Hi, Jillian--

This doesn't directly answer your question, but I wonder if you are aware of SAA's (Society of American Archivists) Public Library Archives and Special Collections group? Someone may have addressed this question in the PLASC forum (<plasc at forums.archivists.org>), or you could pose it there and get additional replies. (It isn't necessary to be a member of SAA to participate in the forum).

I also have an archival background, but I work in a small public library in a federated system. Based on my experience, what you're currently doing to increase your historical collection's accessibility is light years ahead of what happens in most public libraries. I'm not clear if you have linked or loaded your Toolkit database to the library's catalog. If your library is one of a group that also have their own historical collections, and if the Toolkit database you have created loads reasonably well into the library system's catalog, I think the best thing you could do would be to teach your opposite numbers how to use the Toolkit, as it and DACS are generally unknown to most public librarians.

If the Toolkit database is incompatible with the catalog, and if you are applying archival methods to collections (ie. a family donates a deceased genealogist's boxes of notes, video or audio tape, maps, books, and other research material), I would not advocate replacing the Toolkit with PastPerfect software. Although PastPerfect is much more user-friendly than the Toolkit, unless it has changed recently, PastPerfect doesn't have any place to store and display collection finding aids. It's great for keeping track of objects, donors, and funds, and generating fundraising letters, and you can catalog books if you buy an additional component, but it's proprietary, and it doesn't seem to have been designed to deal with unpublished paper.

I applaud your work so far, and I hope all your co-workers know how and are willing to use your database, so that it doesn't become as hidden as the collections when you're not around.

Best wishes,

Donnis Headley

Subject: [Genealib] CMS for Local History Collections?

Hello,

I'm wondering about the type of content management systems you use for your genealogy/local history collections. Our Local History Room's published books are cataloged as our regular book collection is and included in our OPAC, but I've been wondering how other libraries catalog/classify their research and manuscript collections. I've been using Archivist's Toolkit and catalog them using DACS

(Describing Archives: A Content Standard) because I have an archival background, but I'm not sure what I think about its effectiveness in a library setting. I know others use PastPerfect, though I'm not sure if there's a way to transfer those records to an OPAC. Does anyone else have suggestions/solutions/issues they can weigh in with? Because local history collections are an intersection of library-archive-and even museum collections, I find myself stymied as to a solution! Hearing from others will be very beneficial.

Thanks so much,

Jill

I also work in a Special Collection in a public library and struggle with the best way to organize and catalog the books, manuscript collection, photograph collection, and archives collection. We currently use our opac for most things and add a link in the 856 field to the finding aids. We have most of the manuscripts cataloged in a paper card catalog that is no longer updated. I'm using the standards for ALA's Rare Books and Manuscripts to recatalog them in MARC. Former versions of Past Perfect would actually let you export a MARC record, but the newest version no longer allows that. A local university uses ArchivesSpace and it encodes in EAD.

Our photo collection has a very rough paper index that is a very simple subject cross-reference system. It is no longer updated.

Our digital collections are organized in contentDM. I believe you can import finding aids in it and retain the EAD coding.

We have been trying to keep all the records in one system to avoid patrons having to search several interfaces. Of course, we can't create MARC records for unprocessed collections.

Hope this helps,

Jennifer Daugherty

Our Library is considering a partnership with our local Alzheimer's association to provide programming for folks who are in the early stages of the disease. Family history or genealogy programming was suggested as one of several ideas for this partnership. Anyone out there who has created genealogy programming for these folks? Would love to hear your thoughts or ideas!

For those of you who have patrons actively trying to break down brick walls in genealogical research in the State of Missouri, two new volumes of comprehensive newspaper and Civil War resources have just become available through Gone West Publications. The new volumes are as follows: Missourians in the Civil War, Articles from Missouri Newspapers, Vols. 17 & 182 more of these popular volumes, compiled by Kenneth Weant, are now available. The Civil War affected everyone in Missouri regardless of which side of the conflict they supported. However, very few records exist regarding events in the lives of individuals beyond federal and state military records and scattered newspaper accounts. This series of volumes is designed to consolidate and index existing newspaper data from this period and make it more accessible to historians and genealogists alike. Together the two volumes shed light on the names and details of 8,238 citizens and soldiers involved in the conflict. For more details, please visit <http://www.gonewestpub.com/Publications.html>

Hi Sherry,

Are the indexes to these two works getting picked-up already in the search feature of the website?

