Hi all;

If you're in northeast Florida or south Georgia, you might want to check out a one day seminar on Sat, Sept. 9th. George Morgan is the speaker and will be presenting four different topics that look very interesting. The program is being held at the LDS church in Fernandina Beach, and is sponsored by the Amelia Island Genealogy Society.

George is the author of How To Do Everything Genealogy, and is the co-host with our own Drew Smith of the "Genealogy Guys" podcast.

I have already requested the day off so I can attend. If you'd like more info, visit: www.aigensoc.org. Maybe I'll see you there!

This is my first question to the list, so I hope this is ok!

For many years my library received microfilm rolls of the local newspaper. We would keep the actual papers until we got the roll. Now something--I'm not sure what--has changed, and we no longer get the microfilm. The last roll we got is June 2016, and we have growing stacks of papers.

The thing is, I am not officially the "genealogy" librarian. We don't have such a thing at my library. I have no official authority, but I am considered the resident "expert" on local history/genealogy. Our genealogy society keeps a collection in the library, but we don't have control over that, and the library only has a few local history items and the newspaper on microfilm.

My supervisor told me that there was a change and to get the newspaper on microfilm will now cost us $6,000 a year, where it used to be free. She seems very reluctant to pay that, and she hasn't yet decided what to do. I don't have any decision-making authority, but I have been asked my opinion, and I'm not sure what to say.

My instinct says that it is very important to preserve these newspapers, somehow. I don't know if there is a program where the newspaper itself or the state historical society is doing that, or if the library is the last chance to archive this material.

I guess what I'm asking for is any opinions or reactions to this issue. Am I right to freak out?

Thanks so much!

We have our town's newspapers in print in archival quality boxes back to 1920. So far they have held up well. Not the best solution and I am working on a grant to digitize them. Perhaps your local bank might subsidize a grant to digitize them?

I suspect that your patrons will want you to carry the local paper in some form. You may have to evaluate if there are other ways to access the content: digitally, on microfilm in another local institution, keep the hard copy in perpetuity, etc.

I'm not sure what the commitment level in the past has been to providing this access to you patrons, and this will also have an impact. Don't leave the local paper out of the discussion. They may expect to send people to the library to access past issues like our paper does. They just send people to us!

Sarah,

I suggest contacting the Ohio History Connection. They coordinate newspaper microfilming and digitization. Info about their program can be found here:

We send off our local papers to be microfilmed and it is not $6000! We send 3 weekly papers off once a year (each one packed separately so on different rolls) and a 5 days a week paper quarterly. We spent less than $1000 on the microfilming for last year. We use ProQuest in Ypsilanti, MI. Good service.

Here are my thoughts on newspapers:

Microfilm is a lot more stable than digital files, though very expensive. If digitizing, one may want to seriously consider keeping hard copies of the paper in archival boxes. We can always make more room, we cannot retrieve lost items. We are still microfilming, but I also keep a digital PDF of each paper, that is a free service with a subscription through our paper's website, though one can only download a pdf for 30 days after initial publication.

I look forward to hearing other ideas.

Hi Cheryl,

Printing the pages out is certainly an option since webpages have such a short lifespan; however, you lose a lot of the functionality and user experience when you convert a dynamic, interactive platform like Facebook into a static, physical object. A solution that I have used personally is an Internet Archive subscription service called Archive-It. This software crawls the pages you'd like to preserve so that a copy is still available long after the original is changed and/or completely lost. This service isn't cheap, but they may offer different packages, especially for smaller institutions. Alternatively, Internet Archive allows you to capture a page via their Wayback Machine for free! However, I do not know if the crawler is as robust as the one used in the subscription service i.e. can capture Facebook. Social media has typically been harder for web crawlers to capture because Facebook pages go on and on and on. With both options, you still lose a little bit of functional ity, but not as much as if you were to print it out.

Anyway, goes without saying that I am very interested in how web archiving will and can impact genealogical research.

