        I have a reproduction of The New Topographical Atlas of Tompkins County New York. Original copyright is 1866, with the reproduction done in 1973. The book is in good shape, with an engraving of the New York State Inebriate Asylum in the front :)
    The book is thin, but too large for a regular shelf so you'll have to have a place to put it. It measures about 16" tall and 13.5" wide.   If you can use it and have a place to put it, I'll gladly send it out!

EXPLORE RELIC

September 2018 - The Ruth E. Lloyd Information Center for Genealogy and Local History (RELIC)

Start your historical journey here. RELIC's email newsletter highlights upcoming free events and happenings. Genealogy and local Virginia history is our specialty as a service provided by the Prince William Public Library. We're located at Bull Run Regional Library and you can always find more about us at www.pwcgov.org/library/relic<http://www.pwcgov.org/library/relic>

A reminder - Bull Run Regional Library and RELIC will be closed to the public from September 1 to 21 while renovations are taking place. RELIC staff will be able to respond to questions by email during that time.

Genealogy Roundtable.

Discuss the challenges of your family research in a group environment and get tips for new approaches. Moderated by RELIC's Don Wilson.

RELIC INSIDER:

STUDYING SCHOOL HISTORY IN PRINCE WILLIAM COUNTY

        Although youth in Prince William County have been learning from tutors or at "field schools" since the colonial period, free public education became a reality only in 1869. That year, six school districts were established, and a county superintendent was elected. Soon after, elementary one-room schools were built around the county, then consolidated and enlarged in the 20th century. They were entirely segregated until the 1960s. Secondary schools appeared during the 1890s, including the Manassas Industrial School, our first secondary school for African-Americans.

Here is a selection of titles on Prince William education, all available in RELIC. See our online catalog for other locations. For additional items, search the catalog for keywords PRINCE WILLIAM SCHOOLS.

*   Lucy Walsh Phinney. Yesterday's School: Public Elementary Education in Prince William County, Virginia, 1869-1969. (Author, 1993)

*   R. Worth Peters. Secondary Education in Manassas, Virginia, 1890-1935. (University of Virginia Thesis, 1939)

*   Commodore Nathaniel Bennett. View of the Mountain: Jennie Dean of Virginia. (Author, 1967) A history of the Manassas Industrial School.

*   Laura A. Peake. The Manassas Industrial School for Colored Youth, 1894-1916. (College of William and Mary Thesis, 1995)

*   Hattie Mae Partlow and Pauline Smith. Now and Then with P[rince] W[illiam] E[ducation] A[ssociation]; Growing with the Years, 1896-1963. (Authors, 1963)

*   Commodore N. Bennett. Education Transition in Prince William County. (Prince William County School Board, 1970)   About desegregation of the school system.

*   Milton L. P. Snyder. The Third Battle of Manassas: Managing Change and Growth in a Suburban Virginia School District, Manassas, Prince William County, Virginia, 1973-1977. (Author, 2015).

*   Daniel L. Duke.   The Little School System That Could: Transforming a City School District. (State University of New York Press, 2008) About Manassas Park City Schools.

RELIC has a collection of Self Study Reports done for individual Prince William County schools during the 1970s and 1980s. We also have a large collection of high school and middle school yearbooks, most published since the 1970s, but some as early as 1932 (Brentsville District High School). Some of these items are stored offsite. Check our catalog to determine the location of individual titles and please call ahead at 703-792-4540 to see how they can be retrieved. Most of our high school yearbooks are being digitized for online access; we will provide an update on that later.

Hello all,

I am new to this list being a retired state government librarian and also a genealogist. One of the societies in which I am an officer was given a bunch of genealogy periodicals that have been residing in my garage for several years. Our society library took some of them initially and a dozen or so boxes were shipped to the Mid-Continent Public Library but stacks still remain. As a last ditch effort to get rid of them before recycling them I am offering them to anyone on this list. I would prefer that you take whole runs rather than random copies. The only cost to you would be to pay for the actual postage. I am attaching a list of the titles and issues available.

