Hi all,

Our library is located in Columbia, SC and we maintain a popular obituary index<http://rlpro2.richlandlibrary.com/polaris/Search/default.aspx?
ctx=4.1033.0.0.6> that contains over one million records. It is the largest obit index in South Carolina. We have an online request form that requires a payment of $5.00 for a full text record to be scanned and emailed. We have a small department and the fee is designed to control request not as a money maker.

Lately we have been receiving requests to waive our fee for various memorial sites.
We are generally very happy to fulfill these requests but they are getting more frequent and time consuming. Does anyone have a "policy" for these types of requests? Would you mind sharing it with us? We want to help worthy organizations but are starting to feel overwhelmed by the number of requests.

Thanks for any advice.

Dear Debbie,

Have you tried putting a limit on the number of free requests? Is the issue one memorial site asking for multiple obituaries or many sites asking for 1 or 2?

We don't charge for copies, but our limit is 15 pages. (I work for a federal government institution. We used to charge for copies and realized the accounting paperwork was costing us much more in staff time than the money we were receiving.)

All the best,

   I find it simpler to keep the fee as is. I don't waive fees because we always get taken advantage of everytime we've tried it in the past.

We provide copies of newspaper obituaries free of charge, but the customer is limited to 3 names per request. We have 2 delivery options: pick up at any branch of the library, or if they live outside of the Halifax Regional Municipality (Nova Scotia), we will mail them out Customers use our Ask a Librarian <https://www.halifaxpubliclibraries.ca/about/contact/ask-a-librarian.html> email.

Our turn around time is between 48 hours to one week, depending on staff availability. We used to charge $5 as well, but came to the same conclusion - it cost more in staff time to chase and process the payment.

This is a very popular service.

all the best

We offer free copies of obituaries from local papers, but encourage delivery by email to save time, paper and postage. We have a ViewScan III microfilm reader, which allows us to quickly (assuming we have the correct date) download images and transfer them to email.

We used to do it free, then charged a quarter, and now it is 15 dollars.

As I have retired I don't know if they have changed that, but I think it still holds. And people have to order online - it requires prepayment there.

I did want these to be searchable in either FamilySearch or Ancestry, but no go. As far as I know, no waivers.

We have infrequent requests for our small city newspaper's obituaries. When we do receive them, we don't charge but have volunteers who will do the lookup and scan the obituary from the microfilms. I then encourage sending them by email which has always always been fine. We do charge for postage as a small deterent to mailing them.

We don't charge for looking up an obituary, if they either have the approximate date or the person is listed in the index to 19th century newspaper records that volunteers did a couple decades ago. We also do look-ups in the local funeral home records and the local Congregational records (which we don't own but that are housed in our archives room; a pre-1923 index will be going on-line soon, thanks to a dedicated volunteer). I've almost always been able to email the requested copy, which helps costs.

I'm a department of one person covering both reference and special collections, so response time varies with the rest of my workload; this time of year, it's often an hour or two, while in the summer busy season <coastal Maine tourist town>, it may be closer to a week ~ although I quote a week to 10 days all year.

We don't charge for obituaries when requested either. We will do the look-ups as staff time allows (I have four staff members total) and then return via email to the requester. I am considering a limit of 5-10 obits per request since some of them have been larger and more time consuming.

I currently have four volunteers going through my microfilm and developing a basic index of all of the obituaries from 1816 to today so that searching will be easier.
This is obviously going to take a long time, but the payoff will be worth it.

We charge $5 per lookup in the microfilm, we make them pay before we search (sometimes we don't find the item, but they are paying for our time, which can be quite a bit, since our newspapers aren't indexed). About half our requests don't want email, but prefer regular printouts mailed to them.
 As yet we've never had a request to waive the fee.
I would love to have volunteers to do microfilm requests - lucky you Jason!

Good luck!

The Israel Genealogy Research Association (IGRA) has just released new and updated databases on its website. This release of the databases is different than those we have done in the past. Of the eight we are releasing, six relate to the present.
You may ask how we can do that with privacy issues. The answer is that the details we offer do not include sensitive information and these lists were found on the internet so they are not included in the grouping of data we cannot release. Having information available about people in Israel today is also important in helping you to possibly connect with family. Please note, these databases do not include scans of images, but our upcoming release will.

A preview of the databases is available at

Dear Librarians

For many years we have been supplying our Royal Genealogy books to libraries all over the U.S. At the moment, with the U.S. Dollar riding high, and the British Pound low due to the European Brexit negotiations, this is a good time to top up your collection, or indeed to start one.

