DAR is pleased to announce that we have added a new feature to our online collection of databases known as the Genealogical Research System (GRS): http://services.dar.org/public/dar_research/search/?tab_id=o. DAR collections contain thousands of Bible records from the Family Register sections and other pages. To open up for research more of our large holdings of transcriptions of these valuable sources, a "Bible" tab has been added to the previous searches in the GRS (Ancestor, Member Descendants, GRC, Resources, Library Catalog).

At the present time, one may search this database of approximately 30,000 Bible records taken from our Genealogical Records Committee Reports. This is an ongoing project as member volunteers review the GRC database to post more materials found in those nearly 20,000 volumes. As time progresses, we will add other Bible listings from other sources in our collections.

Please click on the following link to go directly to the Bible record search screen. You will also notice the other ways to search our collections within the GRS.

http://services.dar.org/Public/DAR_Research/search/?Tab_ID=12

At the present time, if someone wishes to order copies of a specific Bible record, they will need to contact the DAR Library's Search Services for copies: http://www.dar.org/library/search-services. We are developing the steps for the ordering of pdfs of all of the Bible records for online ordering in the near future. This will be similar to the recent addition of electronic ordering of non-restricted supporting documentation from application papers of DAR members. Documentation that is less than 100 years old is restricted for privacy reasons.

Remember: DAR Collections are not limited to the period of the American Revolution or to the families of DAR members!

Enjoy the searching!

I want to thank all of you who responded to my email request a few months back regarding your policies and copyright issues with your local newspaper morgues.

Without your help and advice, I would not have received yesterday 83 boxes of clippings and photographs and over a hundred original volumes of the local newspaper.

I did not sleep the night before. When the boxes arrived, I wanted to stay in the building and open every single box. It was so difficult to contain my enthusiasm. I am thrilled for the community that we now have an incredible historical documentation of our architectural and cultural history.
Thank you, thank you everyone!

I have experience using the Scan Pro 3000, ST 200 (old model since been replaced with the Viewscan III), and the MS6000 by Minolta. My reviews are below:

MS6000 by Minolta
The best thing about this one is it looks and ?feels? like the old school machines. If you have techno-phobes, this is a good transitional machine. They can still print the old fashioned way or they can use the scanner software on an external computer. Negatives-for budget reasons we didn?t want to pay the $2500 for the Minolta printer (which you have to purchase to do the direct print), so you HAD to use the scanning software to print. This defeated the purpose of choosing something with a familiar format. Also, their software isn?t the greatest and has limited editing.

ST 200
This is an older model for ST Imaging, so I am sure that some of this has improved. The biggest problem was the high resolution scans. It took the turtle head (as we liked to call the tiny scanner that popped out) forever to scan. It could take several minutes. Other than that, it was a stable machine. The software would also freeze if you didn?t save the scans. If you had more than 10 on the ?desktop? of the software, it would crash. Again, this might now be fixed. I worked with an entire lab of these and the problem occurred over and over again.

Scan Pro 3000
This is the current machine we are using. Of the other ones, this has been the best. It does high definition scanning and saves directly each image. We also opted for a few extras liked the OCR software. It is a little buggy, but that also might have to do with our county? s computer network conflicting with it. It will do automated scanning of a reel, but there are issues with it setting up the frames correctly. Other than that, I really like it. Oh, and it does have a weird design flaw where if the glass gets scooted over it will hit the unit and possibly break it.

If you have any specific questions or are curious on pricing, let me know. I?ve been several places where we bought new machines and had to get pricing. The most recent was a year ago.

Thanks,

Jennifer

We had to make the tough decision last year whether or not to replace broken down microfilm reader machines.

We ultimately decided to digitize our microfilm. I did a lot of research, and we settled on the Advantage Company. They charge us $99 a roll, which includes digitization and indexing. We paid a onetime fee of $500 for them to create a website for us. http://uncleremus.advantage-preservation.com/

We have been extremely happy with our decision to convert. Our patrons are excited to be able to access the collection from any internet connection, at any time.