NEW IN THE DIGITAL LIBRARY

Here are recent additions to our free Digital Library, accessible at <http://eservice.pwcgov.org/library/digitalLibrary/index.htm>.

* History of Occoquan Baptist Church (also known as Bacon Race and Oak Grove), by Darlene L. Hunter, CG. A detailed chronicle of this congregation from 1765 to 1939, plus notes on associated meeting houses: Beulah (Occoquan), Jackson (Woodbine), and Quantico (Independent Hill).

* Prince William County People, 1701-1865, by Greg Mason. This update includes indexes to taxpayers in 1783, 1784, and 1785; indexes to African American persons and associates mentioned in Joan Peters' abstracts of court minutes 1752-1865; and a preliminary index to the 1782 land tax list.

* Updates to a number of indexes prepared by Margaret Binning: Prince William County High School Graduates (to 1959), Historic Sites Index, Photographic Archive (catalog of historic photos), Births, Marriages, Deaths, and Baker Funeral Home Records.

* Among our historic newspapers online, The Manassas Journal now has full coverage 1895-1939 (that is, all surviving issues to 1939). No general search engine yet, but individual issues may be searched with CTRL+F.

Please consider joining the Friends of Central and Bull Run Libraries whose efforts generously provide support for RELIC's programming and help fund special speakers. We need your membership and help with The Friends Book Shop, their major source of revenue, located in the lobby of Bull Run Library. Here is a link to their membership application: Friends Application<<http://www.pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/Documents/Friends%20of%20Central%20and%20Bull%20Run%20Library.pdf>> Thank you.

FINDING YOUR FAMILY IN THE LIBRARY

Presented by Don Wilson

Searching for your ancestors at a local library or major research center requires a certain amount of planning. RELIC?s Don Wilson will present a talk on ?Finding Your Family in the Library: Making the Most of Your Library?s Resources.? He will discuss resources available at many libraries today, how to prepare for your visit, how to make the best use of your time, and how to obtain expert help for your problem from library staff. The program will be held Thursday, November 13, at 11 a.m., at Bull Run Regional Library.

Please call (703) 792-4540 or email relic2 at pwcgov.org<mailto:relic2 at pwcgov.org> to register for this free program. You may also register at RELIC Programs<<http://www.pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/RELIC/Pages/RELIC-Programs.aspx>> by clicking on the program date.

BEFORE VIRGINIA:

FINDING THE ORIGINS OF COLONIAL IMMIGRANTS

Presented by Victor Dunn, CG

Determining a Virginia immigrant's origins can be a challenge. Certified genealogist Victor Dunn will show what sources and techniques are available to take your Virginia ancestry across the ocean. The program will be held on Tuesday, November 18, at 7 p.m. at Bull Run Regional Library.

To reserve a seat for this free program, please contact RELIC at (703) 792-4540 or at relic2 at pwcgov.org<mailto:RELIC2 at pwcgov.org>. You may also register at RELIC Programs<<http://www.pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/RELIC/Pages/RELIC-Programs.aspx>> by clicking on the program date.

GENEALOGY 201: BEYOND THE BASICS

Presented by Tish Como

Genealogy 101 introduced basic resources and techniques for researching your family's history. Genealogy 201 presents alternate resources to enhance your family's history and advanced search techniques to help maximize your results from online databases including census records, passenger lists, maps, and books. RELIC's Tish Como will present this program on Thursday, December 11, at 11 a.m. at Bull Run Regional Library.

To reserve a seat for this free program, contact RELIC at (703) 792-4540 or at relic2 at pwcgov.org<mailto:RELIC2 at pwcgov.org>. You may also register at RELIC Programs<<http://www.pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/RELIC/Pages/RELIC-Programs.aspx>> by clicking on the program date.

HOW TO BE SUCCESSFUL USING DNA

IN YOUR GENEALOGY RESEARCH

Presented by Jim Bartlett

Learn what you can, and cannot, determine from the various DNA tests (Y-DNA, mtDNA and atDNA) from Jim Bartlett, who has been an active genealogist since 1974. He administers the BARTLETT-DNA Project, with 250 participants, and successfully uses DNA test results as an essential part of his genealogy research. Jim's explanations and examples do not require an understanding of the biology behind the tests. His discussion will provide examples of what the various test results look like and how you can use them to further your genealogy research.

