Guidance Service Available to All

By JIM DIXON

The University Clinical Counseling Service is available to all students, full or part-time. The service is for the student who feels that there is something interfering with his or her academic work—personal or social life, conflict with professors or other students in class, or any other barrier which advice or counseling would help to solve.

The director of the Clinical Counseling Service is Dr. Carolyn Pinkard, who is also an associate professor teaching Human Behavior. At present Dr. Pinkard is the only member of the counselor service and has been since September. Three other counselors are expected to join her in July or September.

50 Students Seen

Since the beginning of the charter class Dr. Pinkard has interviewed about 50 students. Students of both sexes have used the Counseling Center in about even numbers. Each student is seen individually, and all interviews are strictly confidential.

"The service is for someone who wants to realize a fuller potential, one who feels that life is not as rich as it could be or that his or her academic work can be more meaningful," Dr. Pinkard says.

Persons are not directed to the center, though their advisers may recommend they make use of the facility. The service is not for deficient persons, but for those who wish to develop a better understanding of themselves, according to Dr. Pinkard.

The Counseling Center is part of three developmental centers, all located in the Administration Building. The Speech and Hearing Center, headed by Prof. Harris L. Pomrantz; the Reading Center, directed by Dr. Rose F. Spicola; and the Counseling Center make up the Educational Developmental Center. The services of all three centers are available to all University of South Florida students.

Some of the situations that have been brought to Dr. Pinkard are decisions for upper division college choice, what vocations students are best suited for, disturbances with university regulations, and even stress with taking final examinations.

In order to see the clinical counselor a student only has to make an appointment with Mrs. Mahony, who is Dr. Pinkard's secretary, and an interview will be scheduled. The interviews, though not necessarily so, are held weekly until the student feels that he or she has accomplished or can accomplish the problem or situation alone.

Next year when the staff is larger, groups of people who have the same situation confronting them, such as career choice or who all are unhappy about some aspect of university life, may confer with one of the counselors.

"All interviews and records kept by the Developmental Center are confidential and not available to Deans or faculty members," said Dr. Pinkard.

PE Program Requirements Are Changed

A change in physical education requirements has been made by the Planning and Policies Committee, according to Dr. Gilman W. Hertz, director of intramurals and physical education.

The change in the program pertains to the number of semester hours required to attain upper division. Under the new plan, a student is only required to have three semesters of physical education before reaching junior level.

The last of the four required semesters would have to be taken sometime during the junior year in order for the student to reach senior status.

The new system will supplement the one which now requires a student to have four semesters of physical education before entering the junior year in school.

Constitution Completion Date Is Set

At a recent meeting of the Student Constitutional Committee, a calendar was set up for setting the constitution ready for the student body by the beginning of May. The student government will be unicameral.

The rough draft is tentatively set for March 10, and the final draft is to be completed by March 25. The constitution is to be available to the students by Easter so that they will have time to familiarize themselves with its contents before ratification. Ratification or changes will be made to the constitution by May 1.

Officers for the Student Government will be elected in the middle of May. Campaigning for officers will be from May 15 to 19. The officers elected will serve the rest of this year and all of next year.

MERILEE, DO I HAVE STATUS?

Merilee O'Berry helps take care of the Wistar hooded rats in S-324. These rats are trained in various ways with stimulus and reinforcements as part of Human Behavior experiments. If these rats are comparable to people, do they have social status?

SUPERIOR?

Little 'Meeces' Benefit Science Lab Experiments

By BETTY J. WOODARD

Do you hate those "meeces" to pieces? Many students, after visiting the rat laboratory in the Science Building, find that they don't dislike rats as much as they thought they did.

As many or most persons at USF know, there is a rat laboratory on the third floor of the Science Building in Room 324. In this room are housed smart rats, dumb rats, and all kinds of rats which are used for experiments in Human Behavior.

Merilee O'Berry and Larry Touzeau, the two student assistants in the Human Behavior Department, and the many instructors in this department are responsible for the care and training of these rats.