Hope this helps!

I'm very interested in this as well. Jackson County, Indiana, has a FB memories page that has existed for years and has more than 8,600 members. Some threads have hundreds of comments. Some of the important ones have disappeared when a contributor dies and/or takes down their page.

The page admins would like to archive but have found no answer to how to do it. Last time I googled for a solution, no workable answers appeared. A digital archive seems to be the only answer. Saving even one entry can take a lot of time to format properly in a document file.

I just saw Jennifer Daugherty's message and will be looking at the SI Archives post. Wonder if FB is working on any solutions?

I've considered printing them off to put in a vertical file which might turn out to be huge. I know the ?caretaker? of the page archives them but how could I save them.

Anybody interested in these? (Free book, free shipping: please reply off list and provide your postal mailing address.)

Marie C. Malaro, A Legal Primer on Managing Museum Collections (Washington, DC: Smithsonian Institution Press, 1985). Hardcover. Underlining on a couple of pages.

L. Lloyd Stewart, The Mysterious Black Migration, 1800-1820: The Van Vrankens and Other Families of African Descent in Washington County, New York (Xlibris, 2013). Signed by the author. Paperback. No writing.

Alexander Keyssar, Out of Work: The First Century of Unemployment in Massachusetts (Cambridge University Press, 1986). Paperback. Corner of lower front cover bent. Largely deals with 1870s to 1930s; men, women, immigrants.

Hi all;

If you're in northeast Florida or south Georgia, you might want to check out a one day seminar on Sat, Sept. 9th. George Morgan is the speaker and will be presenting four different topics that look very interesting. The program is being held at the LDS church in Fernandina Beach, and is sponsored by the Amelia Island Genealogy Society.

George is the author of How To Do Everything Genealogy, and is the co-host with our own Drew Smith of the "Genealogy Guys" podcast.

I have already requested the day off so I can attend. If you'd like more info, visit: www.aigensoc.org. Maybe I'll see you there!

This is my first question to the list, so I hope this is ok!

For many years my library received microfilm rolls of the local newspaper. We would keep the actual papers until we got the roll. Now something--I'm not sure what--has changed, and we no longer get the microfilm. The last roll we got is June 2016, and we have growing stacks of papers.

The thing is, I am not officially the "genealogy" librarian. We don't have such a thing at my library. I have no official authority, but I am considered the resident "expert" on local history/genealogy. Our genealogy society keeps a collection in the library, but we don't have control over that, and the library only has a few local history items and the newspaper on microfilm.

My supervisor told me that there was a change and to get the newspaper on microfilm will now cost us $6,000 a year, where it used to be free. She seems very reluctant to pay that, and she hasn't yet decided what to do. I don't have any decision-making authority, but I have been asked my opinion, and I'm not sure what to say.

My instinct says that it is very important to preserve these newspapers, somehow. I don't know if there is a program where the newspaper itself or the state historical society is doing that, or if the library is the last chance to archive this material.

I guess what I'm asking for is any opinions or reactions to this issue. Am I right to freak out?

Thanks so much!

We have our town's newspapers in print in archival quality boxes back to 1920. So far they have held up well. Not the best solution and I am working on a grant to digitize them. Perhaps your local bank might subsidize a grant to digitize them?

I suspect that your patrons will want you to carry the local paper in some form. You may have to evaluate if there are other ways to access the content: digitally, on microfilm in another local institution, keep the hard copy in perpetuity, etc.

I'm not sure what the commitment level in the past has been to providing this access to you patrons, and this will also have an impact. Don't leave the local paper out of the discussion. They may expect to send people to the library to access past issues like our paper does. They just send people to us!

Sarah,

I suggest contacting the Ohio History Connection. They coordinate newspaper microfilming and digitization. Info about their program can be found here:

Sarah,

As Ann mentioned, most newspaper understand preserving old editions, whether microform or digital.

