Hello! Please spread the word about this project to your colleagues and patrons.

Veterans Oral History Transcription project

The State Archives and State Library of North Carolina are seeking volunteers to help make their materials more accessible to researchers by transcribing audio files of oral history interviews of North Carolina veterans. Interested in helping? Please visit <http://bit.ly/NCVetsOHTP> .

The Veterans Oral History Transcription project includes 12 oral history interviews of women veterans provided by the State Archives of North Carolina's Military Collection Veterans Oral History Program. The program records audio format interviews with military veterans who served in the U.S. Armed Forces for any military service, engagement, or war, and who were born and/or raised in North Carolina; were stationed for extended time in North Carolina military installations; or have lived in the state for an extended time.

The Veterans Oral History Program's mission is to capture and provide access to the memories and experiences of the state's military servicemen and servicewomen, preserving them for the benefit of the public and scholars.

Volunteers are invited to visit the project's transcription guidelines and be a part of the crowdsourcing effort to make women's military history more accessible to the public. As this initial transcription project progresses, more oral history interviews may be added to the transcription project. For additional information, email digital.info at ncdcr.gov<mailto:digital.info at ncdcr.gov>.

This project is made possible by funding from the federal Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) under the provisions of the Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA) as administered by the State Library of North Carolina, a division of the N.C. Department of Natural and Cultural Resources (IMLS grant number LS-00-18-0034-18).

I believe Northern Micrographics still does that. They used to microfilm for us (we now use Advantage Preservation).

Revealing the Carnage and Chaos of the Hospitals of First Manassas.
On July 21, 1861, Union and Confederate forces clashed just north of Manassas in the first major battle of the Civil War. Within twenty-four hours there were about 3,500 casualties; no one was fully prepared. Private homes and buildings in the area served as hospitals staffed by inexperienced surgeons and assistants attempting to care for the wounded. Local historian and author, Paige Gibbons-Backus, will reprise a talk she recently gave at the Annual Conference of Civil War Medicine at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, detailing the challenges and shortages faced in the makeshift hospitals.

The Meaning of Freedom in an Era of Enslavement. *

Stories of freedom often emphasize the accounts of daring runaways, yet another process provided a path out of slavery. The acquisition of freedom papers through manumission required community support and a keen understanding of the prevailing legal, social and economic constraints. Yet finalizing this process also required difficult choices between family, freedom, and potential re-enslavement.

Dr. Sheri Huerta, History Professor at George Mason University, will explore the complexities of manumission and the reality of being "free" for black families across northern Virginia. Come and join the conversation about the meanings of freedom and the many factors that affected the decision to seek freedom or remain enslaved.

Subject: [Genealib] WFGS/WFGL offering duplicate family history publications for the cost of postage

Message-ID: <008b01d4afbbs8d1a6750$a74f35f0@mchsi.com>

Hello genealogy librarians and/or other representatives of genealogy libraries on the genealib mailing list-

We hope your new year is going well for you all!

I am Bruce Rova, a WFGS (West Florida Genealogical Society) member and a volunteer at the WFGL (West Florida Genealogy Library) in Pensacola, FL.
One of my volunteer taskings is to assist in managing our duplicate genealogy books. At this time we have an overabundance that makes us want to reduce this inventory to a more reasonable number. Today we are happy to be offering, as a first step in that effort, the thirty titles we have in our duplicates that are in the "family history" category - for the cost of library media mail postage. Please check the attached Word document listing those publications with info on the Title/Author/when published/type of binding/condition/# pages/index?/some of the main surnames found in the publications.

If you are interested in obtaining any of these items for your library, please send an email directly to Bruce Rova at flrova@mchsi.com (NOT to the genealib address). By sending me an email listing the titles of the items you hope to obtain, you are agreeing that upon receipt of items you do receive, you will send a check or money order payable to "WFGS" to reimburse us for the amount of the "library-to-library media mail" postage cost. That also requires you send the name of your library and the package mailing address for your library in the email. I will reply to each request with info on which items will be coming and when they are shipped.

Upon receipt, mail the postage cost reimbursement to:

WFGS

Attn: Treasurer

P.O. Box 10217

Pensacola, FL 32524-0217.