During a visit to this lab, one finds that the sacrifices used for the benefit of science experiments are Wistar hooded rats. The exact technical name is needed when many experiments in many places are being conducted, in order for results of all experiments to be exact.

The rats are identified by a code of digits. Holes are punched in the right ear for decimals and the left ear for hundredths. Some of these rats have been trained to distinguish between kings and queens of a deck of cards. Other rats are trained to jump toward a square with a certain figure drawn on it. Still others are taught to pull a cord and lower a wire basket containing food.

The rate of progress of each rat is determined by the stimulus and the reinforcement offered. If hunger is the stimulus, then the rat's rate of accomplishment will be faster if the reinforcement is food.

Rats are comparable to people or other animals in that some are superior to others. With proper breeding and environment, a very superior generation can be created.

Attending the meet from USF were Bob Bickel, John Kondolick, Sheila Sanford and Bernard Zaidman, who compose the negative and affirmative members of the USF Debate Squad. The team won four out of 12 debates, and debated against such schools as FSU, Miami, University of Florida and St. Pete Junior College.

The sponsor of the club is Dr. George Beauchamp.

USF Debate Club Wins 4 Out of 12

On Feb. 16-18, the USF Debate Club attended a debate meet at Tallahassee at which colleges as far west as Louisiana and as far north as North Carolina participated.

The student body will be divided into 20 groups called civic units with each electing two representatives.

The biggest problem is how to divide the student body into the 20 civic units. Anyone who has ideas on the subject is asked to attend the Interim-Steering Committee tomorrow at 10 a.m. in U-226.

The vice president of the executive branch will preside over the legislative branch. Five senators will also sit in the legislative branch plus five representatives at large selected by the student body.

Democrats Begin Drive To Get JFK

The Young Democrats at USF are starting a 10,000 invitation drive to ask President John F. Kennedy to address the student body and see the campus. This invitation is to be extended for next semester, and is to be presented to him in Washington during the summer.

The YDC held a membership drive last week at which a fairly high number of new members were secured. The club already has adopted a constitution, and officers for this year have been elected. They are: Chairman, Richard Hernandez; vice president, Sally Ostravich; secretary, Ann White; treasurer, Brit Mishoe.

Inviting Public Officials

The current major program of the Young Demos is that of inviting public officials to come on campus to give students, faculty, and the general public an insight into their offices and functions.

The first speaker was Municipal Court Judge Robert Johnson.

The Young Democrats Program Committee is trying to get such persons as Gov. Farris Bryant and U.S. Representative Adlai Stevenson.

Interested Parties Invited

Anyone interested in joining the Young Democrats can contact any of the club officers, or come to U 202 at 10 a.m. the first and third Tuesday of each month. The sponsor of the club is Dr. Robert Goldstein, assistant professor in history here at USF.

Dean Johnshoy Off to Chicago

Dean Howard Johnshoy is attending an annual meeting of the Association of Higher Education in Chicago, Ill. He left Sunday and is expected back late Wednesday evening. All the Higher Educational Institutions will be represented at the national meeting that are members of the A.H.E.

Recreation Grounds Planned for Campus

Picnicking and other recreational facilities are being planned for, as yet undeveloped, parts of the USF campus, according to Clyde B. Hill, director of the physical plant. "However," Hill added, "these facilities will be a long time in coming since we are working out from the immediate area to the extremities of the campus."

Plans now include beautifying the small lake west of the campus on 30th street and the part of the campus that borders on the Hillsborough River. These areas, according to Hill, will be cleared up and landscaped and supplied with tables and benches.

The lake, Hill said, will most likely be the first project to be undertaken since the river is almost inaccessible except by jeep. However, the State Road Department is supposed to extend Fletcher Avenue across the river, which would open the river for development, but Hill added, that this would not take place for at least one and a half to two years.