I would be happy to answer any questions about the process.

Hello List,
Wondering how institutions are handling the ever-increasing donations of genealogy research notes that are "born digital".?
Does anyone have any policies currently in place to guide the donor before they hand over a thumb drive with 42,000 names and gobs of associated media from an old/brand new version of pick-a-flavor-genealogy-software? We don't want to turn donations like these away, but it's beginning to look like we might have to.
In a quick and sloppy search of the Genealib List Archives, I found a very helpful response to this question from Susan Scouras at the WV Archives and History Library but it is six years old -- from* July 2009*. Has anything changed over the past 6 years?

[Genealib] Donated Genealogy Research
As Susan points out, the cost of ink tends to cause people to balk if they have to print all of their research notes out. Like most institutions, we have limited resources to devote towards making "born digital" information accessible to current and future researchers. Keeping the material in digital format and providing backward and forward software compatibility is simply not possible.

Many thanks!

Keeping up with the ever changing world of digital technology would make it hard to accept file which are digital. You would have to make sure you had software to match every file that came across your desk and what would you do if the software was old and outdated. I could not see our library accepting digital format at this time until some procedures and collection development policies were set down.

Why couldn't you specify that they be formatted as a PDF?

I would hazard a guess that a PDF file or a GEDCOM would be useful - as those are SOMEWHAT standardized. Also, you could tell a prospective donor to scan the items into a digital format. But donating a flash drive with (name of program) files seems to be a futile task. Just my 2 cents.

Hello List,

Wondering how institutions are handling the ever-increasing donations of genealogy research notes that are "born digital".

Does anyone have any policies currently in place to guide the donor before they hand over a thumb drive with 42,000 names and gobs of associated media from an old/brand new version of pick-a-flavor-genealogy-software? We don't want to turn donations like these away, but it's beginning to look like we might have to.

In a quick and sloppy search of the Genealib List Archives, I found a very helpful response to this question from Susan Scouras at the WV Archives and History Library but it is six years old -- from July 2009. Has anything changed over the past 6 years?

[Genealib] Donated Genealogy Research
As Susan points out, the cost of ink tends to cause people to balk if they have to print all of their research notes out. Like most institutions, we have limited resources to devote towards making "born digital" information accessible to current and future researchers. Keeping the material in digital format and providing backward and forward software compatibility is simply not possible.

Many thanks!

Scanning to digital wouldn’t be much better than just having the flash drive. Same problem with changes in technology. When asked by potential donors, I am telling them to do their best to put it in some kind of book format and print it off. Then, if they have time and can afford it, print off their files on acid free paper and arrange in paper folders. Sounds primitive, I know, but someone will be able to read the paper copies 50 years from now.

Unfortunately libraries cannot depend on public funding to construct, maintain or modify facilities to archival standards. When I show patrons the archival materials suppliers website so they can order their own preservation supplies they gasp, and that is the “visible” cost. I am still not completely convinced that printer ink will hold up half as long as oak gall ink. We do what we can, as we can. Triage?

What's best for newspaper depends on which service covers your local papers. For Oshkosh, Genealogy Bank has less than 5 years of newspapers; while NewspaperArchive.com has nearly 100.

Also good are GenealogyBank (best for newspapers) and Fold3 (best for military records).

I wasn't clear--what I meant was although GenealogyBank has other types of records, their main strength is newspapers. The "BEST" database is always the one that has what you actually need. [?]

I would also say Fold 3 for military records. Findmypast is good too, but the main focus is UK/Ireland so it might depend on your population if it's worth it for you.

I agree that a newspaper database would be good. For the different subscription databases, you can see what newspapers are covered before you subscribe. Check them out (newspapers.com, newspaperarchive.com and genealogybank.com), to see which is most helpful for you.