In February we will have many more publications (in many different categories) that we will again offer for the cost of postage. That will leave us with a more reasonable duplicate books inventory of about 500 books that we would very much like to trade with genealogy libraries that also have duplicate genealogy books listings that we could trade books with to improve each of the respective libraries, and each library would be responsible to pay the postage on the books they send. We usually go one for one unless it is noted that certain books are much more valuable and deserve two or more books in trade.

Over the last year, we added about 2,000 more publications to our shelves and we will this spring have completed a nice renovation/expansion. We would love to have any of you that get near Pensacola, FL to stop in and check us out. Our hours are Tuesday through Saturday 10 AM to 6 PM. Closed Sunday and Monday. WFGS has some 18 to 20 volunteers spread across all of the open days who help patrons in their use of the WFGL.

Warm regards,

Bruce Rova

If no one wants them, you could offer them to Ancestry.com they have been putting them online.

Fairfax County Public Library's Virginia Room has periodicals to trade. Please respond to our volunteer, Fran, at Bfm1010 at cox.net and Frances.Millhouser2 at fairfaxcounty.gov . Be sure to include your mailing address in your email so that we can make your mailing label. There's an Excel and a pdf version of the same list, so I hope everyone will be able to open it. Apologies for sending attachments, but the county won't allow us to use file sharing services.

If you don't have anything to trade, please send a check for postage reimbursement (made out to Fairfax County Public Library) to

Laura Wickstead
Virginia Room
10360 North St.
Fairfax, VA 22030

Trades are allotted on a first-come, first-served basis. The volunteer will email you to tell you that the box has been sent to our mail room, and she'll include a list of which periodicals are in the box.

Subject: [Genealib] Availability of FamilySearch records

Message-ID: <a245c741b02f4d84b6a3ea8039fb16d0@EXP-D3S3.exec.ds.state.ct.us>

We have recently become a FamilySearch Affiliate Library and the staff had a couple of questions I hope someone could answer. Am I correct that there are four levels of access to the records: those that anyone may access anywhere, those that may only be accessible at the affiliate level or above, those accessible only at a family history center or the Family History Library, those records only available to church members?

We are also wondering if there is a way for us to tell if a record is available for anyone to use or if we have access because we are an affiliate. We get many email and telephone questions, as opposed to in house so we are referring people to FamilySearch.org. We are hoping there is a way to tell that a patron would not be able to access the particular collection at home but must be at an affiliate or center. If there isn't a way to tell about access we could give people links to the records with the proviso that they may need to visit an affiliate library or family history center near them.

Thanks for any advice.

Affiliate libraries and Family History Centers have the same level of electronic access. What FHCs have that affiliates don't is access to the subscription services (e.g. FindMyPast, Ancestry, etc.) that libraries may or may not have.

According to what I was told last year, the additional amount of data accessible to members-only is very small (under 5%).

I'm certain what the difference is for Salt Lake (FHL) access.

People have asked for a different icon to represent info available at affiliate libraries, but so far, that has not happened. What they can do is if they see a key above a camera, they can call/email and ask about that specific database, but odds are it is open (no key) at the library.

Sarah- what a great answer. I do want to clarify that there are about 1% of certain record sets that are available in FHCs that are not available in Affiliate Libraries. It is about 4% that are available only in the FHL in SLC. And yes, Centers do get library editions of FMP, Ancestry and MH. I have heard a rumor here at FamilySearch that we may be getting closer to resolving the icon situation so that hopefully it is clear and simple for end user. However, we may not see that change for several months (possibly a year?) so thanks for your patience but keep your fingers crossed. The situation is fluid as we are required to go back and renegotiate all previous microfilm contracts with the current record custodians. This takes a lot of time and a team of lawyers. In fact changes can be made and one day we can see a record set and then a new contract goes into effect and then the images are restricted. We hope to start having some better communication around this, but we are not there yet. The good news is that we are slowly, but steadily working through the microfilm and hope to have it completed in a couple of years. Meanwhile, for those that are interested in becoming an Affiliate, reach directly out to me and not through support. Thanks for all your patience as we learn and grow and make improvements.