To remind you about the series:

THE ROYAL HOUSES OF EUROPE
This series of 48 volumes covers all the European Royal Dynasties and their descendants. They provide a full royal genealogy laid out in inter-connecting royal family trees of the Royal Houses of Europe. The books cover the reigning monarchies of Europe, the great Imperial Dynasties and the former monarchies of Europe. They include the British Royal House, now the House of Windsor, descended from Queen Victoria, and the British dynasties of Stuart, Hanover and Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. It now includes a series on the descendants of the mistresses of King Charles II, many of whom live in the U.S. The dynasties of Hohenzollern, Romanov, Habsburg, Bonaparte and Bourbon have separate books on each, together with the Monarchies of Scandinavia, the Benelux, Liechtenstein, Iberia, Monaco, Italy and the Balkans, and the former German Kingdoms, and Grand Duchies. In all cases the full descent is shown, extending to related noble and commoner families, in Britain, across Europe, and in the U.S.A, Canada, Australia and Latin America. They are an essential source of information for genealogists providing details right down to the present day.
All books have ISBN numbers.

In particular, they are a source of detailed information on German Royal and Noble dynasties.

The relevant 10 German/Austrian volumes are:

Subject: [Genealib] Genealogy education study - your help requested
Message-ID: <EB5FE614-19AC-4071-A70B-EF4CF3FE329B@usf.edu>

All,

I need your help.

I have just begun a study into how libraries and archives conduct genealogical education for their patrons. A search I made of the library literature did not produce anything relevant to this topic, although if anyone knows of an article about this that I may have overlooked, I would be extremely grateful if you would send the citation my way. My long-term goal is to contribute to the library literature on this topic.

To begin my study, I want to survey the genealogical library/archive community to see what is already being taught to patrons, and how it is being taught.   If you are willing to share some or all of your materials (handouts, outlines, PowerPoints, links to tutorials, etc.) that you have produced to assist with teaching your patrons genealogical research skills at any level, would you send a copy of those to me?

If you would, please send your materials directly to me (dsmith at usf.edu, and not to the list). Also, if you would put ?Genealogy education study? in the subject line, that will help me manage the incoming material.

If you have any questions about this study, you can reply here or email me directly at dsmith at usf.edu.

Thank you in advance for any assistance you?re able to give.

Regards,

Drew Smith

Hi Drew,

By "genealogical education" do you mean formal programming, or are you also referring to one-on-one more informal teaching as well? Are you looking for "how we done it good" type of articles?

Re: Genealogy Education

Most patrons of libraries are well-advised to join genealogical organizations/groups in their areas and in the areas of study.
I myself belong to the Oconto (WI) Genealogical Society since I get much very relevant information about my ancestors (in that Area 18763 ? 1920) plus some photos or information I would not even have thought to search out.

We genealogists are mostly self-educated by listening to lectures at our genealogical societies, attending Genealogical Workshops
Or seminars.   When you listen to a good speaker, even if the subject is not what you thought you needed it gives you little ideas of where to Search or how to tailor your search to your goal.

Many community colleges offer genealogical courses for those not actually pursuing a degree but merely enhancing their knowledge.

I hope this has helped you. I don?t know of any libraries that direct their outreach to educating patrons; it?s a do-it-yourself endeavor!

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you need enhancement of any of the points
I?ve raised.

We too have frequent requests for obituaries. Patrons can request them through our online request form and they can choose whether they would like them digitally or mailed. 90% request a digital copy. We do not charge for either the digital or hard copy. However, we do ask that they limit their requests to 3 per week. This keeps things manageable for us and allows for everyone to get an answer in a more timely manner. Once they have received their three requests, they then can submit their next three.

We have infrequent requests for our small city newspaper's obituaries. When we do receive them, we don't charge but have volunteers who will do the lookup and scan the obituary from the microfilms. I then encourage sending them by email which has always always been fine. We do charge for postage as a small deterent to mailing them.

We don't charge for looking up an obituary, if they either have the

approximate date or the person is listed in the index to 19th century
newspaper records that volunteers did a couple decades ago. We also do look-ups in the local funeral home records and the local Congregational records (which we don't own but that are housed in our archives room; a pre-1923 index will be going on-line soon, thanks to a dedicated volunteer). I've almost always been able to email the requested copy, which helps costs.

I'm a department of one person covering both reference and special collections, so response time varies with the rest of my workload; this time of year, it's often an hour or two, while in the summer busy season <coastal Maine tourist town>, it may be closer to a week ~ although I quote
a week to 10 days all year.

We don't charge for obituaries when requested either. We will do the look-ups as staff time allows (I have four staff members total) and then return via email to the requester. I am considering a limit of 5-10 obits per request since some of them have been larger and more time consuming.

I currently have four volunteers going through my microfilm and developing a basic index of all of the obituaries from 1816 to today so that searching will be easier.
This is obviously going to take a long time, but the payoff will be worth it.

