Hello!

We had a patron come in looking for some insight on some wording from a NC county court minutes abstract. Has anyone come across this before? My colleagues and I have consulted some of our go-to sources and haven't been able to find clarification. Info and questions from patron: From "Early Carteret County Court Minutes, 1790" vol. 5, p. 18 - "William Dennis, Esq. tax gatherer, is allowed the following persons: Daniel Barco, William Simons, John Lankister, Thomas Harris, Edward Culley and Cornelius Ellison."
What is the meaning of "is allowed" in the above entry? From patron: Was he to collect taxes from them, employ them to collect taxes or write off efforts to get them to pay?

Any thoughts?

An additional 13,000 records have been added to IGRA's All Israel Databases. A preview is available including information about each of the additions. Two of these databases have new data added and five are new to our collection. We thank the participating Archives and the many volunteers who worked to prepare these databases.

It sounds like William Dennis is being given credit for turning in the tax for those 6 people. The sheriff had to occasionally turn over monies collected to the County trustees and receive a receipt for those funds.

I have seen in some Court minutes that the sheriff was given credit for delinquents not paid (and the names listed). Meaning they listed their taxes and he was to collect a certain amount, but they never paid up. So, he is asking that the tax list be amended to show that, so he doesn't have to turn those funds over to the county.

Please excuse cross-posting.

The in-person workshops in Charleston are being held at the West Virginia Archives and History Library in the Culture Center. You may attend either workshop for $30 or both for $50. Please contact CCAHA for information and registration.

These programs are intended as beginner level assessment and planning skills workshops for smaller libraries with archival collections, museums of all types, historical societies and other organizations with collections, etc. If your organization has never surveyed your collections for preservation needs or never conducted a risk management study and made an emergency plan, you will find these sessions to be invaluable.

In a separate grant opportunity, you may also apply for a free needs assessment of your institution using the linked application. Lastly, a free webinar focusing on promoting collections care is offered.

Deadline extended - preservation needs assessments!

Need more time? We're accepting applications for this FREE preservation needs assessment opportunity until Friday, September 29th. Please email dfeige at ccaha.org<<mailto:dfeige@ccaha.org>> with questions.

Preservation Needs Assessment Grant Opportunity

We are seeking applicants for our RHSP Preservation Needs Assessment Program. Through funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH), CCAHA is able to offer a limited number of completely free preservation needs assessments (valued at over $5,500).

A preservation needs assessment is a key first step in the process of caring for collections. In addition to pinpointing areas of concern, the preservation needs assessment is widely recognized as a valuable tool in fundraising. Many funders strongly recommend that potential applicants cite the findings of these assessments within their grant applications for conservation and preservation projects.

Applications are due Friday, September 29th.

Essential Policies and Procedures for Cultural Collections

An institution's collections care and business practices are defined by its written policies and procedures. Institutional memory is often lost through staff changes, but best practices are encoded in these important documents.

This workshop will provide an overview of policy and planning documents that are essential for collections care, such as environmental policies, housekeeping guidelines, and maintenance policies.

Participants will learn the critical components of these documents and will receive tangible examples of how to adapt them to different institutions. Policy development, approval, and implementation responsibilities of staff, volunteer, and board will be discussed.

Risk Assessment for Cultural Institutions

In order to develop an emergency preparedness and response plan, an institution must understand the risks its collections face. A risk assessment identifies potential risks and outlines strategies to mitigate damage in the event of an emergency or disaster.

This workshop will offer tips for conducting these assessments on a site-wide level and for specific collections, as well as case studies of institutions that have dealt with disasters, and advice on forming relationships with first responders and other outside contacts who can help conduct risk assessments.

? Wednesday, October 11th at the Dennison Railroad Depot Museum<

Speaker: Dyani Feige, Director of Preservation Services, Conservation Center for Art & Historic Artifacts

Fees: $30 per day, or $50 for both workshops

Good Morning Colleagues,

I wanted to let you know that I will be presenting a free webinar on September 21 at 1:00 pm CST called "Thinking Outside the Collection Box:

How to Serve Genealogists Now."

