances that propelled 400,000 English across the Atlantic in pre-Revolutionary times. Like today's country music, lyrics of that era relate tales of murder, rivalry, false promises, and cheating hearts. Brooks also uses her own lineage to illustrate the hardship of life circa 1770. With unprecedented population growth and an economy that shifted from subsistence to exports, 18th century England produced a new class of landless laborers, which included her forefathers. The old songs were kept alive by 20th century folk singers such as Davy Crockett Ward, his wife Lina, Bascom Lamar Lunsford, Attie Crane, and Horton Barker. In the 1930s folklorist Alan Lomax moved his School of the Air radio show to Virginia to collect the traditional tunes now stored at the Library of Congress. That collection includes the ballad of Two Sisters and a Beaver Hat, which concludes: "Then young men have a care/of painted curled Locks. For such, though faire above, below may have the Pox." These ballads may be the best surviving records of what brought so many here.? -- From Publisher's Weekly via Amazon

Ellis Island nation : immigration policy and American identity in the twentieth century / Robert L. Fleegler
University of Pennsylvania Press, c2013
ISBN: 9780812245097

"Though debates over immigration have waxed and waned in the course of American history, the importance of immigrants to the nation's identity is imparted in civics classes, political discourse, and television and film. We are told that the United States is a "nation of immigrants," built by people who came from many lands to make an even better nation. But this belief was relatively new in the twentieth century, a period that saw the establishment of immigrant quotas that endured until the Immigrant and Nationality Act of 1965. What changed over the course of the century, according to historian Robert L. Fleegler, is the rise of "contributionism," the belief that the newcomers from eastern and southern Europe contributed important cultural and economic benefits to American society. Early twentieth-century immigrants from southern and eastern Europe often found themselves criticized for language and customs at odds with their new culture, but initially found greater acceptance through an emphasis on their similarities to "native stock" Americans. Drawing on sources as diverse as World War II films, records of Senate subcommittee hearings, and anti-Communist propaganda, Ellis Island Nation describes how contributionism eventually shifted the focus of the immigration debate from assimilation to a Cold War celebration of ethnic diversity and its benefits--helping to ease the passage of 1960s immigration laws that expanded the pool of legal immigrants and setting the stage for the identity politics of the 1970s and 1980s. Ellis Island Nation provides a historical perspective on recent discussions of multiculturalism and the exclusion of groups that have arrived since the liberalization of immigrant laws."--Publisher's website.

Subject: [Genealib] Digitizing obits
Message-ID: <004101cf1de3$F0145600$D03D0200$@net>

Our library has clipped and indexed a large number of obituaries over the decades. We are now thinking of collaborating with another Danish-American institution to scan our joint collections with OCR capability to make them available for access from both institutions. We are initially thinking of in-house use only, but with possible future access via the web. I know a large number of libraries have already done this sort of project, so I have the following questions about your overall project experience (the pros/cons of doing this), the software used for the project, what personnel were involved (staff? volunteers?), as well as possible copyright issues. Our 'obituaries' have come from many different sources, date from the 1880s to the present, and also encompass funeral cards and programs. With respect to copyright, I don't see that in-house use would be a problem, but what about putting such material on the web? Since they are arranged alphabetically, sorting them by before/after 1927 would not be a project I'd like to tackle.

Please answer off-line and thanks for your thoughts/advice.

LIBRARY ONLINE SURVEY CONTINUES

The Prince William Public Library System will be conducting an online survey through Saturday February 15th, 2014 to find out how our patrons use the library's computers and Internet connection and how this service has made a positive impact on their lives. This information will help the library improve its technology services and communicate the value of providing free access to computers and the Internet within the community. The Impact Survey is anonymous, available in English and Spanish, and takes 10-15 minutes to complete. Patrons who complete the survey will be taken to a separate page to enter their name and contact information into a weekly drawing for a 2 GB USB flash drive! Drawings will be held February 3, February 10 and February 18 from entries received the prior week. In the case of multiple entries only one prize per patron will be awarded.

As part of this survey, RELIC is interested in learning what impact our online services have on our customers. Do you use our Digital Library? Electronic resources such as Heritage Quest, Obituaries and Death Notices, or the Local Newspaper Index? Our pathfinders such as ?Roots in Prince William? or ?Chasing the Civil War?? Interlibrary loan? Please let us know. Thanks.

INDEPENDENT LINE

An Informal Survey by Clark Spitler

From 1851 to 1857, the Manassas Gap Railroad attempted to build an independent line running from Gainesville to Alexandria. Clark Spitler has explored the complete route of the line and photographed surviving segments of it, resulting in an illustrated book. He will take you on an armchair tour of the rail line on Tuesday, April 22, at 7 p.m., at Bull Run Regional Library.

Everyone,

I keep churning out new volumes in our series of source guides for each of the original states. So far, New York, South Carolina, and Georgia are now available in either pdf form or in printed copies. Today or Monday the pdf of the Rhode Island book should be posted; the text goes to the printer Monday for printing of the actual book. It will likely be available in mid-March or so. Four down, nine to go.

Virginia is the next one I'm doing, and it will be big I'm sure. It is already over 300 pages with a lot to add. I do not know when that will appear, probably June or so.

Please visit the DAR Store's page to learn the details.