Yes, I have been having trouble, too. I get in just fine, but as I scroll through the paper, I start getting blank pages that say ?loading.? As Becky said, when I refresh, I have to verify that I am a human ? doable, but a nuisance.

        In the last few weeks I have noticed that the Google News Archive (https://news.google.com/newspapers<https://news.google.com/archive>) site isn?t loading properly and when you refresh the site it was you to verify you are not a computer. Does anyone know if this is how Google is going to kill the site? I tell people about this site ALL THE TIME because it has our local newspaper and this is the only online access available. Becky

Perhaps it has something to do with the newspapers you are viewing. I was able to view my hometown papers with no problems what-so-ever. But I have yet to hear if anyone has tried what was suggested earlier on this thread?a different web browser.

James,
We here at the Hayes Presidential Library are the managers of the large Ohio Obituary Index.
We, too, have noticed the trend of people only posting an obit through the funeral home and not paying the local newspaper to post the obit.
For our local papers, we have a volunteer checking the local funeral homes? websites and printing off the obits that were NOT put in a local paper (thanks, Deb!). She hole-punches the printout and we have binders for these non-published-in-paper obits. They are then indexed in our Ohio Obituary Index, not to the online image which may disappear in a few years, but to the hard copy binder which we will continue to maintain.
You could also save a digital copy of the funeral home obit. to an in-house file, but in our case we like accessibility of a binder on the shelf.
We do not do this for the whole state of Ohio, but only our local county communities.

We use America's Obituaries and Death Notices as our contemporary obituary index.
Colorado has excellent coverage of our newspapers. HOWEVER, many families are not publishing notices in the newspapers and are using online services through the mortuary for any sort of obit or memorial. These are ephemeral in many instances.
Are any of you capturing these notices in any format as a substitute or supplement to your obituary files.

We?re a contributor to the Ohio Obituary Index with Akron Beacon Journal obituaries. We haven?t tried to keep regular track of local funeral home websites, but sometimes there?s a notice in the paper that the full obituary will appear on the funeral home website. If we see that, we?ll take the time to capture the obit digitally, save it in a specified folder on our server, and add a note to the OOI.

I have a friend who?s a funeral home director, and I?ve asked him about this. He believes most funeral homes have the intention of keeping their obituaries available permanently. I tend to agree that?s their goal, but we never know for certain. It?s just hard to lose control over this and it can?t hurt to have backup.

We try to capture copies and add them to our obituary card index just like we do our obituary clippings.

Especially given that funeral homes DO go out of business. (Less than 5 years ago the facility that handled end-of-life matters for my father's family for most of a century went out of business, selling their assets to another funeral home. I doubt that digital files will be a continuing cost the new management will wish to maintain [and upgrade as technology progresses].)

When our FGS award wining technology group went to digitize some local funeral home records, the owner was OK with it. But others pointed out that there were recent privacy  issues (at least in our state). And the clips that the FH kept are still under copyright to the local newspapers. Also, one of the biggest local FH's went out of business, the county took over the building and a fire destroyed all their records for more than one hundred years. And in Albany NY there is a FH when they keep their records above a stove in an old kitchen.. I am --not--making this up. I write about it a few years ago after a personal visit there.

Even worse, the big local library no longer cuts and files those obits or death notices, and the online index to them back to the 1950s has been off line all of 2018.

Yet, another little local library does have some things online:  [ http://hpl.org/resources/local-history/obituaries/].

Go figure. I was told to my face a number of years ago that the paper would sue us if we tried that. Meaning of this post - things vary a great deal all over the country.

