The Tobacco Leaf.

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, MAY 6, 1868.

DIRECT AND INDIRECT TAXATION.

The subject of taxation is at all times and in all countries an important and an interesting one, and at no time and in no country has it touched the vital interests of the masses more nearly than it does at the present moment in these United States of America. On looking around us we find people crushed to the earth under a burden of taxation such as scarcely any nation ever staggered under before, and this in a land, the peculiar boast of whose citizens has always been the cheapness of the necessities of life compared with the countries of the Old World. Thanks, however, to a gigantic civil war, terribly mismanaged in its financial aspects, the era of low prices has been left far to the rear, and our citizens are beginning to envy the inhabitants of those very countries, over whose pecuniary burdens they but recently bestowed so much commiseration. Nor would this state of affairs be so depressing were only the value of luxuries enhanced, or were we only unable to import so many foreign silks and satins for our wives and daughters as formerly, through the restrictions of a high tariff. Unfortunately, the necessities as well as the so-called luxuries of life have greatly enhanced in value, and thus the burden presses equally upon the poor and upon the rich. Probably no body of men ever fell so far short of the requirements of the difficult situation in which they found themselves, as did the members of that Congress to whose lot it unhappily fell to devise a new system of taxation, capable of yielding such a revenue as our necessarily increased expenditures demanded. Setting aside the valuable results of the experience of other nations on this subject, they appear to have relied exclusively upon their intuitive perceptions, and the end of their enactments was one of the most miserable failures that has ever put to shame the vaunted capabilities of the human intellect. And for their blind folly the country has ever since been suffering. With the greatest natural advantages ever vouchsafed a nation since the inauguration of the first human government; with a variety of climate adapted to the production of almost any plant, fruit, or flower; with mineral riches boundless and incalculable; with millions on millions of acres of the most fertile soils waiting to be occupied with all these things in a happy and with no reason on earth why we should be poor, the country is to-day in a most depressed condition—her commerce paralyzed and her industry at a stand-still, simply because the incapable men who undertook the revision of our financial system miserably failed, not only through natural inability to rise to the level "of the great argument," and comprehend the exceptional position in which the country found itself, but through their obstinacy in steadily rejecting the wisdom of others who were thoroughly versed in the science of which they had not even mastered the alphabet. Thus we find them increasing the number of articles taxed in the most short-sighted manner, when the experience of every other portion of Christendom was a unit in favor of confining the imposts to a few articles, and in constantly diminishing rather than increasing the number. Thus our taxes have become like the locusts of Egypt, and are found everywhere—even in the bit of bread and sup of drink which the poor man puts to his mouth. In view of these legislative errors, and the present depressed condition of the country, we propose to say a word about a possible remedy.