We charge $5 per lookup in the microfilm, we make them pay before we search (sometimes we don't find the item, but they are paying for our time, which can be quite a bit, since our newspapers aren't indexed). About half our requests don't want email, but prefer regular printouts mailed to them.
 As yet we've never had a request to waive the fee.
I would love to have volunteers to do microfilm requests - lucky you Jason!

Good luck!

I?m looking at the more formal (workshop/lecture/presentation-style) education, and not what might go on at a genealogy reference desk in a one-to-one scenario.

I haven?t seen anything written on that topic, but let me know if you?re aware of articles about it.

By "genealogical education" do you mean formal programming, or are you also referring to one-on-one more informal teaching as well?  Are you looking for "how we done it good" type of articles?

Hi AnnEllen,

Thanks for your response, but just to be clear, I?m hoping to hear directly from librarians and archivists about the educational programming they do for their patrons. I do know that genealogists themselves have a variety of ways to become educated (society meetings, conferences, webinars, etc.), but because my study is about what librarians themselves are doing, those other methods are outside the scope of my study.

Re: Genealogy Education

Most patrons of libraries are well-advised to join genealogical organizations/groups in their areas and in the areas of study.
I myself belong to the Oconto (WI) Genealogical Society since I get much very relevant information about my ancestors (in that Area 18763 ? 1920) plus some photos or information I would not even have thought to search out.

We genealogists are mostly self-educated by listening to lectures at our genealogical societies, attending Genealogical Workshops
Or seminars.   When you listen to a good speaker, even if the subject is not what you thought you needed it gives you little ideas of where to Search or how to tailor your search to your goal.

Many community colleges offer genealogical courses for those not actually pursuing
a degree but merely enhancing their knowledge.

I hope this has helped you. I don?t know of any libraries that direct their outreach to educating patrons; it?s a do-it-yourself endeavor!

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you need enhancement of any of the points
I?ve raised.

Hi Drew,

Our department currently offers three one-hour classes: Genealogy Basics, Ancestry Library Edition and Beyond Ancestry.

Genealogy Basics   This is an introduction to our department and our print, microfilm and vertical file collections, plus a brief introduction to beginning a family history.   Handouts include an annotated bibliography, plus general library handouts, a five-generation chart and a list of where vital records are located in our county.

Ancestry Library Ed.   This is an introduction to the library edition of Ancestry, focusing on the census, military, vital records and immigration areas, and how to narrow a search. This is done as a demo on a laptop projected onto a screen.

Beyond Ancestry   This demo class introduces the researcher to ?freebie?
sites listed on our part of the library?s website<http://www.wtcpl.org/index.php/helpful-websites.html>. Included here are Family Search, USGenWeb, etc., plus our own image database the Trumbull Memory Project<http://www.trumbullmemory.org/>.

We are currently writing a military records class, and host a (very new) quarterly Genealogy Roundtable. These classes are taught at our main campus and at our branches.

All,

I need your help.

I have just begun a study into how libraries and archives conduct genealogical education for their patrons. A search I made of the library literature did not produce anything relevant to this topic, although if anyone knows of an article about this that I may have overlooked, I would be extremely grateful if you would send the citation my way. My long-term goal is to contribute to the library literature on this topic.

To begin my study, I want to survey the genealogical library/archive community to see what is already being taught to patrons, and how it is being taught.   If you are willing to share some or all of your materials (handouts, outlines, PowerPoints, links to tutorials, etc.) that you have produced to assist with teaching your patrons genealogical research skills at any level, would you send a copy of those to me?

If you would, please send your materials directly to me (dsmith at usf.edu<mailto:dsmith at usf.edu>, and not to the list). Also, if you would put ? Genealogy education study? in the subject line, that will help me manage the incoming material.

If you have any questions about this study, you can reply here or email me directly at dsmith at usf.edu<mailto:dsmith at usf.edu>.

Thank you in advance for any assistance you?re able to give.

Hi all,

Our library is located in Columbia, SC and we maintain a popular obituary index<http://rlpro2.richlandlibrary.com/polaris/Search/default.aspx?ctx=4.1033.0.0.6> that contains over one million records. It is the largest obit index in South Carolina. We have an online request form that requires a payment of $5.00 for a full text record to be scanned and emailed. We have a small department and the fee is designed to control request not as a money maker.

Lately we have been receiving requests to waive our fee for various memorial sites. We are generally very happy to fulfill these requests but they are getting more frequent and time consuming. Does anyone have a "policy" for these types of requests? Would you mind sharing it with us? We want to help worthy organizations but are starting to feel overwhelmed by the number of requests.

Thanks for any advice.