We have a few resources for finding obituaries.  One is a set of books created by Donna and Donald McGuire that are titled An Abstract of Births, Deaths, Marriages, etc. from Morgan County, Indiana Newspapers (the 11 volumes cover 1846 through 1908 but unfortunately our newspapers on microfilm do not go that far back ?).  We also have a 6 volume set of 3 ring binders that list obits in the local newspapers (giving just a name and date obit appeared in the paper) that covers 1841 ? 2017.
At the end of this year I will create a 2018 listing from our obituaries online.
You may view these at https://in.evanced.info/morg/genealogy/obitview.asp .  I create a hard copy of the online version because I am not 100% certain this source will be available in the years to come. It was created by EVANCED and they were bought ought by DEMCO if I remember correctly. Anyway, there are no online photos of the obituaries as they appeared in the newspaper. Even I have to admit the online version can be confusing. After a certain point in time, all fields in this database were filled in if the information was available in the newspaper. This means that the date of death is the actual date of death. Whereas before it was the date the obituary appeared in the newspaper and that was the only information given. This database entry is very time consuming and we are fortunate to have a dedicated volunteer to do the data entry once a week. So it stays fairly current.

What I am concerned about is the fact that microfilm is going by the wayside. Also, our equipment is out-of-date and very few people want to use the newer machine. I have heard that the local newspaper publisher is willing to provide the library with newspapers.com and have the local papers digitized. So we shall see how that goes. I would welcome any comments about newspapers.com both good and bad. You may direct these comments to me at jkistler at morgancountylibrary.info<mailto:jkistler at morgancountylibrary.info> and if enough people are interested and I have permission to do so from those who respond, I will be happy to send one email to the listserv containing the responses.

Thanks and apologies for being so wordy.

 Hi,
If Emigrants to Pennsylvania, 1641-1819 : a consolidation of ship passenger lists from the Pennsylvania magazine of history and biography is still available, we would love to have it.
Thanks!

Does anyone know how to do this and where she should look for a place that accepts obits.

My local public library is going to apply to become an affiliate library.
However, the copy of the form does not indicate where they should send the application.

Does anyone know the address to submit an application to become an affiliate library?

Thank you!

The daily newspaper here (Seymour [IN] Tribune) makes obituaries available online without charge -- as do the local funeral homes. The names can be googled. Perhaps names with DOB & DOD, maybe spouse, could be put in a spreadsheet along with name of the obit location and a digital link?

If the newspaper doesn't already make the obits available without charge, perhaps someone could approach them about the possibilities?

At the same time, I know several deaths in the community do not have obits published for a variety of reasons. Perhaps every few months the names without obits could be collected from the health department (and/or cemeteries?) and added to the database?

The JC History Center here has a volunteer who collects obits from the newspapers in print form and adds them to a binder -- a time-consuming process. She laughs that she's always driving around with dead people in her trunk.

Fairfax County Public Library's Virginia Room has books and duplicates of census microfilm for Virginia to trade. Please respond to our volunteer, Fran, at Bfm1010 at cox.net and Frances.Millhouser2 at fairfaxcounty.gov . For the microfilm, please specify that it's Box 1 and give the reel number. Be sure to include your mailing address in your email so that we can make your mailing label. There's an Excel and a pdf version of the same list, so I hope everyone will be able to open it.   Apologies for sending attachments, but the county won't allow us to use file sharing services.

If you don't have anything to trade, please send a check for postage reimbursement (made out to Fairfax County Public Library) to

Laura Wickstead
Virginia Room
10360 North St.
Fairfax, VA 22030

Trades are allotted on a first-come, first-served basis. The volunteer will email you to tell you that the box has been sent to our mail room, and she'll include a list of which books or films are in the box.

Collective wisdom sought.

October 1, 2018 MyHeritage Library Edition becomes THE genealogy website of the Michigan eLibrary (mel.org).

The genealib archives only have references to MyHeritage trials.

Does anyone have this database for patrons?

How does it compare to HeritageQuest the database mel.org is dropping? HQ has the Revolutionary War pensions, US census images, the Freedmen's Bank records, digitized local histories and more.

HeritageQuest is only available as an institutional subscription unlike MyHeriage and Ancestry for that matter where individuals can purchase access.

I've just located a video tutorial for MyHLE but it's from 2015 and I haven't had a chance to watch it yet.

MyHeriage has lots of non US records and I understand World Vital Records which used to include NewspaperArchive so we will be picking up newspapers but that may no longer be the case.the MyHeritage promos speak in terms of hundreds and thousands of databases, images, etc. but no specifics for making comparisons.