This 90 minute program will be presented twice at Bull Run Library: Thursday, January 8, 2015, at 11 a.m. and on Tuesday, January 20, 2015, at 7 p.m. To reserve a seat for this free program, contact RELIC at (703) 792-4540 or at relic2 at pwcgov.org<mailto:RELIC2 at pwcgov.org>. You may also register at RELIC Programs<<http://www.pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/RELIC/Pages/RELIC-Programs.aspx>> by clicking on the program date.

?Genealogy Doctor? Accepting Appointments for Research Help

Don Wilson, head of RELIC, sets aside time each month for free private sessions to mentor persons researching their family history. A thirty-minute session can be used to discuss and analyze an historical or genealogical problem that has stumped you.

Daytime and evening hours are possible. To set up an appointment, please call RELIC at 703-792-4540 or email relic2 at pwcgov.org<mailto:relic2 at pwcgov.org> . Bull Run Regional Library is located at 8051 Ashton Avenue, Manassas, VA 20109.

Have a question about Prince William County history, places or families? Need guidance with your genealogical research? You may contact RELIC staff for help and advice at Ask RELIC<<http://www.pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/RELIC/Pages/Ask-RELIC.aspx>> or by calling us at 703-792-4540. Hours, September to June (ET): Monday-Thursday 10am-9pm, Friday-Saturday 10am-5pm, Sunday noon-5pm. Closed Federal holidays.

Good question, Mary! Kenneth Weant's books are not currently indexed on the website. All of his books used to be pure indexes, so it didn't make sense to index them on-line. These newer books, however, are transcriptions of original articles, so I think it would be advantageous to put them on-line. I'll speak with him about it and see if he will allow us to do that for the benefit of our visitors.

Message-ID: <1415204002.95716.YahooMailNeo@web162003.mail.bf1.yahoo.com>

Hello all,

We are in the process of setting up online exhibits with some of our photo and postcard collections and we need to update some of our policies. Could any of you that have digital collections online answer a few questions or share copies of your policies?

Do you use watermarks on the online images?
Do you charge for digital and/or physical copies of items in your collection? If so, how much?

Thank you for your time,

Before I retired I was head of digitizing etc at Rochester NY public library.

Yes we used watermarks on everything we did. I now volunteer the with Rochester NY Genealogical Society scanning group, and there we also watermark everything that we do.

See <http://www3.libraryweb.org/lh.aspx?id=1126> , for the library's current policies. See <http://crpc.nyrgs.org/> for what the RGS does. If you want more info I would be glad to talk to you.

We are experiencing a problem with Ancestry Library Edition in our library. Everything works fine until the person tried to "View Original Document" at which point the image is not displayed. and a weird looking orange/black/white screen comes up. But no original document. We have not yet been able to determine if the problem is in our computer system or something new in Ancestry. Any ideas?

Grapevine also has this problem. We think it's because we have IE7 while Ancestry (and FamilySearch) upgraded. We get the message "your browser is outdated." We got around it by using Firefox, but we have to use the URL for ALE every time we access it (and FS). Our IT department is reluctant to upgrade to IE8, so I have no idea how long this scenario will last. Right now we are just happy to have a workaround.

Not getting it in a Library Edition, but I did get something similar on a personal edition recently. It was a screen related to trying an upgraded version of that page. It did not seem to happen consistently, but after several times of clicking, "No, thanks." when it did appear, it ceased for the duration of my usage. I hope that helps.

Our Library uses Win XP with the Internet Explorer supported by XP.
So we use Firefox and Google Chrome for web browsing.

Ours seems to be working today. Are you using IE or another web browser? For a while we were getting a message that Ancestry wouldn't work with our version of IE.

Agreeing with several others. Ancestry Library Edition quit working with IE 8 (and older) several months ago with respect to displaying images. If you are running under Windows XP, you must switch to another browser for ALE (which may mean you have to change your default browser). We (Wisconsin Historical Society) went to Chrome on the affected computers (which, thankfully, were finally decommissioned this week). If you are using a more modern operating system, then install a more modern version of IE and all should be well again.

We notice that it works best in Google Chrome. Especially when you have to print, it brings the images up much faster. You just have to remember to change the census after 1870 to landscape before you print. We also have MS Windows 7.