RELIC INSIDER:

GRAVE ENCOUNTERS

Close to 500 cemeteries have been identified in Prince William County. The earliest-known surviving grave marker dates to 1690 (Rose Peters, now at Rippon Lodge). Very few engraved stones date before 1800. Tombstones apparently weren?t a high priority during the colonial period, or were expensive and difficult to obtain. Many of the old family graveyards have only rough ?field stones.?

During the Great Depression, both the Works Progress Administration (W.P.A.) and the DAR (Daughters of the American Revolution) took a hand at reading and transcribing old gravestones around the county. Not surprisingly, though each group sometimes covered the same cemetery, they often found different markers and read the same stones differently.

In 1981, E.R. Conner III of Catharpin, Virginia, wrote and published One Hundred Old Cemeteries of Prince William County. His work, considered more accurate than the previous abstracts, includes cemetery diagrams as well as historical information. Later that decade, the Prince William County Genealogical Society began collecting cemetery data and published books on the Manassas City Cemetery and St. Paul?s Church (Haymarket). (See the PWCGS books at http://eservice.pwcgov.org/library/digitalLibrary/)

Since the 1990s, Ron Turner, now of Gainesville, Virginia, has added greatly to the number of known cemeteries, working on his own and with local residents having special knowledge. His work is now available online at www.pwcvirginia.com<http://www.pwcvirginia.com>.   Some of his research was funded by the Prince William County Historical Commission. The data on each cemetery includes GPS readings, as well as abbreviated data about each grave.

Within the past couple of years, David Cuff, webmaster for Historic Prince William (HPW), has posted a map showing the locations of all known cemeteries in Prince William County: http://www.historicprincewilliam.org, with links to Ron Turner?s cemetery data. HPW is also active in uncovering and preserving local cemeteries.

RELIC has compiled a set of eight notebooks with cemetery data compiled from multiple sources, including Ron Turner, E. R. Conner, the DAR and WPA reports, plus a variety of special reports and news clippings. A portion of the county?s cemetery data can now also be read online at www.findagrave.com<http://www.findagrave.com> and www.billiongraves.com<http://www.billiongraves.com>.

If you would, please send your materials directly to me (dsmith at usf.edu, and not

I do quarterly genealogy classes also. I always do the Genealogy Basics and a Genealogy: Beyond the Basics class but the third class is a special class. For the special class I've done Irish, German, Jewish, Native American, Military, DNA, African American, Immigration, Hispanic/Latino, Royalty, British Ancestors, etc. In the basics class I cover forms, where to save your information, Ancestry basics, FamilySearch basics, census and vital records. In beyond the basics I talk about wills, land records, military records and church records and some of the free sites like FindAGrave, the National Archives, glorecords.blm.gov, Ellis Island, etc. I've have PowerPoints for all of these if you are interested. I also present my "special classes" to the local genealogy society once or twice a year. DNA and Native American classes have been popular lately.

Hi AnnEllen,

Thanks for your response, but just to be clear, I?m hoping to hear directly from librarians and archivists about the educational programming they do for their

educated (society meetings, conferences, webinars, etc.), but because my study is about what librarians themselves are doing, those other methods are outside the scope of my study.

Re: Genealogy Education

Most patrons of libraries are well-advised to join genealogical organizations/groups in their areas and in the areas of study.
I myself belong to the Oconto (WI) Genealogical Society since I get much very relevant information about my ancestors (in that Area 18763 ? 1920) plus some photos or information I would not even have thought to search out.

We genealogists are mostly self-educated by listening to lectures at our

genealogical societies, attending Genealogical Workshops
Or seminars.   When you listen to a good speaker, even if the subject is not what you thought you needed it gives you little ideas of where to Search or how to tailor your search to your goal.

Many community colleges offer genealogical courses for those not actually pursuing
a degree but merely enhancing their knowledge.

I hope this has helped you. I don?t know of any libraries that direct their outreach to educating patrons; it?s a do-it-yourself endeavor!

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you need enhancement of any of the points
I?ve raised.

Drew, I present two beginning genealogy programs a year, one in May and one in November. In March I give an intermediate program and in July I give an advanced one. I also present two programs a year for our local genealogy interest group, Grapevine Name Droppers. The beginning program with take-home packets is intended for people with little to no genealogical experience, or who want a refresher. The other programs entail focusing on a specific subject ? women, passenger lists, Scots-Irish, city directories, etc., for which I provide handouts. I always present with PowerPoint.

I?ll be happy to send some material soon.

Hi Drew,

I differ from the other librarians who have responded so far. I am a reference librarian who does some genealogy programming.

In October we partner with the local genealogical society. We have the program they have organized in our community room.

I organize one program each month ? March, April and May. 2018 will be my second year of doing this. I have lecturers in. Last year the program was mostly for beginners and people who wanted a review of familysearch.org and AncestryLibrary.