We had a similar situation here in Troy a few years ago when a new publisher decided they were not going to microfilm any longer (they used to send the library a free reel). We contacted them and they gave us permission to microfilm &/or digitize for the library collection. It is a pain to take care of it, but worth it in the long run.

Two suggestions if this works. First, be sure to get a copy of each issue of the paper just for the purpose of preservation. Too many of the ?library? copies had pages missing, articles torn out, etc. to rely on that. Also, if you have a volunteer that can be dedicated to collecting the papers, checking to make sure all the pages and issues are present; packaging them and shipping them, then it will take a lot of pressure off you, or whoever. Second, unless the library is financially strapped, the $$ per year can be budgeted for the purpose of preserving b/c even if the local newspaper has gone digital, most of them are not in the business of continual long term online editions, i.e., they may keep 1-2 years of content online, but most will not keep 5, 10, 15, etc. years on their site. So, somebody needs to preserve it.

Subject: [Genealib] Local newspaper on microfilm

This is my first question to the list, so I hope this is ok!

For many years my library received microfilm rolls of the local newspaper. We would keep the actual papers until we got the roll. Now something--I'm not sure what--has changed, and we no longer get the microfilm. The last roll we got is June 2016, and we have growing stacks of papers.

The thing is, I am not officially the "genealogy" librarian. We don't have such a thing at my library. I have no official authority, but I am considered the resident "expert" on local history/genealogy. Our genealogy society keeps a collection in the library, but we don't have control over that, and the library only has a few local history items and the newspaper on microfilm.

My supervisor told me that there was a change and to get the newspaper on microfilm will now cost us $6,000 a year, where it used to be free. She seems very reluctant to pay that, and she hasn't yet decided what to do. I don't have any decision-making authority, but I have been asked my opinion, and I'm not sure what to say.

My instinct says that it is very important to preserve these newspapers, somehow. I don't know if there is a program where the newspaper itself or the state historical society is doing that, or if the library is the last chance to archive this material.

I guess what I'm asking for is any opinions or reactions to this issue. Am I right to freak out?

Thanks so much!

Hi everyone,

I would like to add a side thread to this topic...

I have been wondering if it might be prudent to digitize our microfilm due to the fact that at least one of our microfilm reader printers is no longer being produced. And wouldn't you know it is the only one everyone wants to use! They absolutely balk at using a newer more efficient microfilm reader printer.

So do to that what does everyone think? Yes, I know that microfilm is more stable than digital. We've had much of ours for 50 years or more. (I think - this is just a guesstimate.)

On the upside, I have heard rumors that our local paper will be digitized by the state library. But I am not holding my breath because the department that does that has only one or two employees! I don't think it is included in newspapers.com either. Even so, we have numerous other items on microfilm that if lost, stolen or damaged would be hard to replace.

Looking forward to your thoughts on this topic.

I should have specified due to copyright concerns---

Regarding my PDFs of the local newspaper-- I don't have them available for patron use. I have them as an electronic backup that only I can access for now. A project I have yet to do is to contact the newspaper to see if they will grant me permission to have these available in-house for patrons to view and print from. I started doing this as a precaution in case the microfilming ever stops or gets even more expensive.

If we can no longer microfilm one day, I'll probably lobby to keep the paper copies and bind them, but it would be nice to have PDFs for them as well.

Maybe newspapers will grant permission to use PDFs within the library, or online with access to one person at a time, kind of like an e-book subscription? That may be covered under fair use?

Here are my thoughts on newspapers:

Microfilm is a lot more stable than digital files, though very expensive.

If digitizing, one may want to seriously consider keeping hard copies of the paper in archival boxes. We can always make more room, we cannot retrieve lost items.

We are still microfilming, but I also keep a digital PDF of each paper, that is a free service with a subscription through our paper's website, though one can only download a pdf for 30 days after initial publication.

I look forward to hearing other ideas.