Thank you for your insights.

We used to carry World Vital Records, but this was replaced with MyHeritage Library Edition. I haven?t been impressed with it. I think Ancestry Library Edition and FamilySearch are far more robust, but we?re stuck with it MyHLE, at least for the duration of our previous WVR subscription. I realize FamilySearch is not technically a library database in the traditional sense, especially if you?re not an FHL affiliate library, but at least you can refer your patrons to it.

My general impression of MyHLE is that it?s heavy on indexes and transcriptions, light on images, and there?s a lot of overlap with FamilySearch. Their search function is very simple and will probably appeal to beginners, but doesn?t have the flexibility of HQ, which mirrors Ancestry?s search function. What really bothers me about MyHLE is their lack of context and metadata for their records. For example, there?s a database called Irish Prisoners, 1780 ? 1867. There are no images, and I can find no information about where these records originated other than an archival reference number that?s meaningless.

You might be losing the Rev. War pensions, but you can still access much of HQ?s content through other sites. Census records are on MyHLE and FamilySearch. HQ?s digital book collection is only about 28,000 items, and I suspect most of them can be accessed on Google Books, Internet Archive, or FamilySearch. Freedman's Bank Records, 1865-1874 are on FamilySearch. The U.S. Serial Set is on American Memory, but it?s a little clunkier to search than HQ.

Comparing the major genealogy databases in detail, picking out both significant and small differences in content and function, would be a full time and never-ending job. Database companies know it and there?s a lot of overlap and content available elsewhere that they will not tell you about.

What is required to become an Affiliate Library? Are there a certain number of microfilm readers and/or computers required? What about the distance between affiliate libraries? I know we couldn?t get an FHC because there was one located in a town 20 miles north of us and one 30 miles SE of us.

We had a subscription to World Vital Records, and made the transition to MyHeritage for a one year subscription. Some of my newer genealogy patrons and my staff love it. I'm a bit ambivalent about MyHeritage, and while it has some great European resources, the lack of digitized images is always a concern for me.

We're giving it a year, taking the feedback, see where it goes. I'm personally stoked about a FindMyPast Library subscription, which offers a ton of stuff you can't get on Ancestry or FamilySearch. We'll see what patrons want next year.

Many Thanks,
Debra

I have a personal success story with MyHLE that it seems appropriate to share in this discussion.

A week ago today I finally found my maternal grandmother's 1892 Baltimore passenger list on MyHLE which I had been trying to find for many years on FamilySearch, Ancestry.com, and the archive.org Soundex index cards which are digitized from the Allen County Public Library's microfilm collection.
Her name was misspelled (who could have guessed that?) but she showed up indexed on MyHLE. I don't know why - maybe they have a better search algorithm.

Now to find my maternal grandfather's 1887 passenger list.

I'm not a big fan of HeritageQuest ~ the limited number of records (and overlap with other sites for what they do have...) and the lack of a site-wide search feature are my biggest issues. The second is especially hard, at least in my experience, for people just starting out :-(

Maine added MyHeritage Library edition to our databases as of July 1, as the at-home use option. The feedback that I've gotten so far has been mostly positive.

I've found MyHeritage's 1940 census indexing to be more accurate than Ancestry's several times that I've been helping a patron this summer who is a beginner at research, for example. Sample for you to try: Arline Toof, b. 1934.

One of the other positive features for me is a Maine newspaper that picked up lots of stories from around the state, so I've been able to use it to pin down event dates when a patron says something like "my uncle was shot sometime tin the '20s or '30s" before looking in the unindexed other newspapers. Many of the newspapers are from Chronicling America, but it's nice to not have to flip to several sites ~ just like I'm glad for the basic search in Ancestry pulling in FindAGrave records ~ many patrons I've worked with really have trouble with juggling too many websites.

Hi folks! This is a personal question, so if it's out of place, please let me know.

TL;DR: What is the best resource for researching Native American Ancestors?

