Hi, All -

I am new to this group, and am in need of your advice. One of our local genealogical societies, which has been housing their collection of books and periodicals (reference use only) at our Central Library, has now donated their collection to the library. We are planning to keep the collection as it is, but a collection development policy needs to be written now that the items belong to us.
Writing the policy is my job, and I'm unsure how to go about it. Do any of you have any advice or have examples of genealogy collection policies you can send me?
I'm also searching for information online and in books.

Thank you in advance for your help!

Beth,
      Our library is both a genealogy library and a local history archive. We use a Deed Of Gift form to ensure that all items given to us are permanent gifts. Even with a Deed of Gift we have had one or two situations come up when someone decides they would like to see the items in another collection, or take them back as the "items are not used". It is always an uncomfortable situation, but with the Deed of Gift we are able to show the original paperwork and suggest the patron check with the original donor or the City Attorney. After the last incident we are adding a line that will be signed by the donor stating that a copy of the original agreement was given to them on a certain date, along with an explanation of the Deed Of Gift and a discussion of the gift with the Library Manager or System Director.
      A written Collection Development policy is always a good idea! Not only does it set out rules for gifts, but also purchases and makes you consider carefully the space you have, the usage patterns, and the age old questions as to whether or not the items will circulate, and their classification and arrangement.
Good Luck,
Nancy McCraw Ross

We are purchasing 2 new Minolta ms6000mkII microfilm machines to replace our older machines. We have always used the Minolta printer (MSP3000).
On these new machines, we are free to use whichever printer we desire. I'm wondering if anyone has any recommendations on a monochrome printer that they've had good experiences with, or if there are any printers to stay away from?

I am looking at this one on amazon: Dell E515dw Laser Multifunction Printer -

We have found Hewlett-Packard to be the Energizer Bunny of printers.
Any of you who participated in the original round of Gates Foundation grants may remember the 4050s they used - we still have one running 15 years later.

I bought one of their smaller lasers for home use in 2005 and it has survived years of exposure to my kids. The software support tends to expire before the printers do.

WHAT'S NEW IN RELIC
August 2016

The Ruth E. Lloyd Information Center for Genealogy and Local History (RELIC), Prince William Public Library System, Bull Run Regional Library, 8051 Ashton Avenue, Manassas, VA 20109. 703-792-4540 Email: relic2 at pwcgov.org<mailto:relic2 at pwcgov.org>.

To read the latest lists of new materials available in RELIC click on What's New in RELIC. <http://www.pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/Pages/RELIC-news.aspx>

DARLENE L. HUNTER, CG, JOINS RELIC FULL-TIME STAFF

We are delighted to announce that Darlene L. Hunter has been selected to join RELIC's full-time staff effective August 22.   As RELIC's Library Services Technician III (LST III), she will take up the duties formerly managed by Beverly Veness, who retired in February, including reference services, maintenance of the collection and supervision of volunteers. Darlene has worked at Bull Run Regional Library as LST III for Adult Services since 2006. A graduate of the University of Kansas, and formerly on the staff of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution, she is a Certified Genealogist (CG).
For a number of years Darlene has contributed to RELIC's publications including articles for Prince William Reliquary on "The Bristoe Tract" (2004), "Moor Green" (2005) and "Prince William County Materials in the Melvin E. Steadman Collection" (2009). Since 2012 she has compiled various works on Baptist congregations in Prince William County, including a History of Occoquan Baptist Church for our Digital Library<http://eservice.pwcgov.org/library/digitalLibrary/>. She has transcribed and indexed its records, 1794-1940, as well as the records of Quantico Baptist Church, 1858-1911, and Beulah Primitive Baptist Church (Occoquan), 1892-1940. On August 23, at Bull Run Library, she will reprise her talk on "The Challenges and Rewards of Researching Virginia Families." She is currently a member of the governing board of the Virginia Genealogical Society. We are honored to have her as part of our staff.

NEW MICROFILM SCANNER ARRIVES AT RELIC

Another happy announcement this week is the arrival of ST Imaging's ViewScan III microfilm scanner. Thanks to the generosity of many RELIC patrons as well as a budget allocation, we finally have the latest equipment for downloading images from microfilm. Staff has been trained in its use, and are ready to assist patrons in saving microfilm and microfiche images to digital media.   This new equipment replaces the former scanner we had attached to a reader-printer. It seems much easier to use and delivers noticeably better results.   The Cruise Control feature even allows a continuous series of images to be scanned automatically. Researchers are encouraged to always have a USB flash drive with them when visiting RELIC to take advantage of this equipment or to download images from our online resources (such as Ancestry Library Edition). Depending on demand, we may have to set up a reservation schedule for use of the machine. For microfilm viewing and printing (at 15 cents per copy), RELIC has several other public machines.