Hi Cheryl,

Printing the pages out is certainly an option since webpages have such a short lifespan; however, you lose a lot of the functionality and user experience when you convert a dynamic, interactive platform like Facebook into a static, physical object. A solution that I have used personally is an Internet Archive subscription service called Archive-It. This software crawls the pages you'd like to preserve so that a copy is still available long after the original is changed and/or completely lost. This service isn't cheap, but they may offer different packages, especially for smaller institutions. Alternatively, Internet Archive allows you to capture a page via their Wayback Machine for free! However, I do not know if the crawler is as robust as the one used in the subscription service i.e. can capture Facebook. Social media has typically been harder for web crawlers to capture because Facebook pages go on and on and on. With both options, you still lose a little bit of functional ity, but not as much as if you were to print it out.

Anyway, goes without saying that I am very interested in how web archiving will and can impact genealogical research.

Hope this helps!

I'm very interested in this as well. Jackson County, Indiana, has a FB memories page that has existed for years and has more than 8,600 members. Some threads have hundreds of comments. Some of the important ones have disappeared when a contributor dies and/or takes down their page.

The page admins would like to archive but have found no answer to how to do it. Last time I googled for a solution, no workable answers appeared. A digital archive seems to be the only answer. Saving even one entry can take a lot of time to format properly in a document file.

I just saw Jennifer Daugherty's message and will be looking at the SI Archives post. Wonder if FB is working on any solutions?

Hi all;

If you're in northeast Florida or south Georgia, you might want to check out a one day seminar on Sat, Sept. 9th. George Morgan is the speaker and will be presenting four different topics that look very interesting. The program is being held at the LDS church in Fernandina Beach, and is sponsored by the Amelia Island Genealogy Society.

George is the author of How To Do Everything Genealogy, and is the co-host with our own Drew Smith of the "Genealogy Guys" podcast.

I have already requested the day off so I can attend. If you'd like more info, visit: www.aigensoc.org. Maybe I'll see you there!

We have our town's newspapers in print in archival quality boxes back to 1920. So far they have held up well. Not the best solution and I am working on a grant to digitize them. Perhaps your local bank might subsidize a grant to digitize them?

I suspect that your patrons will want you to carry the local paper in some form. You may have to evaluate if there are other ways to access the content: digitally, on microfilm in another local institution, keep the hard copy in perpetuity, etc.

I'm not sure what the commitment level in the past has been to providing this access to you patrons, and this will also have an impact. Don't leave the local paper out of the discussion. They may expect to send people to the library to access past issues like our paper does. They just send people to us!

Sarah,

I suggest contacting the Ohio History Connection. They coordinate newspaper microfilming and digitization. Info about their program can be found here:

We have our newspapers in print (in boxes in offsite storage) from 1881-current, microfilm (made by the State Historical Society - we pay per roll, originals at the State Archives) 1881-2016, and digital at <http://coloradohistoricnewspapers.org>, 1881-1973. We have been budgeting some money every year to move the digitization of the microfilm forward ($1.25/page) and should reach 1980 with this year's budget. We have negotiated the copyright with the local paper, so we can move the digitization forward.

We are trying to figure out how to get the more current issues of the paper, which are created digitally, to us in their digital form. Do we just try to save the pdf of the print paper, or do we need to figure out how to save the newspaper's website, which has more articles than are in the print edition. Our local newspaper also publishes different editions in 5 different towns in our county, but it's essentially the same content with different articles and ads chosen based on the community. They have also started charging to view articles on their website, so that will probably be another negotiation to get the library/archives access...

Hi everyone,

I would like to add a side thread to this topic...

I have been wondering if it might be prudent to digitize our microfilm due to the fact that at least one of our microfilm reader printers is no longer being produced. And wouldn't you know it is the only one everyone wants to use! They absolutely balk at using a newer more efficient microfilm reader printer.

So do to that what does everyone think? Yes, I know that microfilm is more stable than digital. We've had much of ours for 50 years or more. (I think - this is just a guesstimate.)