I am trying to find out more about my great-great grandparents, one or both of whom were Native American. Is there a seminal work that can help me search for Native American ancestors? I have tracked them in census and other records and have exhausted those resources. I need to change the focus of my search and I don?t know where to start.

Thanks!
Rebecca

There is so much to look for, but you may want to start with this reference: https://www.familysearch.org/wiki/en/American_Indian_Genealogy.

As we do not know what and where I should point out that there may very well be "hidden" sources - for example a local to me professor has written extensively on a series of annual censuses of the local tribes, kept in order to make sure that every one of the members got their grant from the government. That local individual census goes way back into the 1800s. So, always be open to looking in out of the way places in addition to the main sources.

A member of our local genealogical society collaborated on a book for researching the local tribes in our state. Lastly, there are more and more genealogy organizations popping up in the tribal groups themselves. I have attended local meetings where their officers of the se groups come and share info.

Best of luck

Pay attention to the U.S. Census and what it lists as ethnic group and hopefully it will be I for Indian. The 1900 and 1910 Census has special forms for those claiming Native American ancestry. The top is just like the other forms, but the bottom half lists tribe and other good information.
Pay attention to the geographical area and learn what tribes lived in that area.

We do a lot of Oklahoma Five Tribes: Western Cherokee, Creek, Choctaw, Chickasaw, Seminole. We tell researchers to work their pedigree chart, placing emphasis on solid documentation, back to the time period between 1896 and 1906. If they are in one of the nations on the 1900 U.S. Census in Indian Territory and on one of the special enumeration forms, then check the Dawes Roll. The research is different for all the tribes since they had different records.

Pay attention to the U.S. Census and what it lists as ethnic group and hopefully it will be I for Indian. The 1900 and 1910 Census has special forms for those claiming Native American ancestry. The top is just like the other forms, but the bottom half lists tribe and other good information. Pay attention to the geographical area and learn what tribes lived in that area.

We do a lot of Oklahoma Five Tribes: Western Cherokee, Creek, Choctaw, Chickasaw, Seminole. We tell researchers to work their pedigree chart, placing emphasis on solid documentation, back to the time period between 1896 and 1906. If they are in one of the nations on the 1900 U.S. Census in Indian Territory and on one of the special enumeration forms, then check the Dawes Roll. The research is different for all the tribes since they had different records.

As we do not know what and where I should point out that there may very well be "hidden" sources - for example a local to me professor has written extensively on a series of annual censuses of the local tribes, kept in order to make sure that every one of the members got their grant from the government. That local individual census goes way back into the 1800s. So, always be open to looking in out of the way places in addition to the main sources.

A member of our local genealogical society collaborated on a book for researching the local tribes in our state. Lastly, there are more and more genealogy organizations popping up in the tribal groups themselves. I have attended local meetings where their officers of the se groups come and share info.

Best of luck

Insofar as I know, there is not a single "seminal" work. The resources available very greatly from nation to nation.

So, I'll refer you to my go-to source: the FamilySearch Wiki. Try searching by the name of the tribe.

And, others have given you excellent advice as well.

I use MyHeritage Library Edition through the San Jose Public Library, and it?s made available to the students in the genealogy/genealogy librarianship course that I teach for San Jose State?s School of Information. As Drew mentions, it is available with remote access, and it?s very helpful.

My local library recently got approved as an affiliate library and received the notice that their IP address has been configured. When I login to FamilySearch from within the library, the locks are gone above the camera icon. However, when I click on the camera, it says "photo not available."
I've tried logging out and back in and clearing my cache.

Is this normal?

Subject: [Genealib] Affiliate Library - Photo not available

My local library recently got approved as an affiliate library and received the notice that their IP address has been configured. When I login to FamilySearch from within the library, the locks are gone above the camera icon. However, when I click on the camera, it says "photo not available." I've tried logging out and back in and clearing my cache.

Is this normal?

Note:

  *   Approval email received about 3 hours ago
  *   Working with Warrick County, Indiana deed books Thanks for any help you can provide!

Hi,

If the image is restricted to viewing at a Family History Center, you won?t be able to view it at your affiliate location.

Sincerely,