VIRGINIA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY
SET TO VISIT RELIC

The Virginia Genealogical Society's fall conference will take place in Prince William County. On Friday, September 30, co-sponsors VGS and the Mount Vernon Genealogical Society invite attendees to visit RELIC, 10:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m., for "Research at the Library." Library staff will be available to answer questions concerning the Library's collections and their use. Experienced researchers will be available to answer questions, provide individual assistance to beginners, and to offer strategies for difficult genealogical problems. Registration is not required to visit RELIC that day.
On Saturday, October 1, a series of talks on "Genealogy Strategies: The Basics and More" will be given, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., at the Hilton Garden Inn, 2500 Neabsco Common Place, Woodbridge, VA 22191, with speakers Sharon Hodges, Chuck Mills, and Don Wilson. For a list of topics, times, and registration information, please go to

GENEALOGY 201: BEYOND THE BASICS

Presented by Tish Como

Genealogy Librarian Tish Como will discuss effective research strategies and demonstrate advanced techniques for successfully searching and evaluating free online genealogy/history resources. See how information found in census, newspapers, passenger lists, maps, books and manuscripts can add detail and interest to your family history. This program will be presented on Thursday, August 18, at 11 a.m. To register for this free program, please call (703) 792-4540 or contact relic2 at pwcgov.org<mailto:relic2 at pwcgov.org>. You may also register at RELIC Programs<http://pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/Pages/RELIC-programs.aspx> by clicking on the program date.

THE CHALLENGES AND REWARDS OF RESEARCHING VIRGINIA FAMILIES
Presented by Darlene Hunter

Learn about the many and varied resources available to trace your Virginia ancestors. RELIC staff member and certified genealogist (C.G.) Darlene Hunter will describe official records (and their substitutes), compiled records, finding aids and institutional records and provide examples of how to locate and utilize them to document your Virginia genealogy. This program will be presented on Tuesday, August 23, at 7 p.m. You may register for this free program at (703) 792-4540 or relic2 at pwcgov.org<mailto:relic2 at pwcgov.org>. You may also register at RELIC Programs<http://pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/Pages/RELIC-programs.aspx> by clicking on the program date.

UNDERSTANDING FOUR CIVIL WAR CAMPAIGNS
THROUGH MAPS
Presented by Bradley Gottfried

Join Civil War historian and author Bradley Gottfried as he "walks" you through the Hallowed Ground of the Wilderness Campaign, First Bull Run and the Bristoe and Mine Run Campaigns using detailed and revealing maps from his books. Dr. Gottfried is current president of Southern Maryland College and a board member of the Central Virginia Battlefield Trust. The author of eleven books, his latest, The Maps of the Wilderness: An Atlas of the Wilderness Campaign, May 2-7, 1864, continues his efforts to study and illustrate the major campaigns of the Civil War's Eastern Theater. Dr. Gottfried will offer copies of his books for sale after his presentation.
This program will be presented on Tuesday, September 27, 2016, at 7 p.m., at Bull Run Regional Library. You may register for this free event at (703) 792-4540 or relic2 at pwcgov.org<mailto:relic2 at pwcgov.org>. You may also register at RELIC Programs<http://pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/Pages/RELIC-programs.aspx> by clicking on the program date.

GENEALOGY 101: GETTING STARTED
Presented by Tish Como

Discovering your family's history is both fun and rewarding. Genealogy Librarian Tish Como will demonstrate the essential first steps to take, and resources to use - most of which are available for free through the library - to ensure that your research is accurate, complete and well-documented. This free program will be presented on Tuesday, October 4, 2016, at 7 p.m., at Bull Run Regional Library.

You may register for it at (703) 792-4540 or relic2 at pwcgov.org<mailto:relic2 at pwcgov.org>. You may also register at RELIC Programs<http://pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/Pages/RELIC-programs.aspx> by clicking on the program date.

Have a question about Prince William County history, places or families? Need guidance with your genealogical research? You may contact RELIC staff for help and advice at Ask RELIC<http://pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/Pages/RELIC-Ask.aspx> or by calling us at 703-792-4540.   Hours for Bull Run Library, June to September (ET): Monday-Thursday 10am-9pm, Friday-Saturday 10am-5pm. Closed Sundays, Federal holidays and holiday weekends.