Our library did their own, and now they are farmed out to a paid service through a local consortium.

But Brooklyn Public Library did theirs through newspapers.com. Ivy Marvel was involved with that project. Her email is -

Hi, Jillian--Who owns the copyright to the digitized papers? Did your library obtain it from the publisher, and does it now belong to you or to Newspapers.com? I hope that's not too nosy a question, but I'm curious because I need to deal with the topic. (The paper for the town I'm working in ceased publication 50 years ago. We have custody of a microfilm copy, but digitizing would make it easier to use. Digitizing is actually publishing, and I don't want to get fouled up with a court challenge. I haven't tried to find out who owns the copyright to the paper, but I think somebody must; doesn't it take about 70 years before something is in the public domain?)

Thanks,
Donnis

Hi Justin,

We just finished our digitization project with Newspapers.com . Our library's Local History department had about 120 years of newspapers in microfilm format that we wanted to provide better access to. As a small library, we did not have the funds or capabilities to do digitization in-house or with a vendor. I contacted Newspapers.com to see if they would be interested in our papers and they were.

The process took a little less than a year from initial contact to the return of the microfilm. We paid to ship the microfilm to Salt Lake but we did not have to pay for the actual digitization. They benefit by having more newspapers to offer on their site; we benefited in not having to pay for digitization or hosting costs. Digitization took about two months and our microfilm was returned to us in perfect shape. We requested that they insured the microfilm while it was gone from the library and returned, which they agreed to.

Because we supplied the papers, our library gets free access to ONLY our papers (not the whole Newspapers.com site) indefinitely, with no expiration. So far, the increase in patron use has been noticeable and most of that is due to the searchable newspapers. We were also given the option of receiving copies of all of the digitized files, which come in TIFFs, JP2s, PDFs, and XML files. According to the contract we signed, we are allowed to do whatever we want with them (host them on our own website/digital collection, etc.) after three years. We decided to pursue this option so that we still have some control over the files, in case anything happens to Newspapers.com someday! (We didn't want all of this to be for nothing!) The files were about 9 terabytes, so we did have to purchase another hard drive- this was the only other expense required besides shipping the microfilm. They sent their hard drives to us and we are just finishing up with transferring the files to our new storage.

Overall, we had a great experience with this and are contemplating doing it again with other local papers in the future, if Newspapers.com is interested. Please feel free to give me a call or shoot me a personal email (my information is under my signature) if you have more questions or need clarifications.

Good luck!
~ Jillian

As a general rule (this is where copyright lawyers make their money), anything before 1923 is public domain. See:

for a longer chart.

Err on the side of caution. However, Hirtle himself said (when I saw him in

One of our local scanners was able to get newspapers die down to 1988. A local library consortium did get permission from a local published to put online anything older than 5 years. It really depends on what the local customs are, as well as the law. Some places jealously guard every word; other do not want to be bothered with anything that not "cutting edge news".

Don't forget - it isn't as simple as the newspaper deciding to grant/not grant permission - ot if/when a newspaper decided to copyright their newspaper.

"Works" are under copyright at the moment they are created.

There are also items published in the newspaper that were written by employees - and newspapers can give permission but if say a photographer granted the rights to use his photo in a newspaper issue - that does not give the right to anyone else to republish it - which is what would happen if you digitized the newspaper and put it online.

Look at the Tasini case - which spoke to that issue.

See: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/New_York_Times_Co._v._Tasini

You really want to consult a copyright lawyer.

Someone suggested - just do it and if no one complains then you're OK. While I appreciate the Robin Hood spirit - consider that you are doing this on behalf of your library - and so if digitizing the microfilm is a breach of copyright the library can be at risk for decades into the future - I don't know if there is a statute of limitations on this - but why risk the library's meager budget on expensive litigation?

You have multiple layers of copyright.

The copyright of the creators of the content that was published in a newspaper - the writers, photographers etc.

The copyright of the newspaper itself - regardless of whether or not it ever filed for copyright

The copyright of the firm that microfilmed the original newspapers - they own the images on the microfilm

The copyright ownership of the digital images - created by the firm that does that work - same as the above

Every step along the way carries copyright liabilities - that's why you so often see digitization projects stop at 1921 - to avoid the liability of sorting that out. Sorting this out takes effort - you want legal advice. All parties need to agree - in writing - after that.