The lookup capability is entirely different. Some people prefer the fiche, but they have to know about it.
Every time the IGI on fiche was updated they added some data and dropped some data.

Fold3 for military and some other good records and FindMyPast because they are adding PERSI. PERSI Archives is in HeritageQuest Online. All the files since updating in HQO was discontinued will be in FindMyPast.com

Thanks very much for the comments re: donated digital genealogy files. They will help the Dyer define a policy about accepting/not accepting these types of donations.?
Amusingly, by asking this question to the list, I realized that I was going down the same path as the "thumb-drive donors" with my personal genealogical research. I am mending my ways. ?:-)

Hello all,

We have ScanPro3000s. We like them, our patrons like them, and the image quality is very good, but depends on the source material. The ability to adjust specific areas on a page is helpful. I don't think the Autofocus is all that great, but the manual focus adjust is really good.

About the automatic scanning feature: Whether it works or not depends on the microfilm. Issues such as the pages being filmed to close together or pages being different sizes can defeat the system.

We have all sorts of microfilm materials- newspapers, letters, ledgers, postcards, identification documents, notes of scrapes of paper, in 45 languages and at least 6 alphabets, typescript and handwritten. Needless to say, the OCR doesn't work that well for us, and we only have it on one machine.

The glass and platens get dusty easily, but I don't know if that is just our reading room. A clean blush brush does a good job of cleaning.

I have a question on a will from Sussex County, Delaware which was written in 1720. The copy I received from the Delaware archives is typewritten which indicates that it has been transcribed at least once since the original handwritten one was made. Evidently the handwritten copy no longer exists. In the bequeaths to the children it states the following which I have typed exactly as written:

"Item I Give my Son William all Man One Shilling Sterling.
Item I Give my Son John Mullinix One shilling Sterling.
Item I Give my Daughter Penelope Obrain [sic] One Shilling Sterling.
Item I Give my Daughter Mary Mullinix all the remaining parts of my estate...."

My question concerns the first son listed. I'm interested in everyone's thoughts about what is meant by the words "all Man" after the name of William? Thanks.

Executor Name:
dau. Mary Mullinex

Witness Names:
William Dainley, Joseph Lane, John May

Will Probate Date:

I would suspect that whoever transcribed the will could not interpret Mullinex after William and became very creative as "all Man." Note that the last names are given on John, Penelope and Mary and not on William in your transcription.

I think it might be a surname like Allman, like the Allman Brothers Band. But there are two children named Mullinix and one of them is male, so why a different surname for the father? Could the Mullinix children be stepchildren? Probably not in the legal terminology of the day.

Guessing from the original poster's name that this 1720 will is for a Mullinax family.

Could 'all Man' be a mistranscription of Mullinax? In that case, all the children other than Penelope have the same surname, and Obrain {O'Brian?} could be a married name. Such mistranscriptions do happen.....

That would seem to be my Occam's razor answer, barring different information from other sources.

Since the writer of the will was a Penelope Mullinix, perhaps she had been previously married to somebody name Allman with whom she had son William, then subsequently married to Mullinix with whom she had at least two of the other children. The daughter Penelope's father could be either an Allman or Mullinix.

Good Morning!

A patron just searched the FORTUNE surname in the 1810 census. He got 51 hits in various counties and cities. Eight hits placed the family in Albemarle County, Virginia. These are his people.

But Amherst emerged from Albemarle in 1761, almost 50 years before the 1810 census.

Any ideas about what's going on? What recourse do you suggest?

Thank you.

Hello all-
I'm wondering if you can help me. Several years ago all the microfilm reels of our census soundexes were thrown into the garbage. Our genealogy clerk saw this and rescued them. She and another genealogy researcher would like them put back into the collection. I think there are many, many, rolls—maybe several hundred. Is there any value to keeping the microfilm? She brought in one roll for me to look at, it's from the 1900 NY census.