PLEASE NOTE: Dedicated staff are available in RELIC (saving an occasional mid-day lunch break) on Mondays through Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Fridays and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. We also have a staff member available on most Thursday evenings from 6 to 9 p.m. If you are planning to visit on a weekday evening, please call ahead or ask for assistance at the front Information Desk.

Some of you may already have received word of this collection, but I wanted to forward it to those who hadn?t yet. A great new digital resource for researchers interested in slavery and African American genealogy research in Louisiana, specifically New Orleans. I know I have several patrons who can benefit from this collection as I?m sure many of you do too.

Subject: XULA Library Archives & Special Collections - Manuscripts of Slavery Collection

   Currently, the Xavier University of Louisiana Library Archives and Special Collections, myself specifically, is in the process of digitizing and making accessible the *Charles F. Heartman Manuscripts of Slavery Collection. *

   This amazing primary resource collection consists of over 8000 pieces dating from 1724 to 1897, and relate directly to the social, economic, civil, and legal status of enslaved Negroes and Free People of Color in Louisiana, especially in the city of New Orleans.
    Approximately half of the collection consists of municipal records from the city of New Orleans, which had the largest population of free people of color in the nation. The collection illuminates the condition of enslaved and free blacks in Louisiana, offering a broad view of their activity that covers colonial times, early statehood, the antebellum period, the Civil War, Reconstruction, and the end of the nineteenth century. Thousands of items relating to the social, economic, and legal status of slaves and free people of color, including clerical books, particularly those of the Third Municipality, provide valuable data concerning their labor and leisurely undertakings in the early nineteenth century. For researchers not solely focused on slavery, the comprehensive tax records and business bonds provide invaluable insight into their economic activities. There are also rosters of U.S. Army Negro soldiers from the Civil War, as well as records of societies of Freemen dating from Reconstruction and beyond. The bulk of the Heartman Collection is documents in French and English in roughly equal proportions along with a small number of Spanish Documents.

*   The manuscripts also range from English, to Spanish, and French making this collection multicultural in language and content. *

   Currently we have over 2,100 viewable items on the Library Archives and Special Collections Website, consisting of over 8,000 manuscript pages.

   In hopes of bringing this collection larger exposure and community interest, I'm reaching out to you and inviting you, and your students, to view and utilize the collection as it continues to be digitized and added to our Digital Collection.

   You can find the digital collection here:

Fairfax County Public Library's Virginia Room has more periodicals to trade. Please respond to our volunteer, Fran, at Bfm1010 at cox.net and Frances.Millhouser at fairfaxcounty.gov . Be sure to include your mailing address in your email so that we can make your mailing label.
There's an Excel and a pdf version of the same list, so I hope everyone will be able to open it.

If you don't have anything to trade, please send a check for postage reimbursement (made out to Fairfax County Public Library) to

Laura Wickstead
Virginia Room
10360 North St.
Fairfax, VA 22030

Trades are allotted on a first-come, first-served basis. The volunteer will include a ?packing list? of your requests in your shipment with a check mark indicating that the item is included in the shipment, or an N/A meaning that the item is Not Available because someone else?s request was received before yours.

We have received many handwritten diaries from 1870s-1900s. One of my most favorite donations. As we transcribe them we have gone with transcribing it as is spelled or misspelled. We did not add the correct spelling. Sometimes we didn't know what the correct spelling is anyway. Sometimes they would just use an initial and we wouldn't know for sure who that might be. We opted not to guess. We would leave that to the reader. We felt the diaries are not there to search but to be read.

If you have transcribed diaries, what has been your practice? We have too many diaries to go back and change. But, should we change our process for the future?

We also do not change anything in the transcription as a general rule, but we make exceptions. If there is a tear, hole or inkblot obscuring a work and we were sure what the word was, or if we knew the person referred to, etc., we added it in brackets. If we had to guess, we didn't put anything, although in the past transcribers would put the guess in brackets with a question mark. We do not correct spelling to current standards; however, if we did not think the word would be understood by most readers as spelled, we added it after the original word in brackets. For example, something most readers today would interpret as "Jepe" or "Jepse," we put [Jesse].

Last week I attended the Institute for the Editing of Historic Documents. I would, without hesitation, recommend the week long workshop. It is taught by the Association for Documentary Editing (ADE).

In one general statement I think they would say it is your choice how to transcribe just do it consistently. Transcriptions should as close to the original text as possible but they should also be readable! I am currently working on a project and we are displaying hard to read or missing words in green when we are sure of the word and if the meaning is uncertain the word is in red.