This remedy, to our thinking, consists in the substitution of direct, for the present system of indirect, taxation. In Europe, where government is studied as a science, direct taxation is daily growing in favor, not only among statesmen, but with the masses themselves. For the poor man can readily see how greatly he is the gainer, if, instead of paying taxes to an indefinite amount on his food and clothing, he can discharge all his obligations to the government by the payment of a certain moderate fixed sum, and purchase the necessities of life at greatly reduced prices; nor does it need much arithmetic to show that our countrymen to-day could better afford to pay even a large rate per capita in the way of a direct tax, than they can afford to pay twice the amount indirectly. The only difference is that between an open, fair transaction, and a blind, hypocritical one, in which the tax-payer is absolutely cheated by a large impost under the pleasant impression that he is paying none at all. Of course this is the most absurd of fallacies. The wheels of government need to be frequently oiled to be kept in motion, and no citizen who enjoys the advantages resulting from the keeping of this administrative machinery in good repair, can avoid contributing toward the necessary expense. The question for him to decide is not whether he will pay, but how he will pay, toward the support of the Government. He may pay as we are paying now, by indirect taxation, which, in our opinion, and in that of others more competent to judge than we, is the most extravagant and unsatisfactory system ever invented. It is, as we have hinted, hypocritical, for while it does not call upon us to pay a cent into the common Treasury directly, it collects a fraction not only whenever we buy a cigar, or drink a glass of ale, but also when we purchase food and raiment for ourselves and families, and these fractions amount, in the aggregate, to a much larger sum than is required by the actual necessities of Government, and only a portion of which finds its way into its coffers. For whenever a tax of one per cent, is laid upon any article of general consumption, the cost of that article is enhanced to the consumer nearly two per cent. Thus we see a tax of one-eighth of one per cent. levied upon our street-railway companies for each passenger carried, but the unfortunate passengers pay seven times that amount in addition to the former fare, only one-seventh of which goes to support the Government. Thus it is in the case of taxes on all articles of consumption, the unfortunate consumer having to pay not only the actual tax levied, but such advance as the dealer sees fit to demand, and thus consumption is diminished, business injured, and the entire commercial system put sadly out of joint. Contrast this with the advantages flowing from direct taxes. The general Government needs so much money—say $300,000,000 annually, if you please—for administrative purposes. It computes the receipts from customs, and, for the balance, estimates the total population of the country, and divides that balance into so many portions per capita. In order, however, to avoid the necessity of the maintenance of a large army of officials for the collection of the tax, it is found best to divide the gross amount into portions to be distributed for collection among the various States. Thus New York would be charged with so many millions, and Ohio with so many millions, for which the State authorities would be responsible to the general Government. The collection of this amount by the States would be very simple, as it could be assessed upon the real property, and paid together with the State and county taxes, and be collected by the same officials. To this plan, however, there would arise the objection that the owners of real estate would pay all the taxes, and that all others, however wealthy, would go free. The injustice of this arrangement is manifest. To obviate this, then, we would retain the present income tax, but make it more progressive—that is, having no $500 or $1,000 exemption, but making all receivers of incomes pay at least a small percentage of it into the public Treasury, increasing the rate progressively with the wealth of the tax-payer, as now the poor man pays nearly as much in proportion as the citizen whose income crowds hard upon half a million.

By an income tax thus made less unequal, and upon a per capita tax if also necessary, together with customs duties, we would rely for the support of the Government; and we venture to say that the adoption of such a policy would be followed by an instant revival of trade, and a sensible amelioration in the circumstances of the large majority of our citizens. Abolish, we say, the taxes on whisky, tobacco, manufactures, and the other items now relied upon to raise, but which do not afford, a sufficient amount of revenue, numerous as they are. Let us simplify the system upon the plan we have proposed, and our word for it, our financial evils would speedily disappear, like the early cloud and the morning dew. We are sick of these frauds, and the temptations which our rotten system of taxation constantly holds out for their commission. The whisky trade is corrupt to the core, and the tobacco trade is rapidly becoming so. Let us have an end of hypocritical shams and the attainment of our ends by tortuous and dishonest ways. Let us come out squarely and say to each citizen, "You make so much money in your avocation, whatever it may be, annually, and you are protected in your pursuit by an organized and costly government. We therefore assess you so much in proportion to your income, and we pledge ourselves not to impose taxes upon any article which you consume, or to levy further tribute upon you in any other way. In short, we consider the payment of this proportion of your annual income, as a full discharge of all claims Government may have against you!" This would be dealing fairly with the citizen, and "to this complexion must we come at last." We have had enough trickery and chicanery: let us now try a little honesty in the administration of public affairs!

MINOR EDITORIALS.