Although there is no detailed planning as such, the University may provide boating facilities on the Hillsborough River, but probably would not have any equipment that would require constant protection or maintenance.

Hill said that he didn't mind students picnicking on or roaming about undeveloped parts of the campus since there are no areas designated for this purpose, but he added that he hoped students would leave their cars on the main roads so as not to damage the land any further.

Three Types Are Offered; Amount Varies

By VIRGINIA MONTES

Many scholarships are available here at USF to students who have the ability and interest to apply for them before March 15.

Three types are available.

Foundation scholarships are offered by the University of South Florida Foundation in connection with the College Scholarship Service Committee. Students can apply for these scholarships through the dean of student affairs. They are awarded on the basis of ability and personal promise. The amount depends on the financial need of the student.

Local Companies Take Part

Personal or specified scholarships are donated directly by a company or organization. Usually it is a company here in this area, and need and interest of students is sometimes the prime factors in determining the recipients of these scholarships. These are not handled by the university, and the student must apply directly to the organization.

General scholarships such as the state nursing and teaching scholarships are also available. A competitive examination is usually given for these scholarships. And sometimes, as in the case of the teaching and nursing scholarships, a person is required to work for a period of years after graduation for the organization from which he received the scholarship.

The basic yardstick for determining who receives these scholarships is grades, which should be at least above average. Need and personal promise are also considered.

The amount of the scholarships vary a great deal. Some pay just $50 per year while others may pay for most of a student's college education. The state nursing and teaching scholarships are about $400 per year.

List Is Growing

The number of scholarships here at USF at the moment is not great, but as the university increases in students and status the number will increase. Further information on scholarships may be secured from either Dean Jean Battle or Dean Howard Johnshoy.

Social Clubs Organize S. C. Council

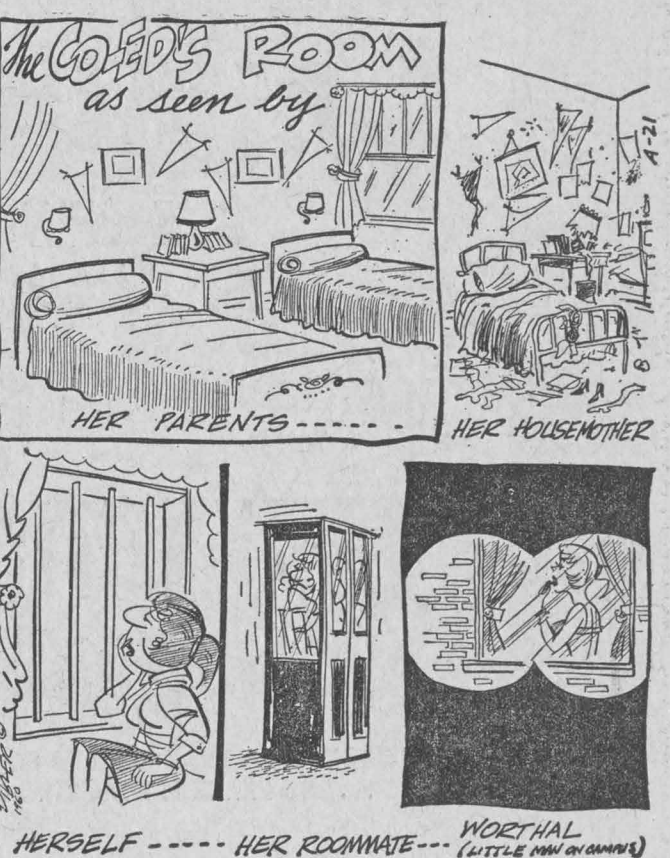

The Social Club Council, which has recently been organized, is a council to represent and coordinate all activities of all social clubs here on campus. The council has had two meetings and has planned another for today at 1 p.m. in the Office of Student Affairs' conference room.

Each social club now organized or organizing should send two representatives to the council. The meeting today is a most important one because of the election of officers for the council.