Description: Genealogy is the second most popular hobby in the U.S. In this webinar you will learn ideas for working with genealogists, even if you don't have a dedicated genealogy/local history collection at your library. Nicole Wedemeyer Miller, co-author of Fostering Family History Services: A Guide for Librarians, Archivists and Volunteers, will give you low and no-cost ideas for reference and programming that can be implemented quickly.

This webinar is sponsored by Infopeople and Niche Academy. If you cannot attend the presentation, it will be archived and available for later viewing.

The sign up is here: <http://www.nicheacademy.com/serve-genealogists-now>

Regards,

Nicole Wedemeyer Miller,

Adjunct Lecturer at the University of Illinois iSchool

Fairfax County Public Library's Virginia Room has more books to trade. Please respond to our volunteer, Fran, at Bfm1010 at cox.net and Frances.Millhouser2 at fairfaxcounty.gov . Be sure to include your mailing address in your email so that we can make your mailing label. There's an Excel and a pdf version of the same list, so I hope everyone will be able to open it.

If you don't have anything to trade, please send a check for postage reimbursement (made out to Fairfax County Public Library) to

Laura Wickstead
Virginia Room
10360 North St.
Fairfax, VA 22030

Trades are allotted on a first-come, first-served basis. The volunteer will include a ?packing list? of your requests in your shipment with a check mark indicating that the book is included in the shipment, or an N/A meaning that the item is Not Available because someone else's request was received before yours.

BRING OLD PHOTOGRAPHS BACK TO LIFE [This program has been cancelled due to a health emergency.]

RELIC INSIDER

Prince William County court minute book 1769-1771 was among books which disappeared from the county clerk's office during the Civil War. A descendant of the Union soldier who took it as a souvenir returned it to the county clerk in 1984. Since then it has been locked up and rarely seen. We understand it has not yet been microfilmed. In 1985 the late June Whitehurst Johnson published selective abstracts from the book concerning probate matters.

Now RELIC volunteer Bill Hunter has completed a verbatim transcript of the book and has donated a bound copy to RELIC's collection. Court Record Book: Prince William County Virginia 1769-1771 is now available on RELIC's new book shelf. Bill has also given us permission to post the text online at RELIC's Digital Library. We'll try to get it posted there as soon as possible.

RESISTANCE AND PERSISTENCE: ENSLAVED WOMEN IN PRINCE WILLIAM COUNTY*

In October, we acknowledge the contributions of women in Virginia history. Historian Sheri Huerta will examine the seldom-recognized contributions of enslaved African American women to Virginia's history. Even though opportunities to wield power were limited, some women took extraordinary measures to challenge the rights of slave owners and change their conditions of enslavement. Enslaved women ran away, sued for their freedom, and resisted enslavement in a variety of ways, even though they risked terrible punishments. This presentation highlights the courageous actions of enslaved women in Prince William County that emboldened future generations of women. Sheri Huerta holds a doctorate in history from George Mason University specializing in the antebellum South, slavery, legal history and social culture.

WHAT YOUR CHROMOSOMES CAN TELL YOU ABOUT YOUR FAMILY*

? Shannon Combs-Bennett is a professional genealogist with a degree in genetics. She will explain the most common test for DNA, which analyzes your 22 autosomal chromosomes along with the X-chromosome. This information can be very helpful in locating cousins, determining ethnic heritage and finding female ancestors hiding in your tree. That is, if you know how to look. Shannon will use a sample case study to demonstrate test results and their meaning.

I'm wondering if anyone has any insight on how to open the scrubbed attachments from the email? I copy and paste the URL but get only a link to the genealib page. I wonder if it's a problem with my email, or if anyone else has trouble?

Subject: [Genealib] Free Webinar on Serving Genealogists

Good Morning Colleagues,

I wanted to let you know that I will be presenting a free webinar on September 21 at 1:00 pm CST called "Thinking Outside the Collection Box: How to Serve Genealogists Now."