In 2018 we?ll have people in to talk about cemeteries, female resources and to explain how to build heirloom books.

For a few years now, I have been holding a program called Ancestor Answers. It runs the second and fourth Monday evening of every month. I recruited volunteers from the local genealogical society to help patrons with beginning their genealogies or helping people with problems they are having with their genealogies. Everyone who attends gets a packet. We have 0-9 patrons show up. I have had to jump in and help on occasion because there might be too many patrons for the number of volunteers who have showed up.

Drew,

We have a very active genealogy education program. We currently offer a dozen recurring genealogy classes including sessions on getting started, censuses, African American, immigration, and sessions on specific databases including Ancestry and Findmypast. All of these are original content developed by our staff.
They are well-attended and we have gotten many positive comments. We also host local genealogy speakers as well as nationally-known speakers 2-3 times a year and have an annual Late Night at the Library event. Next year, we?re reaching out to area genealogy societies to offer presentations on our resources and services. So far, we?ve received presentation requests from four groups.

Our current and upcoming schedule can be found on flyers on our website:

I?ll be in touch to send you specific materials.

Hello, all,

Next April, SJCPL is trying to plan a family history workshop that would reach out to our local Hispanic community. While I've browsed APG's website and the Genealogical Speaker Guild's site, I haven't really found anyone with this specialty in the area of Indiana.

I'm hoping someone on this listserv could make a recommendation of a presenter who can speak about Hispanic research. We'd prefer someone who is bilingual. We'd also prefer someone who lives in Indiana (or a surrounding state) who could come to the area and present in person -- though we are considering presentation via webinar if necessary. (And, of course, our budget for travel/speaking fees is somewhat limited.)

I would sincerely appreciate any suggestions you can provide!

Best,
Lauren Kuntzman

A genealogist local to us in NY, suggested that we try the BCG web site, which lets you filter speakers by location and specialty. Also try the GSG.

Drew,

Here at the DAR library we have offered both Genealogy 101 lectures as well as Library Lectures from various authors. These lectures are free and open to the public. We try to vary the presentations between regular weekdays and Saturdays in order to reach the greatest number of people. Many of these have been taped and are available online for those people who are unable to make it into our Library.
Here is the link to our past offerings:

I hope this is helpful to you!

Message-ID: <CAFFveiELpcJj5QhsOu7y8UFdQ8gh3V0Pc--mmwk89qNVL5gN-A@mail.gmail.com>

Hi,

I'm a volunteer with the Genealogical Forum of Oregon and we have a list of items that we are offering free for postage. In addition, I've noted the URL for the GFO Surplus Books for Sale list.

Free for Postage

I've attached a PDF below with a detailed list. This list (#4) is a mixed bag of US microfilm and publications.

Please respond to me directly and we can work out the details of delivery and payment.

Surplus Items for Sale

Also, noted below is the URL for the GFO list of Surplus Books for Sale.
This list get updated about once a month (note the date at the top of each page). So, please be aware that items do get sold and then not taken off on the list for awhile.

The process for handling sales is separate from the Free for Postage activity. The instructions are noted on the web page.

In case you didn't see this announcement:

https://media.familysearch.org/familysearch-free-sign-in-offers-greater-subscriber-experiences-and-benefits

FamilySearch Free Sign-in Offers Greater Subscriber Experiences and Benefits Beginning December 13, 2017, patrons visiting FamilySearch.org will see a prompt to register for a free FamilySearch account or sign in to their existing account to continue enjoying all the free expanded benefits FamilySearch has to offer. Since its launch in 1999, FamilySearch has added millions of users, billions of various historical records, and many fun, new features like Family Tree, Memories, mobile apps, digital books, and dynamic help. In order to accommodate continued growth of these and future free services, FamilySearch must assure all its partners that its content is offered in a safe and secure online environment. Patrons creating a free account and signing in fulfills that need.
Patron sign in will also enable FamilySearch to satisfy the ongoing need for user authentication. This authentication can deliver rich, personalized discovery, collaboration, and help experiences. Simply put, signed-in visitors can access more searchable content and enjoy more personalized services.
"A large percentage of our current site visitors are not benefiting from much of what FamilySearch has to offer because they don't realize the need to simply sign in with their free account to do so," said Steve Rockwood, FamilySearch CEO. "They are basically arriving in the parking lot but not coming inside for the main event," he said about website visitors who do not sign in.
FamilySearch is committed to patron privacy and does not share personal account information with any third party without a patron's consent.
See Registering to use
FamilySearch.org<https://www.familysearch.org/ask/salesforce/viewArticle?
urlname=How-to-register-for-a-FamilySearch-Account-or-LDS-Account-1381813676484&lang=en> for information about creating a free account.
ADDITIONAL INFORMATION
1. Do I have to pay for a FamilySearch account?
No. Your FamilySearch account is, and always will be, free.
2. How do I create a free FamilySearch account?
See Registering to use
FamilySearch.org<https://familysearch.org/ask/productSupport>. The only information you will need is your first and last name, a username, a password, and an email or mobile phone number.
3. What if I have forgotten my username or password?