Subject: [Genealib] WFGS/WFGL offer of a Set of Volumes 1-9 of the "Cherokee By Blood" books by Jerry Wright Jordan for trade
Message-ID: <000001d4b859$0fc62130$2f526390@mchsi.com>

West Florida Genealogy Library (WFGL) has the following nice set of Native American Genealogy Research books available for trade:

Cherokee by Blood, Records of the Eastern Cherokee Ancestry in the US Court of Claims, 1906-1910, Vol. 1-9 (9 books)

Jordan, Jerry Wright

Paperback

Good to very good condition, with owner's name/address label on some of them and some highlighting within the books

These are all about one-inch thick each, and would cost about $40 per book new for a total of about $360.00 all new. The same set could be put together from used offers on amazon and ebay for about $220.00 total for the nine books. I have inserted here 2 photos taken today of the books. They are all books of the abstracts of the applications submitted to prove Eastern Cherokee Ancestry in 1906 to 1910. The pen is included in the photo to give you an idea of size. Three to five books we don't currently have on the WFGL shelves could make a good trade. If you have a list of your duplicate genealogy books, we would review it expeditiously upon receipt.

If you have some books to offer in trade, please email your reply to me [outside of this mailing list] to flrova at mchsi.com <mailto:flrova at mchsi.com>

Hopefully within the next week, someone of you will be able to enhance your Native American Genealogy Research resources by obtaining this good set of books. We (WFGS) will pay the shipping for this set of books, and the sender of book(s) in trade would pay the postage on the thing(s) sent in return to us at:

West Florida Genealogy Library

Attn: Bruce W. Rova

I expect to have out to you another listing of duplicate genealogy books available for cost of postage before Valentine's Day.

We have been a FamilySearch affiliate library for almost 20 years. When the digital images became available online in September 2017 we had access to almost every local government record we could want. A few months ago something changed: Inexplicitly and without warning we lost access to county court records for our own county as well as a number of other counties (many nearby) within our state (Virginia).

People we have contacted have suggested that the contract that Salt Lake has for those records has expired or has changed, but haven't indicated who that contract would be with, or who we should contact to address it. The Library of Virginia was the agency who approved the original microfilming (more than 50 years ago), and I can't believe they would deny access to those records to a public library within their own state. We are attempting to find a solution to this problem. Has anyone else out there run into this situation or come up with an answer? Thanks.

Affiliate libraries and Family History Centers have the same level of electronic access. What FHCs have that affiliates don't is access to the subscription services (e.g. FindMyPast, Ancestry, etc.) that libraries may or may not have.

According to what I was told last year, the additional amount of data accessible to members-only is very small (under 5%).
I'm certain what the difference is for Salt Lake (FHL) access.

People have asked for a different icon to represent info available at affiliate libraries, but so far, that has not happened. What they can do is if they see a key above a camera, they can call/email and ask about that specific database, but odds are it is open (no key) at the library.

Am I correct that there are four levels of access to the records: those that anyone may access anywhere, those that may only accessible at the affiliate level or above, those accessible only at a family history center or the Family History Library, those records only available to church members?

We are also wondering if there is a way for us to tell if a record is available for anyone to use or if we have access because we are an affiliate. We get many email and telephone questions, as opposed to in house so we are referring people to FamilySearch.org. We are hoping there is a way to tell that a patron would not be able to access the particular collection at home but must be at an affiliate or center. If there isn't a way to tell about access we could give people links to the records with the proviso that they may need to visit an affiliate library or family history center near them.

Thanks for any advise.

Donald,

I reached out to our legal department to find out what was going on in Virginia specifically and this is the response I received: Many archives in Virginia sent us letters, similar to the attached, that deny digital rights.

The letter that is referenced does not allow FamilySearch to release the documents in a digital format except at the FHL (and perhaps some FH Centers). I do not have permission to send the letter otherwise I would share it.

Please know that FamilySearch is renegotiating each contract and getting different instructions from organizations. Usually it is an economic reason (ie they make money off the records) but sometimes they have other issues or concerns. This is a lengthy and time consuming process.