Description: Genealogy is the second most popular hobby in the U.S. In this webinar you will learn ideas for working with genealogists, even if you don't have a dedicated genealogy/local history collection at your library. Nicole Wedemeyer Miller, co-author of Fostering Family History Services: A Guide for Librarians, Archivists and Volunteers, will give you low and no-cost ideas for reference and programming that can be implemented quickly.

This webinar is sponsored by Infopeople and Niche Academy. If you cannot attend the presentation, it will be archived and available for later viewing.

The sign up is here: <http://www.nicheacademy.com/serve-genealogists-now>

Regards,

Nicole Wedemeyer Miller,

Adjunct Lecturer at the University of Illinois iSchool

Fairfax County Public Library's Virginia Room has more books to trade. Please respond to our volunteer, Fran, at Bfm1010 at cox.net and Frances.Millhouser2 at fairfaxcounty.gov . Be sure to include your mailing address in your email so that we can make your mailing label. There's an Excel and a pdf version of the same list, so I hope everyone will be able to open it.

If you don't have anything to trade, please send a check for postage reimbursement (made out to Fairfax County Public Library) to

Laura Wickstead
Virginia Room
10360 North St.
Fairfax, VA 22030

Trades are allotted on a first-come, first-served basis. The volunteer will include a ?packing list? of your requests in your shipment with a check mark indicating that the book is included in the shipment, or an N/A meaning that the item is Not Available because someone else?s request was received before yours.

RELIC INSIDER

Prince William County court minute book 1769-1771 was among books which disappeared from the county clerk's office during the Civil War. A descendant of the Union soldier who took it as a souvenir returned it to the county clerk in 1984. Since then it has been locked up and rarely seen. We understand it has not yet been microfilmed. In 1985 the late June Whitehurst Johnson published selective abstracts from the book concerning probate matters.

Now RELIC volunteer Bill Hunter has completed a verbatim transcript of the book and has donated a bound copy to RELIC's collection. Court Record Book: Prince William County Virginia 1769-1771 is now available on RELIC's new book shelf. Bill has also given us permission to post the text online at RELIC's Digital Library. We'll try to get it posted there as soon as possible.

RESISTANCE AND PERSISTENCE: ENSLAVED WOMEN IN PRINCE WILLIAM COUNTY*

In October, we acknowledge the contributions of women in Virginia history. Historian Sheri Huerta will examine the seldom-recognized contributions of enslaved African American women to Virginia's history. Even though opportunities to wield power were limited, some women took extraordinary measures to challenge the rights of slave owners and change their conditions of enslavement. Enslaved women ran away, sued for their freedom, and resisted enslavement in a variety of ways, even though they risked terrible punishments. This presentation highlights the courageous actions of enslaved women in Prince William County that emboldened future generations of women. Sheri Huerta holds a doctorate in history from George Mason University specializing in the antebellum South, slavery, legal history and social culture.

WHAT YOUR CHROMOSOMES CAN TELL YOU ABOUT YOUR FAMILY*

? Shannon Combs-Bennett is a professional genealogist with a degree in genetics. She will explain the most common test for DNA, which analyzes your 22 autosomal chromosomes along with the X-chromosome. This information can be very helpful in locating cousins, determining ethnic heritage and finding female ancestors hiding in your tree. That is, if you know how to look. Shannon will use a sample case study to demonstrate test results and their meaning.

Hi all,

I'm wondering if any library out there has a relationship with their city recorder to house older city documents. Also, do you have a management plan in place for these records?

We're planning on developing such a plan for our city and would love to see examples.

We have such a relationship with the City and County of Denver. We are the archives for many of the historic records such as marriage applications, grantor-grantee, tax records etc. They also have a relationship with the Colorado State Archives. Will see about having our Senior Archivist get in touch with you direct.

My 5c:

I see very few "improvements."

I particularly hate the endless scroll aka Pinterest which has ruined too many of my previous go to webpages.

I did get to the new site from inside the current website search results so that may have made a difference but I don't really think that.

I don't expect my poor opinion will make a difference but I still made the effort.