I am not a lawyer and don't play one on TV this is just my opinion

Well phrased, Tom.

I am not making this story up.

Not that long ago the library digitized all their back issues of the city historian's quarterly. So far, so good. But honest to gosh, the person who bought the house that the architect (who was the subject of one of over 200 issues) found pictures in the house, and asserted copyright to them. He claimed that the architect (from whose estate he bought the house) did not intend for pictures of the plans to be put on the internet (after all, the house was built 100 years ago), and that he (the buyer) wanted to be paid for the use of the photos. What happened was the issue was pulled offline, the pictures removed, and the content re-posted. No one won. Silly? Sure, but the city was not about to pay any money to anyone.

As he said, see a lawyer.

We are experiencing a problem with Ancestry Library Edition in our library. Everything works fine until the person tried to "View Original Document" at which point the image is not displayed. and a weird looking orange/black/white screen comes up. But no original document.

We have not yet been able to determine if the problem is in our computer system or something new in Ancestry. Any ideas?

Posting on behalf of Teresa McMillin:

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Lind Street Research Publishes a New Guide for finding German Military Records for the former Kingdom of Hanover INVERNESS, ILLINOIS, August 1, 2014 ? Teresa Steinkamp McMillin, Certified GenealogistSM and German research expert, is proud to announce the publication of Guide to Hanover Military Records, 1514?1866, on Microfilm at the Family History Library. Military records for the former Kingdom of Hanover in Germany can include a soldier?s date and place of birth, his father?s name, and widows? pensions. This publication is the only English-language guide to this gold mine of information for genealogists. With this guide, a researcher can quickly determine all available records for a regiment and time period and know where to find them in the Family History Library?s (FHL) microfilm holdings in Salt Lake City, Utah.

The records in this collection span 130 rolls of FHL microfilm and go beyond simply listing names of soldiers. In addition to the typical details in the muster rolls, transfers to and from other companies provide clues to additional muster rolls to review. The many other types of records in this collection include regimental journals, pension data, marriage consents, field church books, and even horse muster rolls, including physical descriptions of the horses and the names of the soldiers who rode them, and much, much more.

Easy to use, this guide is organized chronologically and includes brief historical overviews at the beginning of each major section. The book explains the history of the former Kingdom of Hanover and includes a detailed explanation of how to use this guide, demonstrated with examples. This guide book is a must-have for anyone researching ancestors from the former Kingdom of Hanover in Germany.

?McMillin has produced a thorough, detailed guide to the soldiers? records, geography, and military history of the Kingdom of Hanover. Her book is the key that unlocks the puzzle of which microfilm your ancestor?s military record is found among the 130 Hanover military microfilms at the Family History Library.? -- Ernest Thode

?Until now this collection has hardly been touched by family historians, mostly because of the difficulties associated with locating the?microfilms. It?s an incredibly helpful work.? ? Baerbel Johnson

?The 400+ pages of this guide will save any genealogical or historical researcher dozens of frustrating hours trying to find valuable information in this collection. Although painstakingly detailed, it is ridiculously easy to use.? -- Michael Lacopo

Teresa Steinkamp McMillin, Certified Genealogistsm has had a life-long passion for genealogy. In 2006, Teresa founded Lind Street Research, a company dedicated to helping clients trace their German ancestry. Since then, she has helped many people discover their family history. Teresa also writes family history books and is a popular speaker for local and national genealogical societies, sharing her knowledge with the genealogical community.

Subject: [Genealib] Genealogy Librarian and Staff Survey Reminder
Message-ID: <1416591491.12842.YahooMailNeo@web185401.mail.gq1.yahoo.com>

Dear Library Friends,

I am sending a reminder about my survey which will close on Sunday, November 30. If you have not already done so, please consider taking a few minutes to answer my questions about your educational preparation and continuing education in genealogy and genealogical librarianship.

If you have already participated, I thank you.

https://www.surveymonkey.com/s/Genealogy_Librarians

Taking the survey will take about 15 minutes of your time. Completion and submission of the survey indicates voluntary consent to take part in this study. Participation is voluntary and the survey may be stopped at any time. For further information regarding the rights of research participants, please contact the Chair of the Institutional Review Board of Southeastern Louisiana University at 985-549-2077.