Next year the ADE conference is in Buffalo, NY. This is mostly a group of historians and they haven't any idea the extent of transcriptions public libraries and local history rooms are working on. I think it would be great to have a panel of librarians talking about their transcription projects. Any one in that area doing transcriptions interested in a participating in a panel? let me know. There hasn't been a call for proposals so there's no rush. BTW I joined this organization so I can be up to date on best practices. They don't always work for our projects but, at least, I can know what they are!

I have also transcribed from old newspapers that the grammar and word usage at the time is slightly different than the currant usage. I transcribe them as printed, but put a disclaimer at the top of the transcription : "This has been transcribed exactly as printed in the newspaper of that date. Some capitalization and punctuation is not the same as the current form.?
If a word seems to be misspelled I spell it as printed with (sic) following to show that I know the spelling isn?t as we would use it. Otherwise, people were contacting me with ?error?s, but I wanted to be historically accurate as to what was in the newspaper for that issue.

Dear Friends,
For the second year, the PCA/ACA Annual Conference will include a Genealogy Special Topics Section. I served as the on-the-ground Chair last year in Seattle, and we had an wonderful afternoon and evening of excellent presentations. This year, the editors of the open-access journal, Genealogy, have approached us about publication of the accepted papers. See the attached flyer for additional information on the new journal. You may either contact Dr. Drushel (below) or me with questions about the conference and the process of submitting proposals.

Interested scholars are invited to submit papers for the 2017 PopularCulture Association/American Culture Association Annual Conference in SanDiego, California, April 12-15, 2017 Special Topics Area, Genealogy. The study of genealogy within the context of television and literarydisciplines, library and archival disciplines, American and public historydisciplines, museum studies, folklore or similar disciplines will be considered. Proposals for papers or panelpresentations would bewelcome.
Please submit a 100 to 250 word abstract on your proposed topic to the PCA website by October 1,2016 as described here: https://conference.pcaaca.org/
Potential participants do not need to be members to submit proposals;however, membership in PCA/ACA and registration for the conference are requiredin order to present.Please send all?inquiries?to:Bruce E. Drushel, Ph.D.VP Programming & Area Chairs,PCA/ACAdrushebe at miamioh.edu?For more informationsee the associations' website at:?http://pcaaca.org/national-conference

I agree with Ruth MF Tucker. I also add any abreviation information to my introduction/disclaimer. If I have an issue in the body of the work [I add my notes in brackets and add that the brackets are information of the compiler/transcriber]. If necessary I footnote documentation.

Last week I attended the Institute for the Editing of Historic Documents. I would, without hesitation, recommend the week long workshop. It is taught by the Association for Documentary Editing (ADE).

In one general statement I think they would say it is your choice how to transcribe just do it consistently. Transcriptions should as close to the original text as possible but they should also be readable! I am currently working on a project and we are displaying hard to read or missing words in green when we are sure of the word and if the meaning is uncertain the word is in red.

Next year the ADE conference is in Buffalo, NY. This is mostly a group of historians and they haven't any idea the extent of transcriptions public libraries and local history rooms are working on. I think it would be great to have a panel of librarians talking about their transcription projects. Any one in that area doing transcriptions interested in a participating in a panel? let me know. There hasn't been a call for proposals so there's no rush. BTW I joined this organization so I can be up to date on best practices. They don't always work for our projects but, at least, I can know what they are!

We have received many handwritten diaries from 1870s-1900s. One of my most favorite donations. As we transcribe them we have gone with transcribing it as is spelled or misspelled. We did not add the correct spelling. Sometimes we didn't know what the correct spelling is anyway. Sometimes they would just use an initial and we wouldn't know for sure who that might be. We opted not to guess. We would leave that to the reader. We felt the diaries are not there to search but to be read.

Good afternoon to the list!

A patron wants to utilize Microsoft Access as a genealogical database. She would be receptive to any and all information about database creation and use. One of our past librarians created an index to our local paper with it but I have no experience other than adding to his work.

I told the patron I would post her query to the list and forward any responses.

Thanks for your help,
Nancy

The ones like RootsMagic and Legacy Family Tree are easier to use, inexpensive, and very powerful. Unless this person just likes programming type activity, it seems a better use of time would be to learn to use the features in these and spend time researching.

Full disclosure: I hated Access when I used it a number of years ago for multiple other projects and found it cumbersome.