The mobile user, like the drive through lane at the fast food restaurant is more important than the PC or walk-in customer. You can guess which one I am :)

My 2 cents worth ?

I find it to be more user friendly but I was dismayed that the ?Share? function wasn?t working. Or at least I think it wasn?t working. I will need to wait to receive an email from a relative who is currently out of the country to be sure.

My 5c:

I see very few "improvements."

I particularly hate the endless scroll aka Pinterest which has ruined too many of my previous go to webpages.

I did get to the new site from inside the current website search results so that may have made a difference but I don't really think that.

I don't expect my poor opinion will make a difference but I still made the effort.

The mobile user, like the drive through lane at the fast food restaurant is more important than the PC or walk-in customer. You can guess which one I am :)

Why is it that the "new improved" anything is rarely actually an improvement? Is there a way to make a comment? Even when I was signed in, I couldn't find one.

What's with the use of the small light blue font these days--both here and on the new Find-A-Grave? Difficult, sometimes impossible, for senior genealogist eyes to read!

Thanks for the link.

My 2 cents worth ?

I find it to be more user friendly but I was dismayed that the ?Share? function wasn't working. Or at least I think it wasn't working. I will need to wait to receive an email from a relative who is currently out of the country to be sure.

I wish I knew why my email automatically does this sometimes. I just now changed it but I don't think it is something that will stick. I hope this is more readable.

Thanks for the comment! I agree 100% that everything should be readable. There is nothing more frustrating than not being able to decipher the information that could very well be exactly what you were seeking.

Hey all,

A handy tip to magnify your screen is if you press Ctrl and + at the same time you can zoom in on any webpage. Ctrl and - zooms back out.

We use Outlook, too. But the font size is set at 11 and the color is set at blue.
There may be a way to change it to work automatically but, frankly, I just don't have the time or inclination to do so.

My apologies to all on listserv for this more personal note to Sandra. The topic at hand is a good one to keep in mind as many folks who are doing research on their family history may have vision impairments that interfere with their being able to do adequate research via email or online.

it but I don't think it is something that will stick. I hope this is more readable.

Thanks for the comment! I agree 100% that everything should be readable. There is nothing more frustrating than not being able to decipher the information that could very well be exactly what you were seeking.

What's with the use of the small light blue font these days--both here and on the new Find-A-Grave? Difficult, sometimes impossible, for senior genealogist eyes to read!

Thanks for the link.

My 2 cents worth ?

I find it to be more user friendly but I was dismayed that the ?Share? function wasn?t working. Or at least I think it wasn?t working. I will need to wait to receive an email from a relative who is currently out of the country to be sure.

My 5c:

I see very few "improvements."

I particularly hate the endless scroll aka Pinterest which has ruined too many of my previous go to webpages.

I did get to the new site from inside the current website search results so that may have made a difference but I don't really think that.

I don't expect my poor opinion will make a difference but I still made the effort.

The mobile user, like the drive through lane at the fast food restaurant is more important than the PC or walk-in customer. You can guess which one I am :)

As is usually the case, I found out something while looking for something else.
Although like a previous mentioned activity that didn't work this might not either.

On the new site there is a banner across the top. Click on "contribute." Then the page that comes up when you do this has a "suggest edits" option. You have to sign in to do this. I do not have an account with findagrave, so I was unable to put it to the test.

I was able to comment by starting at the main page and clicking on the line, *Changes are coming to Find A Grave.*See apreview now <<https://new.findagrave.com/>>. This takes you to the new site and there is a little yellow blob with Beta Send Feedback at the bottom right of the screen. That brings up your comment screen. You don't have to be signed in.

Lisa is undoubtedly a premiere speaker, but I want to chime in with a plug for the library itself. What a absolutely beautiful structure and it houses a marvelous collection of genealogy materials. So check it out online and spread the word to those you know with Buckeye or Michigan connections. It's an additional incentive to attend.