On the upside, I have heard rumors that our local paper will be digitized by the state library. But I am not holding my breath because the department that does that has only one or two employees! I don't think it is included in newspapers.com either. Even so, we have numerous other items on microfilm that if lost, stolen or damaged would be hard to replace.

Looking forward to your thoughts on this topic.

Bowling Green State University digitized a missing half-year of the Marietta Ohio Times for the Washington County Public Library that was available in hard copy at the Hayes Presidential Center in Fremont. You might contact Becky Hill at the Hayes Presidential Center or Steve Charter at BGSU. It was no $6,000.

Sorry if this has already been covered, but I am just now making my way through the e-mails. So, my first question is ... is someone still microfilming the paper? You all weren't the ones sending the hard copies to be microfilmed, right? Is the paper still getting it microfilmed? Who was paying for the microfilming to take place and who was sending it out?

Actually, we pay over $8,000 for our microfilm, so I would be delighted to just pay $6,000. :) We had to start paying for what the newspaper used to donate to us about two years ago.

The North Carolina Genealogical Society is delighted to present:
Diane L. Richard

?Freedmen?s Bureau Records?

This recorded Webinar will be freely available to the public from 4-6 August 2017 (12 am Friday to 12 pm Sunday, EST)

The handout for this presentation is only available to logged in members, accessible on the main Webinars page (under Education & Events menu), or on the movie page itself.

Please register for the free webinar replay so that we may email the direct link to you. www.ncgenealogy.org

About the Webinar:

Are you seeking records for your southern ancestors in the immediate post Civil War time period (1865-1868)? Learn about this little known and used Federal record collection that is full of invaluable records for many ancestors, regardless of skin color or circumstances, who lived in North Carolina (or elsewhere from DE to TX). After the war many needed assistance, from maimed soldiers, to widows with children, to the aged and feeble, to ex-slaves and their former owners. Examples of records relating to rations, contracts and indentures, courts, abandoned land, schools, hospitals, and more are presented.

About the Speaker:

Diane L. Richard is a professional genealogist and owner of Mosaic Research and Project Management. She has been doing genealogy research since 1987 and since 2004 has focused more on the records of North Carolina, including African American (and slave) research and into those who migrated into, through, or out of North Carolina.

Diane is a member of the national and local chapters of the Association of Professional Genealogists and the Genealogical Speakers Guild. She is the editor of Upfront with NGS, the blog of the National Genealogical Society, and Wake Treasures, the journal of the Wake County Genealogical Society. She is a regular author for Internet Genealogy and Family Chronicle. Diane can be found online at www.mosaicrpm.com<<http://www.mosaicrpm.com/>>.

After 6 August the video will only be accessible on the website to NCGS members as a member benefit. NCGS members and non-members may also purchase the webinar on a CD, which includes the handout, from the NCGS online store.

We received a volume in donations that we don't need for our collection. It's titled "Thomas Then and Now." Information on the cover states it was reprinted and updated in 1997. It appears to be mostly a compilation of group photos of high school seniors (1926 through 1996) from Thomas High School. The school mascot is a Terrier. I'd like to find it a home in Oklahoma. If anyone on the list, especially from Oklahoma would like to have it, please contact me. I'll send it no charge.

Message-ID: <CANSXF45wD4v1zC06N+qaSwfr_jBxjLm3yD+i4o_6sUwUde9H2A@mail.gmail.com>

A patron told us today that she ordered a roll of FHL film, but FamilySearch cancelled the order. The reason given was that the film had been digitized and could be viewed online. We have never run across this before. Maybe it is part of FamilySearch's phase out of the film loan program, but we were not aware of this stipulation. In this case, it is a hardship for our patron, because the digitized version can only viewed at an LDS Family History Center (we are an affiliate library).