Yes! So many names have been garbled in transcription for the electronic databases that the Soundex on microfilm still has much value. I have found it especially useful for names of immigrants that may have been spelled several different ways, all of them mis-transcribed. I think this would make a New York 1900 Soundex very valuable.

I agree with Susan! Also, as long as there are microfilm readers I prefer to keep the microfilm. It is available when the digital sites are not and if you always remember what is not included on the Soundex can give you a variant spelling on the surname. German family surname spelling variations can be mind boggling.

Hello all-
I'm wondering if you can help me. Several years ago all the microfilm reels of our census soundexes were thrown into the garbage. Our genealogy clerk saw this and rescued them. She and another genealogy researcher would like them put back into the collection. I think there are many,many, rolls-maybe several hundred. Is there any value to keeping the microfilm? She brought in one roll for me to look at, it's from the 1900 NY census.

I agree with keeping the films. I once had a family whose name was SO TERRIBLY indexed, that I was able to identify it only by the family names and address. Even the Soundex was mis-coded, and I found it only by luck seeing it on a card.

I also agree with Susan and Nancy. Soundex has found ancestors that no other source located. I especially like the arrangement by first name within a Soundex number.

This may or may not be a "one-off" story related to the value of those Soundex films.

Several years ago when I worked at the Virginia Room in the Roanoke Public Libraries, a researcher was looking in ALE and HQ for a family in the 1910 Virginia census without success. She searched the 1910 Soundex film and found the family. With this information she revisited HQ and ALE, but again without success.

She went to the Library of Virginia in Richmond which holds census registers (if my memory isn't failing me) and looked at the physical register. The family had been enumerated and was in the register.

We theorized that the Soundex was created from the registers themselves, but HQ and ALE census records were created from reviewing the microfilm of the registers. When the registers were being filmed, the technician must have accidentally turned two pages together instead of just one. So a page or two were not filmed, therefore not indexed, therefore not found on ALE & HQ. But were found through a search of the Soundex.

Dealing with cranky computers and loosing materials during upgrades has made me very determined to keep all of our microfilm as long as there are machines to read it, even ones that must be hand cranked and do not print!

According to our researcher, other records circa 1810 (I've not seen them) clearly state Amherst.

Can anyone recommend a photograph expert? Someone that can do something similar to what Maureen Taylor does? She was great, but we already had her come and do a program and we are looking for something similar for a grant, but we want to do a different speaker instead of the same one.

Hello all,

Since the topic of digitization was raised, I thought I would point out that many (not all) of the soundexes are available for free on the Internet Archive (www.archive.org) thanks to the Allen County Public Library. I've successfully used soundex cards to help fill in information gaps when the actual census records were in poor condition. I've attached the 1920 census and soundex card for Eliza Monrow's family as an example.

The Internet Archive can be a little overwhelming, and if you haven't been there in a while it's been completely redesigned. Below are the search terms I use to locate the microfilm on the website:

Census Indexes Available on the Internet Archive

T734 – T789
Index (Soundex) to the 1880 Population Schedules of the Tenth Census of the United States. 2,367 rolls
Search terms: soundex AND collection:1880_census

T1030 – T1070
Index (Soundex) to the 1900 Population Schedules. 7,846 rolls.
Search terms: soundex AND collection:1900_census
*Note: Indexes for following states are currently unavailable on the Internet Archive: Maryland, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wyoming. Other states, such as Missouri, Rhode Island and South Carolina appear to be missing rolls. *

T1259 – T1279
Index (Soundex/Miracode) to the 1910 Federal Population Census Schedules. 4,642 rolls.
Search terms: 1910 census index AND collection:microfilm
Note: Indexes exist for 21 states including Alabama, Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia.