Unfortunately we do not have a clear communication path at this point to let users know of the contractual change. We are looking into options to assist with this situation.

Hopefully this helps answer your question.

If anyone has further questions, feel free to email me directly.

Just today someone called about a film. I noticed that instead of the message that says:

To view these images you must do one of the following:

* Access the site at a family history center<https://www.familysearch.org/locations>.

* Access the site at a FamilySearch affiliate library<<https://www.familysearch.org/locations>>.

It says

Image Unavailable

This image is unavailable for online viewing at this time.

For some reason that feels more like a computer issue than a rights issue.

I sure hope it gets resolved as it is an excellent resource.

According to what I was told last year, the additional amount of data accessible to members-only is very small (under 5%).
I'm certain what the difference is for Salt Lake (FHL) access.

People have asked for a different icon to represent info available at affiliate libraries, but so far, that has not happened. What they can do is if they see a key above a camera, they can call/email and ask about that specific database, but odds are it is open (no key) at the library.

We are also wondering if there is a way for us to tell if a record is available for anyone to use or if we have access because we are an affiliate. We get many email and telephone questions, as opposed to in house so we are referring people to FamilySearch.org. We are hoping there is a way to tell that a patron would not be able to access the particular collection at home but must be at an affiliate or center. If there isn't a way to tell about access we could give people links to the records with the proviso that they may need to visit an affiliate library or family history center near them.

Thanks for any advise.

All the films are being digitized and indexed. I believe the only way to view films is at the Family History Library in Utah, or if your local family history center already has the film.

This growing trend of monetizing public records has been very disturbing. The situation seems to become worse each year. I have noticed it on Ancestry, as well as on Family Search.

In our local town clerk's office, they now charge a $25 fee, per document, if you photograph it with your own phone. Access to public records should not be limited to those with the means to pay such exorbitant fees.

Donald,

I reached out to our legal department to find out what was going on in Virginia specifically and this is the response I received: Many archives in Virginia sent us letters, similar to the attached, that deny digital rights.

The letter that is referenced does not allow FamilySearch to release the documents in a digital format except at the FHL (and perhaps some FH Centers). I do not have permission to send the letter otherwise I would share it.

Please know that FamilySearch is renegotiating each contract and getting different instructions from organizations. Usually it is an economic reason (ie they make money off the records) but sometimes they have other issues or concerns. This is a lengthy and time consuming process.

Unfortunately we do not have a clear communication path at this point to let users know of the contractual change. We are looking into options to assist with this situation.

Hopefully this helps answer your question.

If anyone has further questions, feel free to email me directly.

We have been a FamilySearch affiliate library for almost 20 years. When the digital images became available online in September 2017 we had access to almost every local government record we could want. A few months ago something changed: Inexplicitly and without warning we lost access to county court records for our own county as well as a number of other counties (many nearby) within our state

(Virginia).

People we have contacted have suggested that the contract that Salt Lake has for those records has expired or has changed, but haven't indicated who that contract would be with, or who we should contact to address it. The Library of Virginia was the agency who approved the original microfilming (more than 50 years ago), and I can't believe they would deny access to those records to a public library within their own state. We are attempting to find a solution to this problem. Has anyone else out there run into this situation or come up with an answer? Thanks.

Affiliate libraries and Family History Centers have the same level of electronic access. What FHCs have that affiliates don't is access to the subscription services (e.g. FindMyPast, Ancestry, etc.) that libraries may or may not have.

Fairfax County Public Library's Virginia Room has periodicals to trade. Please respond to our volunteer, Fran, at Bfm1010 at cox.net and Frances.Millhouser2 at fairfaxcounty.gov . Be sure to include your mailing address in your email so that we can make your mailing label. There's a Word and a pdf version of the same list, so I hope everyone will be able to open it. Apologies for sending attachments, but the county won't allow us to use file sharing services.

If you don't have anything to trade, please send a check for postage reimbursement (made out to Fairfax County Public Library) to

Laura Wickstead

Virginia Room

10360 North St.

Fairfax, VA 22030

Trades are allotted on a first-come, first-served basis. The volunteer will email you to tell you that the box has been sent to our mail room, and she'll include a list of which periodicals are in the box.