   *   See Recovering a forgotten username for signing in to FamilySearch.org<https://www.familysearch.org/recover/password>.
   *   See Recovering a forgotten password for signing in to FamilySearch.org<https://www.familysearch.org/recover/username>.
4. Will you sell my information?
FamilySearch does not share your personal account information with any third party without your consent.
5. How will my experience be enhanced?
FamilySearch offers many services and experiences that are free but that require you to sign in as a subscriber to fully use. In addition to historical records and

Family Tree access, signed-in subscribers receive personalized experiences, notifications, and other features (see above).
6. Why do users need to log in to perform searches or to create a family tree?
FamilySearch wants to provide you more access to records and a rich, personalized experience with more successful discoveries. By signing in, you allow the FamilySearch system to customize and deliver its best services to you.
7. How will my contact information be used?

   *   Your information is used in the FamilySearch system to facilitate collaboration between users (you control how much information is shared).

   *   The Family Tree and Memories features display your username and any other contact information you approve when using select features.
   *   Your information allows you to send in-system messages to other users without revealing your personal identity or email address.
   *   FamilySearch will send you email and newsletters to keep you informed. You can specify how much email, if any, you receive.
   *   Your contact information is accessed when you contact the support group for help.
8. Is there anything I can do without signing in?
Absolutely. There are still a number of things you can do on FamilySearch without signing in. You can search the catalog<https://www.familysearch.org/catalog/search>, digitized books<https://books.familysearch.org/>,
genealogies<https://www.familysearch.org/family-trees>, the Wiki<https://www.familysearch.org/wiki/en/Main_Page>, and the learning center<https://www.familysearch.org/ask/landing?search=Getting %20Started&show=lessons&message=true>. You can also view user-contributed photos and stories<https://www.familysearch.org/photos/find>.

FamilySearch is updating the affiliate library contract so we currently don?t have anything. First quarter of 2018 I hope to announce that we are accepting new libraries and will send out contracts. Hope that helps.

I'd be interested in learning more about being an affiliate as well.

Cherie:

How will this change affect affiliate libraries? Will I have to create a "staff" Familysearch account for people to use when they are helping patrons so that we can access records and information for patrons? At my library the Archives department handles both local history and family history so not every staff person here has a personal Familysearch account to use. Nor should anyone have to use their personal account to help library users, at least in my opinion.

Thank you for any information and insights you might have. I can certainly call FamilySearch support as well.

At our library I'm finding so far that there is no need to create a separate account for the library to use in order to assist patrons. If the patrons are coming in to the library to view images that they can't view at home they already have a free FamilySearch account.

I've recommended creating free accounts to several patrons who I've helped one on one and they did not have a problem with it. We even teach a class on FamilySearch where everyone creates an account before we begin the class and there have been no objections.

Cherie:

How will this change affect affiliate libraries? Will I have to create a "staff" Familysearch account for people to use when they are helping patrons so that we can access records and information for patrons? At my library the Archives department handles both local history and family history so not every staff person here has a personal Familysearch account to use. Nor should anyone have to use their personal account to help library users, at least in my opinion.

Thank you for any information and insights you might have. I can certainly call FamilySearch support as well.

Beginning December 13, 2017, FamilySearch patrons will want to sign-in for greater free experiences and benefits.

FamilySearch Free Sign-in Offers Greater Subscriber Experiences and Benefits

Beginning December 13, 2017, patrons visiting FamilySearch.org will see a prompt to register for a free FamilySearch account or sign in to their existing account to continue enjoying all the free expanded benefits FamilySearch has to offer. Since its launch in 1999, FamilySearch has added millions of users, billions of various historical records, and many fun, new features like Family Tree, Memories, mobile apps, digital books, and dynamic help. In order to accommodate continued growth of these and future free services, FamilySearch must assure all its partners that its content is offered in a safe and secure online environment. Patrons creating a free account and signing in fulfills that need.

Patron sign in will also enable FamilySearch to satisfy the ongoing need for user authentication. This authentication can deliver rich, personalized discovery, collaboration, and help experiences. Simply put, signed-in visitors can access more searchable content and enjoy more personalized services.

?A large percentage of our current site visitors are not benefiting from much of what FamilySearch has to offer because they don?t realize the need to simply sign in with their free account to do so,? said Steve Rockwood, FamilySearch CEO. ?They are basically arriving in the parking lot but not coming inside for the main event,? he said about website visitors who do not sign in.