I have built an Access Database to manage my own personal collection of documents related to my family history. I would absolutely be willing to share the template with your patron. It is a simple 1 to 1 relational database that links uniquely numbered documents to every individual mentioned within the document. Reports can then be run to find every document that mentions a specific individual. The database does NOT build family trees. It manages documents.

The ones like RootsMagic and Legacy Family Tree are easier to use, inexpensive, and very powerful. Unless this person just likes programming type activity, it seems a better use of time would be to learn to use the features in these and spend time researching.

Full disclosure: I hated Access when I used it a number of years ago for multiple other projects and found it cumbersome.

Hi everyone,

I am trying to create a rights permission form for photos I digitized when I first started at my library 14 years ago. I have an accession form that I use now that includes permission to publish, but I didn't think to have one early-on. Does anyone have a form that they use that they are willing to share? Please send me an email off-list.

Thanks!

The ones like RootsMagic and Legacy Family Tree are easier to use, inexpensive, and very powerful. Unless this person just likes programming type activity, it seems a better use of time would be to learn to use the features in these and spend time researching.

Full disclosure: I hated Access when I used it a number of years ago for multiple other projects and found it cumbersome.

I have built an Access Database to manage my own personal collection of documents related to my family history. I would absolutely be willing to share the template with your patron. It is a simple 1 to 1 relational database that links uniquely numbered documents to every individual mentioned within the document. Reports can then be run to find every document that mentions a specific individual. The database does NOT build family trees. It manages documents.

Hi everyone,

I am trying to create a rights permission form for photos I digitized when I first started at my library 14 years ago. I have an accession form that I use now that includes permission to publish, but I didn't think to have one early-on. Does anyone have a form that they use that they are willing to share? Please send me an email off-list.

Hello, everyone...

Here in lovely Fayetteville, North Carolina, we are undertaking the massive task of reorganizing our vertical files. Our first step was to decide to copy other local history collections, and divide them into two categories: Places and Events and People and Families.

One of the things that we have clipped are the files about local crimes. We tend to focus only on those that receive state-wide and/or national attention (such as the McDonald Murder Case, the Shaniya Davis Case, and the Luigi's Restaurant Shootings). We try hard to label the case with the name of the victim, rather than the criminal.

Here is my question: are the files about these crimes Events or People? Should it be labeled [Event] Crime--McDonald Murders, or [People] Collette McDonald, Murder of?

And what would I do with the files on the Little Rascals Sexual Abuse Case? The victims were children, so we don't have their names. Only the name of the daycare center and the name of the person who was convicted on the crimes.

Thanks in advance for your advice.

    Oh mighty collective brain, I hope you can help. I am stumped. I just received a question about what something means when it follows a man's name. The man in question lived in the 1600s and has "B.E.T." after his name. Any ideas? I have recommended that the person asking the question email me a copy of the document where this appears. I have resources that translate what handwriting looked like way back then. It could be that "T" is actually another letter. The other letters could be different, too.

What we did, was to have Crime - Murder- Year - Name of Victim (followed by name of the convicted perpetrator if known). As they were done a master alpha list was updated.

We would have done Crime - Sex Crimes - Name of the Perpetrator of the Place.

I'm with Larry here. I like keeping all crimes together and we do have folks who come in and want to see all crime files, not necessarily looking for a particular one. It is easier if we have to pull the from one part of the files. You can still find a particular crime if it is also identified in the heading by victim and\or criminal in this arrangement. Very difficult to pull them all together doing the reverse. If it is a particularly "noteworthy" crime, we would cross reference from the surname files and, perhaps, put a copy of a really information rich article in the surname and sending people back to the file for the crime in question for more coverage.

Are you tracking how you are redoing your files in case someone comes in trying to follow a citation that references a file as it appeared in your old arrangement?
Just wondering how you are handling that. Thanks!

Mary

Of course, then there was the time a person came in and wanted to see the files on a notorious crime, and was very offended that we had filed it under Organized Crime - Mob Hits. "My father didn't do that! He's not a crook!"....

I need to withdraw these from our collection due to lack of space. If they could be helpful in anyone's collection they are available for postage reimbursement.

The years are 1977-1996, Editions 12-30

I was just skimming American Libraries and discovered that October is apparently Family History Month and Archives Month.?(Joking! I know this occurs every year.)?
At some point during the year there's also the "I found it in the archives" contest as well. I've never created an exhibit or held a program specifically for this during October because every month is Family History Month and Archives Month at the Dyer.?
I suddenly have a hankering to do something and am seeking inspiration. What will your libraries be doing??