ATTENTIVE readers of THE LEAF doubtless remember that the concluding section of the proposed law adopted by the Convention at Washington last winter, contained this provision: "And the counterfeiting of stamps be regarded in law as an offence equal to the counterfeiting of Government money, and be similarly punished." This is one of the thought that the 1865's will be among the finest vines ever produced. Claret is reported deficient in yield, although it is satisfactory to learn that the new wine is of a good, useful quality, which will probably compensate the growers by the prices they will realize for the great falling off in the quantity. Madeira is satisfactory both in quantity and quality, and although steadily on the increase scarcely in ratio with the enormous strides of the two preceding years. The production, however, will never equal what it was prior to 1857, when the annual average was 30,000 pipes, as a great portion of the land then cultivated is now devoted to the growth of sugar cane and cereals. On the Rhine and Moselle, little sun and heat with too much wet and cold, have caused a most unsatisfactory vintage. The unfavorable weather that accompanied the vintage precluded all chance of the grapes maturing, and thus prevented their perfect fermentation, thereby leaving an unusually large remnant of undecomposed saccharine matter, which will cause the wines to be in a most unsatisfactory condition when the heat of the spring approaches. Owing to the vintage of 1866 also having been so bad, the fine wines of 1862 and 1865 have greatly augmented in value.

We give the following important rumor from Washington for what it is worth, and may have something to offer about it in future. Almost any change would in this case be an improvement, unless it involved the creation of more worthless and venial officials without increasing their efficiency. "It is reported from Washington that the Ways and Means Committee have agreed to report in favor of making the Internal Revenue Bureau an independent establishment, not under the control of the Secretary of the Treasury. They provide for one commissioner, one assistant, and five deputy commissioners, besides a solicitor. The commissioner is to be responsible for the entire management of the bureau, and for the collection of the revenues, and to this end he is to have sole power of removing and appointing collectors, assessors, and their assistants. The measure throughout is of this sweeping character."

The operation of the fifty per cent. clause of the General Bankrupt law cannot but prove beneficial both to creditors and debtors. It must make persons who are operating upon credit careful about contracting liabilities to such an extent that they cannot see their way clear out of their difficulties should they become unfortunate. The great necessity that they shall so husband their estates that they will be able, in case of trouble and inability to pay, to show a balance sheet which will enable them to realize fifty per cent. of their debts from their remaining assets, will be continually before them with the force of a monitor. It will make them careful, economical, and vigilant. As the law stands, it offers a premium to the prudent, and certifies to everyone who has a watchful desire to be ready for the worst, that he must proceed slowly, but with certainty, and that he must not risk too much. It will restrain that headlong ambition to "make or break" which has been the bane of business in this country, and the cause of encouraging over-indebtedness, similar in consequences to over-trading, and producing much misery and unhappiness. The present bankrupt law is the most sensible one that we have ever had in this country, and will prove of vast advantage to trade and commerce. It will control business and mould business customs with direct reference to its provisions. The sections which relate to involuntary bankruptcy, place a remedy in the hands of every creditor to be used against an improvident debtor, compelling him to bear in mind the fact that there is a restraining power which may at any moment be exercised against him. The fifty per cent. clause was to have gone into effect in one year after the passage of the act, but as the applications under the latter were slow, and many worthy men suffering under past misfortune had not yet applied for the benefit of its provisions, it was thought to be both liberal and just to extend the period during which the favor of a discharge might be allowed, without reference to the fifty per cent. regulation. As a consequence, a movement to this end was made some time ago. Mr. Jenckes, of Rhode Island, who had charge of the bill, brought forward in the House a motion to postpone the time when the fifty per cent. clause should go into operation until June 1, 1869. There was some objection, and finally a compromise was arrived at, by which it was agreed to postpone the period until January 1, 1869. In that shape the amendment passed. We can scarcely expect that there will be trouble in relation to the matter in the Senate. The only point in doubt is whether there will be such speedy action as to render the subject free from all uncertainty, so that the public may clearly understand the extent of their privileges under the law in time to avail themselves of them.