M1548 – M1604
Index (Soundex) to the 1920 Population Schedules. 8,584 rolls.
Search terms: 1920 census AND soundex
*Note: Indexes for New Jersey and Mississippi appear to be missing. Some states, such as Missouri, Minnesota and Illinois are missing rolls. *

M2049 – M2060
Index (Soundex) to the 1930 Population Schedules. 1,587 rolls
Search terms: 1930 census AND soundex
Note: Soundexes were created for the following states: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky (part), Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia (part). Unfortunately, only Alabama, Kentucky, and Louisiana are available on the Internet Archive.

Tips:

1.) Add the words AND Illinois to limit your search results to the state of Illinois. This syntax works with other states, too.
2.) Sort your search results by "date archived" in ascending order. It also helps to display in list view with the show details box checked.

3.) When viewing a film, use the buttons on the Navigation bar enable single page view and zoom the focus in. Then hide the Navigation bar to enable more fluid scrolling with your mouse.

By the way, there is a TON of NARA microfilm available on the Internet Archive. Drop me a line, and I'll send you a list I've compiled that includes search terms and URLs.

Hope this helps!

Thank you for your great email about the NARA microfilms on the Internet Archive. Yes, I would love it if you would send me your list.

> T1259 - T1279
> Index (Soundex/Miracode) to the 1910 Federal Population Census Schedules.
Search terms: 1910 census index AND collection:microfilm
Note: Indexes exist for 21 states including Alabama, Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia.

M1548 - M1604
Index (Soundex) to the 1920 Population Schedules. 8,584 rolls.
Search terms: 1920 census AND soundex
Note: Indexes for New Jersey and Mississippi appear to be missing. Some states, such as Missouri, Minnesota and Illinois are missing rolls.

M2049 - M2060
Index (Soundex) to the 1930 Population Schedules. 1,587 rolls
Search terms: 1930 census AND soundex
*Note: Soundexes were created for the following states: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky (part), Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia (part).
Unfortunately, only Alabama, Kentucky, and Louisiana are available on the Internet Archive.*

Tips:
1.) Add the words AND Illinois to limit your search results to the state of Illinois. This syntax works with other states, too.
2.) Sort your search results by date archived in ascending order. It also helps to display in list view with the show details box checked.
3.) When viewing a film, use the buttons on the Navigation bar enable single page view and zoom the focus in. Then hide the Navigation bar to enable more fluid scrolling with your mouse.

By the way, there is a TON of NARA microfilm available on the Internet Archive. Drop me a line, and I'll send you a list I've compiled that includes search terms and URLs.

Hope this helps!

1. I totally agree on keeping the microfilm. Too often the transcribers are totally off (and as I have done some transcription I do understand it is not easy to read some of the handwriting!) or the computers are not working or busy. Always good to have a non-techy back up.

2. I have duplicates of these 2 books: Sumner County, Tennessee Deed
Abstracts, 1793-1805, v.1 and Circuit Court Docket, 1888-1889, Overton County, Tennessee. If you wish either or both, please email me and I will be glad to send them to you.

I don't know what level or research you do so please bear with me if this is to basic but...if they have land records listing the family that does not prove they were in the county. Only that they owned land in the county. Have they looked at tax records to support their other information? Also Wes Pippenger (SP?) has authored a set of books "Index to Va Estates 1800-1865 published by the Virginia Genealogical Society. I am not at home or I would like the family up but suggest they check the vol for Amherst and the surrounding counties. That may provide some clues.

Let me also add that I have purchased from the Amherst Museum a map of the county showing all the early land patents with names and acreage. This was done by a local historian who also did the same for Nelson County. If they believe the family was here when the county was formed or shortly after I will be glad to check that -- again when I get back to Fl next week.

If you have any questions please feel free to drop me a line.

Leslie,

A couple of thoughts 1- there could be Fortunes that are not head of household and would not get picked up with a surname - just counted. 2- I remembered that there were missing counties in 1810 neither Amherst or Albemarle is missing but when I checked Carol McGinnis's book she notes that there are many omissions from the published index. Apparently if the author could not determine the name she left them out. If your patron hasn't done tax records (land and personal property) they need to do that. Much better indication of location. If you have people with land in both counties they will only be paying the head portion of the personal property tax where they live. They might want to find a location with microfilm and scan since it is possible all the online indexing relies on the bad index.

