Hi All;

We are working towards our phase 3 of our opening process. Which includes the public entering our building. I am curious what others are doing with their local history/genealogy collections.

Questions I have;

1. Are you taking appointments
2. How long are you allowing Patrons to be in the dept
3. Are patrons touching materials
4. Are you quarantining items for 72 hours after patrons have used them
5. Is staff doing the research and then contacting the patron to give them what they found

Thank you for your input.

Sincerely,
Stephanie

We are fully open to public and wearing masks. We are encouraging public to wear them too. We have been quarantine items for 72 hours. Computer time only one hour.

Good luck

We are open - this week fully! We highly encourage masks. Staff are required if other staff are within 6 feet or there are patrons in the room. We take appointments - more to manage traffic than to be time-sticklers. Appointments are 2 hours with extensions permitted if space permits. Patrons are touching materials per normal. We quarantine for 48 hours. If needed again before that, it's an "at your own risk" situation - we do have gloves folks can use.

We're always available to research for patrons, so that is nothing new. When we were open curbside-only or for the first two weeks after - we did not charge for copies (within reason). We never charge for e-copies, even if there is an intermediate paper one.

Yes, we take appointments for computer time, notary, reference assistance, etc. Patrons are to be in the library to do what they need to do and then leave immediately. We are still closed due to construction. The genealogy collection is not accessible to patrons and the major, most used portion (microfilm and yearbooks) of the collection is in storage. Even I cannot get to it. Computers keyboards and mice are covered with plastic wrap and baggies which are replaced after each use.

Items that are returned are quarantined for 72 hours before being handled. They are placed in a huge bin or book drop bin and dated.

We have been doing research by phone since all of this covid stuff started. Prefer to have an email so items can be sent to them via that or I did offer to send via USPS since the gentleman was a resident of our county. (In other words, at no charge.)

Anyone entering the building must wear a mask. If they do not have one, one will be provided for them.

For those who are open and taking appointments: What system are you using?
Can patrons make appointments online or do they need to contact you to make one?

If you are using any sort of software, what is it?

We've never required appointments before so this is a cultural shift for us and our patrons.

Thanks!

We are using google sheets that have been edited to fit our operating hours. But this is not for genealogy services. I am without a permanent desk and area due to construction/renovation.

EXPLORE RELIC

July 2020 - The Ruth E. Lloyd Information Center for Genealogy and Local History (RELIC)

Start your historical journey today at pwcgov.org/relic<<http://www.pwcgov.org/relic>>! Genealogy and local Virginia history are our specialty as a service provided by the Prince William Public Library System.

All Prince William library facilities have been closed to the public since March 16. Central Community Library<<https://www.pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/Pages/Central-Community-Library.aspx>> is currently being renovated. When that renovation is complete, RELIC will reopen in spacious new quarters there. Meanwhile, reference service by phone and email is still available. RELIC's service hours are 10:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m., Monday through Thursday, and 10:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m. Friday and Saturday, at " 703-

All programs are being offered virtually from July - November 2020.

MAKING SENSE OF THE CENSUS<<https://pwcgov.libnet.info/event/4312964>>
RELIC's Don Wilson will detail the use of U.S. census records for family history. Explore the peculiarities of these records and learn about population, mortality, agricultural, industrial, social schedules, and more.

RECORDS<<https://pwcgov.libnet.info/event/4313126>>
Courts and their records were here from the beginnings of local government, recording the daily lives of our ancestors, including land ownership, lawsuits, and probate of estates. An understanding of the format, language, and content of these records is essential for successful research in early American genealogy.

As this is written, RELIC does not have a firm date for reopening at Central Community Library. The final clearing out from Bull Run Regional Library will be after July 15. We will continue to offer email and phone service during this transition, as much as possible. Hopefully our collection will be in place at our new location by early August. Virtual programming is expected to last through November. State and local response to the pandemic will determine when we will be able to help the public in person.

Prince William County's Historic Preservation Division has just published Volume Two of Journal of Prince William County History. Its contents include:

- * "Colvin Family Farm," by David Cuff.
- * "The 'Lost' Community of Kopp, Virginia," by R. C. Woolfenden.
- * "The Roseberry Southern Claims Commission," by Paige Gibbons- Backus.
- * "Local Preservationists."