Good day, Genealibbers:

I'm planning a talk on unusual sources of genealogical information, and I'd like to incorporate personal experiences to get my listeners to really think outside of the genealogical box. For example, one speaker I heard many years ago talked about finding birth dates for parents and children carved into the underside of a large wooden table. If anyone would like to allow me to use their story, please e-mail me privately. I promise you'll remain anonymous.

Thanks!

Authors of Liberty: The Valiant Military Service of Maryland's Black Men and Women

9/23/2017

11:00 AM

C. Burr Artz Public Library

Frederick County Public Libraries

Frederick, MD

Description: Maryland's black community, both men and women, have a history of serving the military needs of their nation and its constituent states that extends back at least 275 years. Serving both in war and in peace, on the frontline and on the homefront, with heroism as well as stoicism, members of Maryland's black community have served to protect the freedoms and rights offered to others that were often not offered to them. This talk examines examples of courage, fortitude, and sacrifice, exhibited by Maryland's black men and women as they helped write a history that changed America forever.

Co-sponsored by Frederick's AARCH: African American Resources Cultural and Heritage and featuring a display from AARCH.

Glenn T. Johnston, Ph.D. is Chair, Humanities & Public History Department, Stevenson University. He is very active in the Maryland Military Historical Society. He served for five years in the US Army.

This program is part of World War I and America, a two-year national initiative of The Library of America presented in partnership with The Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History, the National World War I Museum and Memorial, and other organizations, with generous support from The National Endowment for the Humanities.

Hi Nancy.

This won't make your top ten, but I will offer it.

In 2003, I was researching single Margaret Bloomfield (1888-1965), who I suspected moved from Troy, New York, to Pomona, California. Margaret's mother and sister were in Pomona.

When I couldn't find Margaret on a census (I don't think Pomona was indexed at the time), I googled her name. I found "Miss Margaret Bloomfield of Spadra" on a list of attendees at a 1937 Hitt family reunion. The reunion was held in San Dimas - not far from Pomona.

I began researching people listed near Margaret's name. I discovered Margaret was close with Maude Hitt, listed just above Margaret. Through researching Maude's family, I was able to trace Margaret in Pomona.

Best regards,

Bonnie

Good day, Genealibbers:

I'm planning a talk on unusual sources of genealogical information, and I'd like to incorporate personal experiences to get my listeners to really think outside of the genealogical box. For example, one speaker I heard many years ago talked about finding birth dates for parents and children carved into the underside of a large wooden table. If anyone would like to allow me to use their story, please e-mail me privately. I promise you'll remain anonymous.

Thanks!

Please share this announcement with anyone who might be interested. We currently have two open positions in the area of Local History and Archives at Spartanburg County Public Libraries. The earliest start date for both is November 1 and review of applications will begin in early October. Please see the full job postings at the link below.

The Local History Assistant is a 20-hour a week position working afternoons, Friday evenings, and one weekend in a four week rotation. Local History and Genealogy experience/interest is helpful and should be indicated in a cover letter to go with the official application document (resume is an optional addition).

The Processing Archivist is a full-time Librarian grade position. Hours will be daytime (exact schedule TBD but typically 8:00-5:00 or 8:30-5:30). A cover letter and resume are strongly recommended in addition to the required SCPL application. Ideal start date will be November 1 but the position will be open until filled (start date is always the first of the month).

<http://www.spartanburglibraries.org/About-Us/Jobs>

We are located in the beautiful upstate of South Carolina near Greenville, SC; about an hour southwest of Charlotte, NC and an hour south of Asheville, NC at the intersection of I-26 and I-85.

Please let me know if you have questions about either position.

Fairfax County Public Library's Virginia Room has more books to trade.
Please respond to our volunteer, Fran, at Bfm1010 at cox.net and Frances.Millhouser2 at fairfaxcounty.gov . Be sure to include your mailing address in your email so that we can make your mailing label. There's an Excel and a pdf version of the same list, so I hope everyone will be able to open it. Apologies for sending attachments, but the county won't allow us to use file sharing services.