The information that you supply will be completely confidential. No attempt will be made to identify you after you submit the online survey. The information gained from this survey will only be reported as group data, and at no time will your name be identified with any response. It is possible that some of the results of this survey will be used in an article or conference presentation. If you have any questions about this survey, please contact the researcher, Beth Stahr, MLS, MA, CG at 985-549-5056 or bstahr at selu.edu or her supervisor, Mr. Eric Johnson at 985-549-3860.

Thank

you for your interest. The survey will remain open through the end of November. Please feel free to pass the survey link along to others who may be interested in participating.

Announcement: RUSA Genealogy Preconference - Program and Registration

Meeting the Needs of Your Family History Patrons

RUSA Genealogy Preconference (ALA Midwinter)

Friday, January 30, 2015
Hyatt Regency Chicago
151 East Wacker Drive
Chicago, IL 60601

An interactive day learning and networking for all librarians serving genealogists. Leaders from the library and genealogical industry will cover a variety of topics, including strategic planning, partnerships, and serving diverse populations. Luncheon provided by our sponsor, ProQuest.

Advanced free registration required: <http://bit.ly/1FdaG10> (space is limited).

8:30am Registration

9:00am Winding Your Way Through the Web: Popular Sites for Genealogists
Ginger Frere, MLIS

The Internet can be an overwhelming place for genealogists and those who serve them. This session will introduce several free websites, which will help your patrons discover when great-grandpa was born or how he came to the U.S. Learn about FamilySearch, Cyndi's list and other reliable sites for doing genealogy.

10:30am Genealogy: Getting Your "Free" On Thomas MacEntee

In recent years, more and more free resources have come online for genealogists and family historians. Besides the most popular free sites, you'll learn about little-known resources that can open research doors and break down brick walls. In addition, you'll understand how free sites work and how to build your own toolbox of free online resources.

11:45am Lunch (sponsored by ProQuest)

1:30pm Partnerships for the 21st Century - Libraries, Societies, and Commercial Companies can create an Amazing Partnership
David E. Rencher, AG, CG, FUGA, FIGRS

The introduction of the digital age and an array of amazing online resources have rewritten the information landscape. Coupling this with a library's printed core collection strains existing budgets and resources. Learn and share ideas to stretch those resources to the benefit of all your patrons.

2:45pm Beyond the Pedigree Chart: Serving Diverse Populations
Matthew Rutherford, MLIS

This session will present strategies for attracting and serving genealogy researchers with various ethnic and non-traditional family histories. Challenges and solutions for working successfully with African American, Jewish, adoptee, and other populations whose bloodlines fall outside a traditional pedigree chart will be discussed.

Register online at: <http://bit.ly/1FdaG10>

About the Speakers

Ginger Frere, MLIS, is a reference librarian in the Genealogy and Local History Section at the Newberry Library in Chicago where she is co-director of ChicagoAncestors.org, a website for finding historical information about Chicago. She is a frequent presenter in the Chicago-land area and also works with private clients.

Thomas MacEntee is a professional genealogist specializing in the use of technology and social media to improve genealogical research and as a means of interacting with others in the family history community.

David E. Rencher, AG, CG, FIGRS, FUGA, is employed as the Chief Genealogical Officer for FamilySearch. A professional genealogist since 1977, he is an Accredited Genealogist^{CM} with ICAPGenSM in Ireland research and a Certified GenealogistSM with the Board for Certification of Genealogists[?]. He is a past-president of the Federation of Genealogical Societies.

Matthew Rutherford, MLIS, is Curator of Genealogy and Local History at the Newberry Library in Chicago. He is responsible for genealogy collection development and oversees the Newberry's genealogy reference services. He regularly presents genealogy seminars and workshops in the Chicago area and also teaches RUSA's online Genealogy 101 course.

Hello All!

This is coming from a patron's query, I was wondering if anyone has a strong opinion about what is the "best" software for people who have very blended families to utilise. Please note, I do not need to be directed to reviews, etc. Just looking for opinions from any folks who have opinions, first hand experience, that sort of thing, etc.

Thanks!!!

Mary

The State Library of Arizona received a copy of "Shrewsbury and Springfield Townships York County, Pennsylvania: Index and Summary to Connected Draft Maps and discovered that the book is missing pages 65-72.

If any library on this list has a copy, would you please check to see if your copy has the pages we are missing. I can then ask our ILL person to request photocopies.

Thanks,