To order copies of the journal, please contact the Historic Preservation office at 703-792-4754<https://www.pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/Press%20Releases/2020_July-RELIC.html> or email them at historicpreservation at pwcgov.org<<mailto:historicpreservation at pwcgov.org>>. WELCOME TO RELIC AT CENTRAL COMMUNITY LIBRARY!<<https://www.pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/Pages/RELIC-programs.aspx>>
After 25 years at the Bull Run Regional Library, the RELIC department has moved to a new home at the renovated and reopened Central Community Library. RELIC's Kirk Johnson leads this brief "virtual tour" along with an overview of the resources and materials available for patrons researching their family history or the history of our community.

RESEARCHING YOUR IMMIGRANT ANCESTOR<<https://www.pwcgov.org/government/dept/library/Pages/RELIC-programs.aspx>>
All U.S. residents descend from immigrants. Those who arrived within the past 500 years may have a paper trail. RELIC's Don Wilson will describe passenger lists and naturalization records and how to find them.

Message-ID: <59caa31acec74708bdd537bbf956d47f@Cumberland.admin.oconeesc.com>

My library system has closed our historical room to the public until further notice. Patrons can submit a Genealogy and Local History Request form, and we will process the request. This was decided to encourage social distancing, and to enable us to cover the rest of the library.

Subject: [Genealib] Re-opening by appointment update

Message-ID:

<BN7PR11MB25327E011332EB20E856CEDDC4650@BN7PR11MB2532.namprd11.prod.outlook.com>

Beginning July 6, we started taking 1 hour appointments for researchers in the Kennedy Room of Local and South Carolina History. We had previously been doing lots of distance research and beginning on June 3 had allowed brief walk-in (less than 15 minutes) questions but no patrons using library materials, only staff. Since the patrons will be in the space for more than 20 minutes, we are allowed to require face masks to be used in the room (highly recommended in the rest of the library). Our appointments mirror the computer lab opening to 2 30-minute sessions per user a day (less than half capacity in the labs) across the system. Staff has been required to mask since coming back into the building in mid-May. Our open hours expanded system-wide on July 6 to be M & W 10-6; T, T & F 10-4; and Sat 10-1.

On M & W we have 10 appointment slots (staggered start times to allow cleaning between); T, T, & F we have 7 appointment slots, and Saturday we have 3 slots. No more than 2 people per appointment (if they are traveling together) and we have 2 tables available for the appointments. Masks must be worn (we have disposable masks to give out, as needed). Microfilm machines are available but only to those who have booked an appointment. Walk-ins will be accommodated as we are able within the schedule. We are holding any books used by the public for 72 hours before re-shelving (library-wide procedure for non-staff handling).

So far, we have had 3 people book appointments (one has come back because 1 hour was not quite long enough). One of those is coming from out-of-state and has been a pain trying to get information out of to pull resources for her visit. Patrons are not allowed to browse our collection at this time so staff has to pull the materials for each patron. We are requesting at least 24 hours notice for each appointment. We are also asking for more contact information than we used to (name, physical address, phone, and email) in case we need to follow up with a researcher later for additional research needs (or, goodness forbid, need to do contact tracing).

Our desk has a "sneeze guard" and tables increasing the size of the desk to add distancing. We have also blocked off much of the room with caution tape to limit where patrons can go. We have removed all but two chairs per research table and placed them in an unused meeting room next door. All patron chairs in the library have either been flipped upside down or removed (as patrons have turned them over to sit, we have had to physically remove the chairs, sigh).

All programming continues to be online.

Message-ID: <f73381c4909a49f591883f16007bf425@morgancountylibrary.info>

Due to construction at my location, nobody except staff is allowed in the library. We did just start taking appointments for computer use, notary and copy machine use. Technically folks are allowed in the library for those things.

As for any in-person genealogy research - well, it is non-existent due to construction/renovation. The collection is scattered in several different locations in the part of the library that has been renovated. We are waiting for completion of the Carnegie renovation. I'm to have a "made-to-order" desk. The director even came and asked me what I wanted. (Nice!) I have been doing research and having copies made and ready for pick-up as needed. For out-of-town folks I can scan and send documents. That's the extent of what is happening here.