That's been my experience as well, Scott. I have worked at a full FHC for 30 years, and as of the end of the month people will not be able to order films. However, while we are a full FHC, my old library is not. It's an affiliate, serving those who cannot drive to the FHC but can get to the library by bus.

My understanding - and I hope someone who can speak for the FS organization will reply - is that more and more will be viewable only at an FHC. I already have found some things that I used to be able to see at home, now only available at an FHC. It is quite weird.

Fairfax County Public Library's Virginia Room has more books to trade. Please respond to our volunteer, Fran, at Bfm1010 at cox.net and Frances.Millhouser2 at fairfaxcounty.gov . Be sure to include your mailing address in your email so that we can make your mailing label. There's an Excel and a pdf version of the same list, so I hope everyone will be able to open it.

If you don't have anything to trade, please send a check for postage reimbursement (made out to Fairfax County Public Library) to

Laura Wickstead
Virginia Room
10360 North St.
Fairfax, VA 22030

Trades are allotted on a first-come, first-served basis. The volunteer will include a ?packing list? of your requests in your shipment with a check mark indicating that the book is included in the shipment, or an N/A meaning that the item is Not Available because someone else?s request was received before yours.

Land records often contain a wealth of genealogical, historical and legal information. Depending upon the type and time period, they may present new insights about ancestors, family history, title, and land use issues. In addition to providing location and date of settlement, records may attest to one's age, place of birth, citizenship, military service, literacy, and economic status, and may even include similar information about family members. RELIC staff genealogist, Darlene Hunter, will provide examples of various land records and how to locate them.

Using newspaper archives for historical research has never been easier. RELIC's Don Wilson will describe how a growing number of newspapers online may be searched for items useful for family and local history. Now you can find obituaries, marriage notices, court cases, advertisements, news items, local gossip, photos - anything that might appear between the pages of the hometown gazette. He will show how to find those databases and put them to use.

RELIC Librarian Tish Como demonstrates how to locate records and resources that will add interest and detail to your family tree, while emphasizing the importance of developing good research habits, critically evaluating records and findings and using advanced search techniques for better results.

[<http://www.pwccgov.org/government/dept/library/constantcontact/relic/apr2017/insider.png>]

RELIC has been an affiliate library of the Family History Library for over fifteen years. Persons wanting to borrow from the millions of microfilms at Salt Lake City can have those films delivered to RELIC for viewing.

We recently received word that the film lending program will be discontinued on September 1, 2017. From now on, Salt Lake will concentrate on digitizing the remaining films and posting them on FamilySearch.org, but it will take until at least 2020 before they are completed.

If you think you will need particular films before 2020, you have until August 31 to place an order. Please note that now, for the regular $7.50 rental fee, your film will be placed on extended (indefinite) loan.

Click on the button below for instructions for selecting and ordering films. If you have any questions, feel free to call RELIC at 703-792-4540.

Hello my fellow Genie Librarians!

First, I'd like to officially introduce myself. My name is Dvorah Lewis, and I am the new Genealogy Librarian at Sutro Library. I have been here for about two months so I am still trying to get a handle on everything, but I love it thus far! Since I am new to the field, this listserv will be extremely helpful for me. I apologize in advance if any questions I ask were already answered in previous messages (I am slowly making my way through the listserv archives).

Today's question is regarding the Reverend Donald J. Hebert Southwest Louisiana Records. I am wanting to complete our set, but I am confused about volumes that are split into parts. We have volume 1 and volume 2, but I see online that there are Volumes 1a, 1b, 1c, 2a, 2b, and 2c, and unfortunately, I haven't been able to find anything that tells me what the difference is between those volumes and the two that we already have. Our Volume 1 (pub. 1974) covers 1756 - 1810 whereas other publisher's, such as Claitor's Law Books and Publishing Division, Volume 1a covers 1750 - 1810. I tried getting more information, but the representative only repeated what could be found on their site. I was told to physically come into their store if I wanted to see the differences. Since I am in California and they are in Louisiana, I can't really do that.