If you don't have anything to trade, please send a check for postage reimbursement (made out to Fairfax County Public Library) to

Laura Wickstead
Virginia Room
10360 North St.
Fairfax, VA 22030

Trades are allotted on a first-come, first-served basis. The volunteer will include a ?packing list? of your requests in your shipment with a check mark indicating that the book is included in the shipment, or an N/A meaning that the item is Not Available because someone else's request was received before yours.

Good morning:

I just wanted to put a plug in for the Salt Lake Institute of Genealogy for consideration. They hold week long classes on various genealogical/historical subjects. This is great hands on for librarian's to develop or understand a particular genealogical/historical records. These classes are all taught by people at the top of their game in the field of interest.

The top reasons to consider to send staff:

- Expand knowledge that can be used back at the library with staff and patrons
- Networking
- Exploring new ideas, visiting Family History Library, etc.

I have posted this up coming year's courses. Some classes still have available room and others on a waiting list.

If you have questions the contact is SLIG.ugagenealogy.org or you can dash me a note at kimgenhist08 at gmail.com.

Respectfully,

I have a patron trying to track down a death certificate for someone who died in Brooklyn in 1958. A woman with the same name and believed death date is listed in the NY Death Index. The patron is not a relative and is unable to order it. Is there any way to get access to some of the information it might have such as burial location/cemetery name or anything that could support that this is the correct individual?

Order microfilm of the newspaper and look for an obituary. Verify with the SSDI that all those facts match the expected person. There may be other Brooklyn-specific ideas, too.

Daniel,

Have city directories been searched as well? If the name isn't too common then this might be helpful. Sometimes they will note if someone is deceased depending on the time period. This might reveal a neighborhood where the person lived in Brooklyn and possible church/temple and cemetery to search for additional information on them.

Daniel,

An obituary or death notice might yield at least the cemetery name. I checked Newspapers.com and GenealogyBank.com, but did not find a Brooklyn newspaper that had been digitized for 1958.

However, The New York State Library has four newspapers that could be checked since you have the death date. The APG member list should have a genealogist in the Albany area who could look at a newspaper for you.

- * Brooklyn Daily Bulletin 1955-1996
- * Brooklyn Daily 1933-1963
- * Brooklyn Eagle 1938-1963
- * Brooklyn Record 1938-1997

Both the Brooklyn Public Library and the New York Public Library may have newspapers for 1958.

Good luck!

Find a Grave shows thousands of people buried in Brooklyn in 1958. If you check it or one of the associated indexes (Ancestry.com or FamilySearch.org) for [Name] died 1958, Brooklyn, NY, it will show you probably only a few matches (unless it's something like "Mary Brown"). After finding what cemetery each is in, search for the surname in that cemetery to see if you recognize names associated with the person you want, may show you they are buried near each other. Occasionally volunteers with Find a Grave attach obituaries to the burial record.

Had a library patron tell me she was reading about Virginia in the late 1600's and early 1700's. In the book she was reading they talk about storing their guns in dry fat. I tried Googling it but it didn't really give me a definition. I know now that it is used in feed supplements for livestock but how did they make it 400 years ago?

The Oxford English Dictionary defines "dry fat or dry-fat" as "A large vessel (cask, barrel, tub, case, box, etc.) used to hold dry things (as opposed to liquids)." Also drievat.

Hello Colleagues,

Last week I told you about a webinar I was presenting on serving genealogists. Well, that recorded webinar has been turned into an online tutorial, which can be used for training staff. It's called "Thinking Outside the Collection Box: How to Serve Genealogists Now." It has ideas particularly useful for those in small institutions that do not have a dedicated genealogy/local history collection.

The tutorial, the slides, and a handout can be accessed by anyone for free, and here is the link:

<http://files.usgwarchives.net/la/orleans/obits/1/w-17.txt>

If you end up using this successfully for training, I'd like to hear about it!

If the death occurred over 25 years ago they should be able to get it. I've gotten several death certificates for research purposes and I was not related. Of course that may be just in Texas.

The state index is not the NYC and boroughs index. A 1958 death SHOULD be order-able from the state. The NY city office might have a different take, but if it is listed in the state index, then the state should be able to supply it.