We have all 39 of the 1967 Arno Press reprint of The works of Hubert Howe Bancroft available as a set, or even to replace individual volumes.

For those unfamiliar, they originally came out in the 1880's, I believe, and have many essays and copies of original documents that primarily deal with the history of the Western U.S., as well as Mexico, Central America, and South America.

The usual caveat applies. Postage over $3 should be reimbursed. We are participating on courier routes: Kansas Library Express, Bluesky (CO/WY), and Trans-Amigos.

Offer open to noon (CDT), June 30, 2015.

Message-ID: <B54010CB40BD3D4DB61FCC9233B74E945D3379@Mail3.darlib.org>

Everyone,

I am very pleased to announce the publication of my latest book in the DAR
Library's source guide series for the original thirteen states. This massive volume is Virginia in the American Revolution: A Source Guide for Genealogists and Historians. At over 1,300 pages, this guide covers not only the modern Commonwealth of Virginia, but also the State of West Virginia, the Commonwealth of Kentucky, and the area of the Old Northwest during the period of the Revolutionary War. It is chock full of descriptions of records, articles, books, theses, dissertations, manuscripts, etc., and provides the locations of unique materials. [This book weighs more than either of my granddaughters did when they were born - 8 lbs. We'll see if granddaughter no. 3 weighs more in a couple of weeks!!! :)]

If interested, please use this link to find out the ordering details from the DAR Store. And, yes, they do accept purchase orders from libraries!!!

http://www.dar.org/dar-shopping/dar-online-store/books-brochures-leaflets?page=2

The previous volumes for New York, South Carolina, Georgia, and Rhode Island are also available. All source guides may be purchased in either printed form or as a pdf for easy searching. Both versions include the printed index.

Massachusetts with Maine is well underway for publication later this year. Then we do North Carolina and the remaining states.

the DAR

Everyone,

I am very pleased to announce the publication of my latest book in the DAR Library's source guide series for the original thirteen states. This massive volume is Virginia in the American Revolution: A Source Guide for Genealogists and Historians. At over 1,300 pages, this guide covers not only the modern Commonwealth of Virginia, but also the State of West Virginia, the Commonwealth of Kentucky, and the area of the Old Northwest during the period of the Revolutionary War. It is chock full of descriptions of records, articles, books, theses, dissertations, manuscripts, etc., and provides the locations of unique materials. [This book weighs more than either of my granddaughters did when they were born - 8 lbs. We'll see if granddaughter no. 3 weighs more in a couple of weeks!!! J ]

If interested, please use this link to find out the ordering details from the DAR Store. And, yes, they do accept purchase orders from libraries!!!

http://www.dar.org/dar-shopping/dar-online-store/books-brochures-leaflets?page=2

The previous volumes for New York, South Carolina, Georgia, and Rhode Island as also available. All source guides may be purchased in either printed form or as a pdf for easy searching. Both versions include the printed index.

Massachusetts with Maine is well underway for publication later this year.
Then we do North Carolina and the remaining states.

This free index?lists over 500 French Canadians from Quebec that aided the Americans during the Revolutionary War. The names?appear in the Baby, Taschereau, and Williams journal and/or "Canadian Participants in the American Revolution - An Index," by Virginia DeMarce. Most of the individuals in the index never left Quebec. http://www.learnwebskills.com/patriot/frenchcanadianpatriots.htm

We just got back in the mail (not in the original envelope) 3 census books from Jackson Co., OR, 1870 census of Multnomah Co., OR and 1870 of Josephine Co., OR. I checked my records and cannot find who I sent them to. This would have been the beginning of May. If they were promised to you, please let me know and I will resend them.