Any information you all can provide would be greatly appreciated. Look forward to hearing from you!

Thank you,

Dvorah

Dvorah,

I looked at the cataloguing entry for the Hebert books at the West Florida Public Libraries (I got to their catalog from Worldcat), and here is what they have:

* v. 1-A. 1750-1800 -- v. 1-B. 1801-1810 -- v. 2-A. 1811-1818 -- v. 2-B. 1819-1825 -- v. 2-C. 1826-1830, including a supplement, 1831-1878.

Thank you, Drew!

I also came across this helpful article on all of the volumes, which I didn't see the first few times I searched for Hebert. Here is the link for those who are interested: <http://www.genealogy.com/forum/surnames/topics/richard/1765/>

According to this article, volume 1a-c have information that our volume 1 does not have so it'll be wise for us to add the newer ones to our collection.

Thanks again!

Dvorah,

I looked at the cataloguing entry for the Hebert books at the West Florida Public Libraries (I got to their catalog from Worldcat), and here is what they have:

* v. 1-A. 1750-1800 -- v. 1-B. 1801-1810 -- v. 2-A. 1811-1818 -- v. 2-B. 1819-1825 -- v. 2-C. 1826-1830, including a supplement, 1831-1878.

Subject: [Genealib] Reverand Hebert -- Southwest Louisiana Records

Hello my fellow Genie Librarians!

First, I'd like to officially introduce myself. My name is Dvorah Lewis, and I am the new Genealogy Librarian at Sutro Library. I have been here for about two months so I am still trying to get a handle on everything, but I love it thus far! Since I am new to the field, this listserv will be extremely helpful for me. I apologize in advance if any questions I ask were already answered in previous messages (I am slowly making my way through the listserv archives).

Today's question is regarding the Reverend Donald J. Hebert Southwest Louisiana Records. I am wanting to complete our set, but I am confused about volumes that are split into parts. We have volume 1 and volume 2, but I see online that there are Volumes 1a, 1b, 1c, 2a, 2b, and 2c, and unfortunately, I haven't been able to find anything that tells me what the difference is between those volumes and the two that we already have. Our Volume 1 (pub. 1974) covers 1756 ? 1810 whereas other publisher's, such as Claitor's Law Books and Publishing Division, Volume 1a covers 1750 ? 1810. I tried getting more information, but the representative only repeated what could be found on their site. I was told to physically come into their store if I wanted to see the differences. Since I am in California and they are in Louisiana, I can't really do that.

Any information you all can provide would be greatly appreciated. Look forward to hearing from you!

Thank you,

Dvorah

In the 1990s, Father Hebert expanded volumes 1 and 2 to include more details from the original church registers. For marriages, he added the names of witnesses, and for baptisms, he added the names of sponsors and the baptismal date. Names of grandparents, when stated in the records, were added, as well as locations and other details.

The original volumes 1 and 2 are now pretty much obsolete.

Thank you, Drew!

I also came across this helpful article on all of the volumes, which I didn't see the first few times I searched for Hebert. Here is the link for those who are interested: <http://www.genealogy.com/forum/surnames/topics/richard/1765/>

According to this article, volume 1a-c have information that our volume 1 does not have so it'll be wise for us to add the newer ones to our collection.

Thanks again!

Subject: [Genealib] Books for trade or sale

Message-ID: <15dd8d20379-6ed-153a0@webprd-m06.mail.aol.com>

Hi Genealib list members,

Over the years the Laramie County (Wyoming) Library and the Cheyenne Genealogical & Historical Society have been the happy recipients of many genealogy books, however some of these books are duplicates which we cannot use. It has come time, once again, to offer these duplicates to other libraries for trade or sale, preferably trade. The attached lists describe in depth the books that we have available. We will trade by either price value of the books or number of pages. With exchanging books each library pays its own postage.

We've found trading books with other libraries is a mutually beneficial way to add to both libraries' collections. It is an excellent opportunity to fill in incomplete sets of out-of-print books.