The council will decide such things as: Qualification, number of members each club may have, rush and pledging requirements, and limiting the number of the big social activities a club may have in one month.

The council is being advised by Dean Howard Johnshoy, dean of student affairs, and Dr. Margaret Fisher, director of women's activities.

Little Man on Campus

Dr. Yates Selected Lecturer

Dr. Robert C. Yates, chairman of the mathematics program here at the university, will serve as visiting lecturer to Florida state high schools for the Mathematics Association of America, it was announced recently.

Under the visiting lecture program Yates will lecture at secondary schools from Palatka and Ocala south to Fort Myers and Fort Lauderdale. With the financial support of the National Science Foundation, the Mathematical Association of America is sponsoring this lecture schedule to strengthen math programs in secondary schools and to provide faculty and students in these schools with an opportunity for personal contacts with productive and creative mathematicians.

Dr. Yates will not only give lectures on mathematical topics but will confer with students and faculty, both singly and in groups. He will also advise students on future opportunity and will discuss teaching problems and curriculum with staff members.

'Asia Minor' Tops in Snack Bar

By CAROL MARTIN

The University of South Florida—The "Snack Bar Set," or of you prefer, "The Coffee Shop Crowd," has found a new record to bid away the time while sipping warm caffeine.

The latest "No. 1" is "Asia Minor" by the Kokomo Trio, and can be heard at least once an hour in the Snack Bar.

The tricky instrumentation has the bounce of rock 'n' roll and the beginning piano sounds emitted confuse one into thinking it may be a sonata.

University of Tampa—Plans are now under way for constructing a student center to be used by the entire student body. Construction should begin in the spring.

Gordon Keller—Patricia Sanders has been named the first "Miss Gordon Keller." The queen and her court were presented at the O'tomy Dance which was held in Tampa University's lobby.

Dexter College—Procurement Officer Keith Bratton has offered six goats to assist the lawn maintenance crew. The goats will be used as assistant grass cutters in Alkire Plaza. Dean of Women Pauline Cochran said she takes a dim view of the six-goat lawn crew but will lodge no official protest.

University of Florida—Bonnie Butler and Barbara Guyer have been announced by the Board of Student Publications as heading the 1962 edition of the Seminole, UF yearbook.

University of Miami—Miami's oldest fraternity, Phi Epsilon Pi, is getting a new fraternity house. The new building is scheduled to open April 15, but will have no residents until next September.

Palm Beach Junior College—A new men's social club, Tri Kappa Lambda, was recently granted a charter by a majority vote of the school faculty.

Florida State University—The annual license tag sale is being sponsored by Omicron Delta Kappa, with proceeds to go to the Robert Crenshaw Memorial Fund. The fund will be used as a scholarship for a sophomore man.

Gulf Coast Junior College—A debating society is the newest organization to be formed on campus. The club is scheduled to compete in the PBJC Invitational Meet in Palm Beach April 28-29.

Florida Southern College—The first full-time alumni director for FSC has been appointed. "Alumni Day" will be held March 11 as a feature of the annual Founder's Week Program.

University of Tampa—The university choir performed with the Tampa Philharmonic March 2-3.

University of Florida—Three Tampa law students have received book awards for having made the highest average in a course.

Gordon Keller—A St. Patrick's Day dance is to be given by the Freshman class on March 15. Members of the revision committee for the Gordon Keller School of Nursing's Student Handbook have been appointed.

Miami University—Four weeks of Shakespeare repertory will be presented July 11-Aug. 15 by the university. This will be the only Shakespeare festival to be held in the South. Players will be selected at public auditions April 6-8.

Florida State University—Students and professional actors and actresses will work together in the FSU pre-Broadway production of "Assignment in Judea." Several students have been assigned to principal roles.

THE SPORTS SCENE

Collegiate Sports Delayed Until 1964 in New Policy

By JOHN GULLETT

Dr. Gilman Hertz, director of physical education, expressed the university's policy on athletics in a recent interview, which doubled as an answer to local sports writers' suggestion for an immediate beginning of intercollegiate athletics by USF.