The recently-published pamphlet of Mr. Jay Cooke, setting forth the grounds on which he promised coin payment in his advertisement as Government agent for the sale of the first series of the Five-twenty bonds, is very clear and convincing, and is deserving of special attention. Among other forcible arguments, he lays great stress on the fact that no question of paying the Five-twenties in any other standard than that of coin, was ever raised until several years after the loan had been sold; that if in 1863 or 1864 such a question had arisen, the bonds could not have been negotiated; that the successive Secretaries of the Treasury have all declared that the bonds would be paid in gold; that the bonds were bought by the people in reliance upon this declaration; that the contract was so understood and accepted by the whole country, and that Congress allowed the Treasury to make these repeated promises without giving any warning or hint of a claim to modify or invalidate the contract in after years. Finally, he claims that as a principal is bound by the acts of his agents, so the nation is bound by these acts of its Congress and other representatives, and that the contract must be interpreted and fulfilled in the sense understood on both sides when it was first made. He meets the objection that the bondholders are a privileged class of capitalists, by the statement already made in the columns of THE LEAF, that out of three millions of subscribers to the Seven-thirties, nine-tenths were persons of small means; and he adds, "The West took $320,000,000 of the $831,000,000 Seven-thirty loans, and this is as large a proportion as could be expected from a new and enterprising region, where money always commands higher rates than at the seaboard. Ohio alone took over $90,000,000, and Illinois over $70,000,000. The West was also a large taker of the Five-twenties and other loans. I can substantiate these statements, for I have taken the trouble to analyze each day's subscriptions with the above result. Again, how can the bondholders be considered a privileged class? During the entire sale of these bonds they were offered freely, at par, to anyone. Even the owner of but $50 was not excluded, but hundreds of thousands of these small investors came forward from all parts of the land and were gladly welcomed. The small premium to which our bonds have advanced is no impediment in the way of any one who really wishes to obtain them, and even now the daily demand from this class of investors is far greater than that from any other class. What becomes, then, of the assertion, that the man who holds Government bonds is a privileged person?"

It is evident that business activity is based upon the amount of capital a community may be able to command, together with the productiveness of its employment. All permanent business prosperity and depression is, therefore, referable to these as a cause. It is useless, however, to deny the fact that many if not most of the sudden momentary panics, for the time most destructive to the interests of trade, often arise from causes in which actual capital has little or no concern. They are not traceable to any derangement or lack of wealth, but rather to a derangement in the means by which it is exchanged or made available. Money, though an indispensable requisite to commerce, may be brought temporarily into antagonism to it, and, in place of promoting, seriously derange the active interests of the country. This arises from the influence which it commands as an independent power in society. Even in the form of a mere representative of value, it carries with it for the time being all the force of actual capital. So true is this that it is found by experience that a few capitalists in Wall street may perceptibly affect the business interests of the whole country, through speculative operations in relation to the currency. But independent of premeditation or design, the most serious results, perhaps, have been occasioned through temporary insufficiency in the circulating medium from accidental causes and sudden expansion of trade. It is a well recognized fact that the requirements for money vary greatly at different periods of the year, and if not panics at least great inconveniences often ensue detrimental to business in the extreme, from a want of the proper facilities to supply these demands, through the inadaptability of our financial system to the exigencies of the occasion. It is claimed that the English financial system possesses an advantage, an elasticity, in this respect, not existing in our own, through the power of the Bank of England to afford temporary relief on occasions of unusual monetary stringency. The severe business crises, however, which have swept over that country within the past few years, of which we have been in a measure exempt, even under circumstances of extraordinary financial difficulties, do not seem to sustain this theory. It has been suggested as a matter of expediency for the Government to adopt measures which will afford that elasticity to the currency as to circumvent the tricks of the Wall-street brokers in speculating at the expense of the business interests of the country, as well as to anticipate any sudden demands to satisfy the wants of trade. In the accomplishment of this object, it has been proposed that deposits be kept in the principal cities to provide the mercantile public with accommodations on pressing emergencies at reasonable rates of interest.

THE TOBACCO MARKET.

DOMESTIC.

NEW YORK, May 5.
Western Leaf.—The sales of April amounted to 2,250 hhd's, and since the 1st inst. to 273 hhd's—the latter being principally new planters' lugs to the Spanish buyer at 7½c. There is a better feeling generally prevalent, though what it is based upon is not so clear. There is little demand for shipment to the open market. No purchases have yet been made for the French contractor, and it is thought his prices are considerably below our quotations. The home demand continues fair, and desirable stock of wrappers and fillers is scarce. The supply of lugs is also unusually small. Receipts continue free, being from January 1 only 200 hhd's, below those of last year; still factors' confidence in the shortness of the production is unabated, and that it will all be wanted at present or higher prices. Although our stock increased nearly 4,000 hhd's, in April, buyers complain of a poor assortment of desirable tobacco, both of home trade and export qualities—the poverty of the receipts justifying all that has been said against this crop.