I hope you will look over the attached lists and respond to me off list.

Sincerely,

Sue Seniawski

We have enjoyed these machines for many years. As they have aged, several started going to a black screen. Two simple flips of the on-off switch have always brought the image back for quite some time until this week. Now, the image is on the screen for less than 10 seconds before it goes black. That happens over and over. Has anyone else had this problem and do you know a solution that will keep the image on the screen longer?

Thank you.

Message-ID: <290A047907423540BD6A500303266BA40172612789@Exchange.ippl.local>

Hello,

I have questions about a possible project, and have once again turned to this listserv for help. Our library purchased the Scan Pro 1100 microfilm reader about two weeks before the Family History Library terminated its microfilm loan program. I have been asked to think of a project for using the microfilm reader.

I indexed key articles from early issues of the local newspaper before they were microfilmed. The first year of the local newspaper is from 1971, and has about 85 articles that I indexed. I would like to create a searchable database of these articles in anticipation of the city's 50th anniversary. Unless I receive permission from the publisher to post online, the articles will be used in-house.

My idea was to train volunteer(s) to use our Scan Pro 1100 microfilm reader to digitize the 85 newspaper articles, and save the images as individual files (1971 MM DD) within one folder. I think I can use Adobe Acrobat Pro to batch OCR the individual files to create one searchable file. I don't know what would be needed to create a multi-page view, how I would make this accessible for viewing, or if my idea is even feasible? You may respond off list.

Thanks,

Mary Krekelberg

It seems like there are several ways to approach this. One small library has done this, and "gotten away with it". Another large library in the same system was threatened with legal action if they did this. And yet another library with which I am familiar can not make anything available except on CD's - not even an internal networks.

To start with, I would recommend talking to the newspaper and see if you can get explicit written permission for this. (see <http://copyright.cornell.edu/resources/publicdomain.cfm> for guidelines).

You are right about Adobe Acrobat Pro - my own genealogy group has done that with the various files that we have done.

PROMOTE YOUR COLLECTIONS; PROMOTE OUR COLLECTIVE HISTORIES: Building Directories
for African American Newspapers and LGBT Newspapers

We know that our choices as archivists, librarians, and curators matter. The historical record is largely shaped by what we gather, what we provide access to, and whose voices we preserve.

In this moment, we want to ignite the power and passion of libraries, archives, and museums to amplify voices that have too often gone unheard in this country.

Together with you all, we seek to create two new, open resources:

- * AN OPEN DIRECTORY OF AFRICAN AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS
- * AN OPEN DIRECTORY OF LGBT NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS

Participation is easy.

Educopia Institute, in partnership with DPLA, has created two surveys to capture information about your holdings in these two areas.

We need libraries, archives, and museums of ALL sizes and types to contribute simple metadata about your holdings using these survey instruments.

The content you hold matters--whether it is a single page or full runs, and whether it is print, microfiche, or digital. It needs to be represented.

We know this is a big project. We also know the perfect is the enemy of the good. We're not looking for perfection, just for participation.

Please join us!

Our entire library system has not been able to access Ancestry Library Edition for a week. Plus our patrons' remote access to Fold3 isn't working.

Has anyone else had this problem? It's never been down this long.

Colleagues,

The Archives of Michigan is deaccessioning our duplicate copies, please see the attached spreadsheet for the list of titles. We prefer to trade, if possible, and all items are available on a first come, first serve basis.

If interested, please email me off-list at rzepczynskik at michigan.gov. Thank you.

Hello All,

While working on her genealogy a coworker noticed a change in Ancestry regarding Calhoun County, AL. "The county that my parents are from is Calhoun County, AL. The county was formerly named Benton County, but it was changed to Calhoun County in 1858. However, Ancestry currently lists any searches by Benton County." I find this particularly odd, for I have not encountered Ancestry omitting the current county name in favor of the defunct.