FamilySearch is committed to patron privacy and does not share personal account information with any third party without a patron?s consent.

See Registering to use FamilySearch.org<https://www.familysearch.org/ask/salesforce/viewArticle?urlname=How-to-register-for-a-FamilySearch-Account-or-LDS-Account-1381813676484&lang=en> for information about creating a free account.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

1. Do I have to pay for a FamilySearch account?

No. Your FamilySearch account is, and always will be, free.

2. How do I create a free FamilySearch account?

See Registering to use FamilySearch.org<https://familysearch.org/ask/productSupport>. The only information you will need is your first and last name, a username, a password, and an email or mobile phone number.

3. What if I have forgotten my username or password?

   *   See Recovering a forgotten username for signing in to FamilySearch.org<https://www.familysearch.org/recover/password>.
   *   See Recovering a forgotten password for signing in to FamilySearch.org<https://www.familysearch.org/recover/username>.

4. Will you sell my information?

FamilySearch does not share your personal account information with any third party without your consent.

5. How will my experience be enhanced?

FamilySearch offers many services and experiences that are free but that require you to sign in as a subscriber to fully use. In addition to historical records and

Family Tree access, signed-in subscribers receive personalized experiences, notifications, and other features (see above).

6. Why do users need to log in to perform searches or to create a family tree?

FamilySearch wants to provide you more access to records and a rich, personalized experience with more successful discoveries. By signing in, you allow the FamilySearch system to customize and deliver its best services to you.

7. How will my contact information be used?

   *   Your information is used in the FamilySearch system to facilitate collaboration between users (you control how much information is shared).

   *   The Family Tree and Memories features display your username and any other contact information you approve when using select features.
   *   Your information allows you to send in-system messages to other users without revealing your personal identity or email address.
   *   FamilySearch will send you email and newsletters to keep you informed. You can specify how much email, if any, you receive.
   *   Your contact information is accessed when you contact the support group for help.

8. Is there anything I can do without signing in?

Absolutely. There are still a number of things you can do on FamilySearch without signing in. You can search the
catalog<https://www.familysearch.org/catalog/search>, digitized
books<https://books.familysearch.org/>,
genealogies<https://www.familysearch.org/family-trees>, the

Message-ID: <CAJv_p_Uatfa6NPVcKh1F=5kczAbPdJ4jnMOGWkM7PuXe0NgDcQ@mail.gmail.com>

Hello all,

A patron reported to me today that we have apparently lost access to Brooklyn death records, 1898-1916 via FamilySearch. We are an Affiliate Library and still have access to other restricted records, but this one seems to now require you to be a Family History Center (not an Affiliate). I know that there are some records we do not have access to, but I'm curious if anyone knows the back story on what happened with this particular record set? Our patron claims they were accessible two weeks ago.

Thanks in advance for any insight you might be willing to share.

Dear Kristen,

While I am unsure about the accessibility changes to the particular Brooklyn collection you mentioned, earlier this year some of my colleagues noticed a change in accessibility in a collection of Ohio records. Someone inquired with FamilySearch; the response they received indicated that collections undergo an annual review, during which time the records custodians can renegotiate the requirements or restrictions on access to the images. Some collections are even made inaccessible temporarily while the review process is underway.

At the time when the Ohio collection I was interested in was inaccessible (which, keep in mind, this was back when the microfilm program was still an option, so a lot has changed in the past few months), FamilySearch suggested checking back on the collection in a few weeks, to see if the images returned to the site. They also recommended viewing this short FamilySearch video, which explains some of the decisions about access we're seeing:

Note: this is just my best guess for what might be happening with these Brooklyn records. Hope this info helps.

Best,
Lauren

Please help me know what to respond.

We are only able to go back on that line of our family to our 2G grandparents. I

For me personally, I have met some long lost cousins that I communicate with via social media. I set up a family Facebook page where we can all share family photos.

I suppose some may use it to document family health traits/issues?

Janice,

The cousin connections are the most valuable part of having your DNA tested (genealogically speaking). I?ve taken my family back 5 or 6 generations farther in Europe on various lines because of genealogy cousins sharing information with me and that?s just distant cousins. Close cousins can help adoptees figure out there birth parents, etc. I tell her that first. Also if you do a test that looks at genetic health information that will help with medical decision making, risks to inform your kids and grandkids about, etc.

It also confirms your traditional research, when you have matches on that line you can be pretty confident that you found the right people in the first place. If you get some surprising results you may need to double check your research on that line.

With your brother you have the added benefit of being a part of a Y chromosome surname study if you want to do that.

You can also reassure them that their private information is protected. I think that this seems to be the biggest stumbling block for some people.