Intercollegiate athletics, Hertz said, take an equal place with three other areas, within the physical education curriculum at the University. The other areas include: basic physical education, intramural sports, and professional physical education. All are under the division of Student Affairs except professional physical education, which comes under the direction of the College of Education.

In the revised edition of the pamphlet on USF's projected physical education, released last week, the University stated that it "anticipates entering some intercollegiate sports when it has the necessary finances and facilities to enable its teams to practice and train without interrupting the intramural programs designed for all students, and when it has graduated at least one class and has been accredited.

"Until such time as it is fully prepared to enter intercollegiate sports, all games played with other institutions or organizations will be on an intramural rather than an intercollegiate basis.

"We are just not ready at this time to enter into intercollegiate athletics," Hertz said. "We don't have the facilities necessary for such action. As we do get the facilities I would like to see us develop into some inter-school competition, which would probably be tennis and golf. Basketball and baseball would come later."

Conservative Approach Taken

Hertz is taking the more conservative approach to athletics in that he seeks a fully developed intramural program, "for the 90 per cent of the student body that would benefit from it, then enter into varsity competition, using that 10 per cent that wish to excel in such a program."

Hertz said a safe estimate on a starting date for intercollegiate athletics at the university would be after the first graduating class.

Another problem facing such a move is the coaching facilities. "The present staff is an loaded down with classes now. They just don't have the time to devote to varsity teams. Our staff will have to double in size to take care of the increase in enrollment next year. And we may not get the funds for this."

"Of course the big thing now is facilities. We are operating this year without P.E. facilities, so it would be difficult to even think about other programs until we overcome this problem."

Hertz and his staff hope to build a variety of programs, starting with those sports which require less facilities, and organize clubs which would play various independent clubs with mutual interests. Tennis, crew, golf, swimming and track are headed for an earlier establishment than other sports on the intramural level.

He feels an early introduction into varsity sports would interrupt the intramural program. "I have seen too many cases in other institutions where this occurred. After that ultra-modern stadium or field-house is built, the intramural program is overlooked."

Athletics to Be Outgrowth

"By starting at the bottom, and building a good foundation, we hope to eliminate this problem. Athletics are an outgrowth of intramurals." One thing seems apparent, intramurals are not likely to grow out of athletics.

A budget request submitted before the 1961-62 Legislature, which meets this spring, calls for the appropriation of $600,000. This would be divided up within the physical education program, more directly for an Olympic-size swimming pool, running track and additional tennis courts. This would, also, provide for proper fencing around areas of activity, and bleachers for a proposed softball field. Golf facilities are expected to come from this appropriation also. If the legislature decides not to act on this bill, this plan would be put back three more years.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Dress Is Amusing

The present ludicrous emphasis on what is termed "proper" student dress at USF would greatly amuse me except that, as a student, I can easily visualize its implications. These implications bode ill for our newest state university.

A recent and somewhat rabid editorial in the campus edition of the Tampa Times committed the logical blunder of equating educational excellence with formality in dress. I fail to see even a remote connection. The opinion of the author of this editorial, however, would provoke no reply from me if, as he stated, "... as far into the future as we can readily foresee, there are and will be no rules determining what is accepted as appropriate dress on campus." He bows very gracefully at the throne of personal liberty, but his words are manifestly untrue. A movement is, in fact, underway on campus attempting to establish a strong precedent which, coupled with official disapproval, will arbitrarily prohibit most of the more casual and comfortable modes of dress popular with, and available to the college student. This movement will succeed in effectively limiting the freedom of the present and future students at the potentially great USF unless the rest of the student body awakens and acts immediately.

USF is not, and cannot be, a wealthy man's college, despite the apparent desires of some few of its students. The mission of the university is to provide a good education, at a reasonable cost, to the citizens of the state. Such clothing restrictions as are advocated by this apparently wealthy minority would work an unnecessary and very real hardship on those students who are already working and sacrificing to be able to afford the luxury of a college education. My impression was that the university's policy was one of help, not hindrance to the financially embarrassed student.