I would also show your sister?in-law all the bells and whistles of your DNA results and emphasize how much more information you?d get with a second sibling in the mix since you only share 50% of the same genetic material you?ll get 50% new information/distant matches. Unless you think this is more information than she wants to know.

Good luck,
Elaine Hayes

Janice,

I?d tell the sister-in-law that your brother?s DNA is one of a kind. Nobody else has his exact combination, even all his cousins and siblings. By having him test his DNA he can contribute a unique snapshot of his family?s genetic history. He might be the only one who inherited the bits of DNA needed to solve that problem on pushing your lines back past the 2nd great grandparents.

The more people you can get to test, the clearer genetic picture you get for your family.

Janice-

Have YOU tested yet? One way to get your sister-in-law AND your brother interested could be to show them what YOUR results look like and give them an idea what his will look like. Point out that your results will be different and can help fill in gaps from your matches. And therefore give you more connections to ancestors.

I tested at Ancestry and got my 2 sisters to test. (My brother I had test at ftDNA for the Y testing options) I have 834 matches, my oldest sister 901 and next oldest sister 921. It has been interesting to see how different our "Ethnicity Estimates" are too. (The sister with 921 matches wondered why she should test if the other 2 of us did. She now SEES why in simply the difference in matches and ethnicity mix.)

Maybe showing her things will pique her interest.

This is a good point--I have had family members that were reluctant, but once they saw what several of us could do with our matches, they got interested and decided to test.

We, too, were affected by the loss of an important Ohio Death Certification collection, but it was a temporary one and it returned within a few days so Lauren?
s response makes sense. My advice ? keep trying every few days.
Users have always needed to log in to get the actual image from this collection and this has not changed.
Thanks, Lauren, for the link below. I have passed it on to my staff so they are clear about the familysearch policies about collections.

The Researcher's Guide to American Genealogy 4th Edition, by Val D.
Greenwood

When it was originally published in 1973, The Researcher's Guide to American Genealogy, by Val Greenwood, revolutionized its field. It was the first true textbook ever published about American genealogy. Combining how-to guidance, case study examples, and an extremely detailed discussion of genealogical records, The Researcher's Guide was both an instant success and the go-to source for its users during each stage of their research. Following the publication of Alex Haley's Roots and the TV miniseries that book spawned, sales of Mr. Greenwood's book soared, assuring its reputation as the best book in American genealogy ever published. Between 1973 and 2000, two additional editions of The Researcher's Guide were released, primarily in response to the use of the personal computer for compiling, organizing, and publishing genealogical information. By 2000, the early stages of digitizing genealogy data, mostly on CD-ROM , were also in evidence.

Since the publication of the 3rd Edition of The Researcher's Guide in 2000, the genealogy landscape has changed dramatically. Almost everyone now uses a computer for research. Thanks to the Internet, with a click of the mouse, genealogists have access to more data they could ever dream of studying; data they would have had to travel far and wide to come by in the past. Much of this information is free, or moderately priced through commercial subscription services. To cite one crucial example, the entire U.S. federal census, from 1790 through 1940, is available online and completely indexed, from several providers. DNA has also become an important tool in genealogy in recent years. Whether or not they know where their immigrant ancestors came from, with a simple swab of the cheek, Americans can discover their ethnic origins in just a matter of weeks. This technology can help fill gaps in the family tree by, among other things, putting one in touch with others possessing a similar genetic make-up.

The 4th Edition of The Researcher's Guide to American Genealogy both embraces the changes of the last seventeen years and yet transcends them. Mr. Greenwood has re-written every chapter and added two chapters about technology as it relates to family history research--one dealing with significant concepts and definitions and the other with specific resources and applications, including major family history websites and Internet resources. In addition, virtually every chapter provides information on Internet websites pertinent to the subject discussed in that chapter. Greenwood covers all the major changes in the field, including DNA research. The final result is a 4th Edition that is 25% longer than its predecessor. Given the unprecedented amount of information on the Internet, today's researcher is able to reach beyond the vital statistics to a new world of understanding, both of his ancestors and of himself. Accordingly the author shows the reader how to build a family history about actual people, not just names and dates, from the myriad available sources. Mr. Greenwood also recognizes that not all sources researchers are seeking can be found online today-some never will be-that much information on the web is faulty or unsourced, and that researchers invariably enter dead ends or hit brick walls. Good instructional guidance, consequently, is critical to the success of family history research, and this is where The Researcher's Guide is unsurpassed. It is both a textbook and an all-purpose reference book, designed to help the present generation of family history researchers better understand the methods and principles of family history research, and learn how to utilize all available resources. In short, this new 4th edition provides a clear, comprehensive, and up-to-date account of American genealogy-no sound genealogical project is complete without it.