The editorialist who signs himself J.D. has urged us to recall that this university is in its formative years and that our actions, now, will have a profound effect upon its future. I heartily agree with this consideration but let me phrase the threat in a somewhat more lucid way. Oppressive restrictions on personal liberty have a way of snowballing. Rigidity in the control of individual actions instituted now will set an evil precedent for the future of our school. Our nation was founded upon the great democratic principles of the right and of the ability of each individual to control his own life. Can it be that the guiding principles of American democracy are inadequate as the guiding principles of an American University? Or does J.D. feel, perhaps, that his fellow students are incapable of adult responsibility and might be naughty unless rigidly controlled?

FREE-THOUGHTS

Dear FREE-THOUGHTS:

I would like to call your attention to a recent Human Behavior lecture in which modes of dress in adults was referred to as a direct distinction of classes. Dress was depicted as symbolizing social class (or the class for which one is striving). A recent magazine article also gave evidence that there is a correlation between formality of dress on college campuses and the grade point average of graduates. Could it be that the higher the class, the higher the grade? Although the writer of the editorial does not believe that others among his fellow students are incapable of adult responsibility or should be rigidly controlled, I do believe, however, that the pattern now set by the student body is meritorious and therefore should be adhered to.

Summer Program Is Expecting 800

The summer program here at the university will offer almost all of the courses that are presently being taught with a few changes, stated Dean Jean Battle, director of the summer program.

There will be no physical education courses offered with the exception of Function P.E., Dean Battle said. This is due both to a shortage of staff and to a deemed lack of demand by students for this particular area of courses.

Three-Week Workshop

Dean Battle stated that there would be some health education courses added and also a course in physical education for the elementary teacher. Also being offered is a three week workshop in teaching, sponsored by the Ford Foundation.

Most courses will be eight weeks long. They will meet for 50 minutes six times a week and classes will meet all day long. Free periods are to remain the same and, according to Dean Battle, will be used, as this semester, for lectures and other planned programs.

Freshmen Eligible

Approximately 800 students are expected to enroll for the summer program and will be instructed by 52 full time personnel, teaching, on the average, two courses apiece.

Freshmen students will be accepted into the summer program from the various high school graduation classes, Battle added.

June 3 Deadline

A deadline of June 3 has been set for applications for the summer session. All students will be limited to nine hours of courses. The cost will be $7.50 per semester hour if no more than seven hours are taken. For eight or more hours the total cost will be $54. There will also be an application fee of $5. During the summer session, the University Center will operate at full swing. Dean Battle said that students could participate in the many social programs and recreational activities that have been planned. The campus edition of THE TAMPA TIMES will also be published by a summer journalism class.

Rules Set For Lounges In Center

The University Center committee has set up a set of suggested rules which they wish students would follow as closely as possible. These rules can be found posted on the lounge doors. Many students have stated that these rules are for kids, but many of the same students don't realize the misuse the fixtures in the lounge are getting.

Several of the cushions on the chairs have been stained by drinks brought in the lounges by thoughtless students. To make the matter worse, when they spill something they don't even report it. They don't seem to realize that they make things worse by not reporting it at once so it can be corrected.

Some students don't seem to realize that they are monopolizing these lounges. They set around for hours on end talking, making noise and in general making a nuisance of themselves. Many students have made complaints that every time they enter a lounge they are rejected by the students that occupy the lounges. One lounge in particular, labeled by many as the "Blue Room," is said to be the worst of the lot. The people found in this lounge are actually an organized group who don't like to be called such. They like to consider themselves a group of people who can get together whenever they can.

The question has been brought up whether or not this group is monopolizing this lounge. Yes, they do. But this group is open to all so in a way anyone can enter this lounge and find himself welcome.