Seed Leaf.—Trade last week was extremely quiet, with no alteration in prices. We quote: 27 cs. Connecticut at 25c; 60 cs. State on private terms. Of the business in seed leaf during the month of April, we quote from the Report of Messrs. M. Rader & Son: "There has only been a limited demand throughout the month, although more inquiry from the home trade, but the stock on hand does not seem to give satisfaction, and manufacturers only buy when compelled to. For export there is very little offering suitable in price and leaf; and as the views of the holders of the new crop are high, and likely to remain so, we apprehend that little will be done in that trade until late in the season. Connecticut has been more looked after, and as the bulk of the stock on hand consists of this sort, we must expect more doing. Ohio and State, of the old crops, are rapidly decreasing, and must soon give way to the new crop, of which only a small lot of Ohio was taken as a sample at 9c. for export, but the quality and leaf were not liked, and to judge from what has come to hand, will turn out quite inferior. Pennsylvania is little inquired for. The new crop is a small one, and held at high figures. The sales are 650 cs. Connecticut at 14, 22½, 25, 30, 37, 55; 600 do. Ohio at 4½, 7, 8, 9, 18; 700 do. State at 5½, 7½, 8, 9½, 12; 200 Pennsylvania at 7@11½."

The export of seed leaf since January 1, 1868, was 4,955 cs., and during the same time last year, 10,265 cs. Spanish.—There was a remarkable quietude last week, and we only note sales of 75 bales Havana and 30 bales Yara, both on private terms. Of the business during the month of April, we quote from the circular of Messrs. J. S. Gans & Son: "The activity in Havana fillers noticed in our last has not continued; the arrivals were large during last month, as will be noticed in our statement of stocks, notwithstanding the reports that the stock in Havana was nearly all gone. The sales were 1,500 bls., at from 85c@10. Of Yara about 300 bls. were sold."

We are glad to see that the Internal Revenue Record—the able official organ of the Department and of the Custom-House—reproduces the suggestions in our last issue regarding the weighing of Spanish tobacco. They having now been brought under the notice of the officials, we trust to see them adopted and immediately put in force. Another leading merchant—the gentleman with whom the idea of separately weighing the bales first originated—also suggests that the Weigher should keep a record of the number of each bale. By these safeguards—weighing each bale separately, stenciling upon it the Weigher's name, and keeping a record of its number—the Government and the honest trade will be well protected, and frauds rendered much more difficult, if not impossible, of commission.

Manufactured.—We have nothing new to add to the old stereotyped report of general stagnation and dullness. The total sales last week were very—were almost afraid to say how—small. Still, the month of April was probably a trifle better than the same month last year. April, however, is always dull, and this year it has emphatically been no exception to the general rule. From Virginia we hear of no bright factories yet at work, although those at Danville will probably get into operation between now and the first of June. At Lynchburg, manufacturers plainly state their inability to work at the present prices of leaf and the manufactured article, and assert that unless affairs take a turn they will dispose of the leaf they have already purchased and wait for better times. At Danville leaf still goes up, one lot having been sold last week for $60—the highest figure yet reached. We think the Lynchburg manufacturers, in view of these facts, are wise in refusing to work, as by their keeping out of the market a scarcity will gradually be produced which must tend to strengthen prices up to a paying level. Meantime the defrauders are doing all they can to ruin the trade. We note among last week's receipts the arrival of from 200 to 300 pkgs. of the so-called "tax-paid" goods, and it is within the power of the factories sending them out to flood not only this but all the markets throughout the country with them, to the destruction of legitimate business. Well may the trade cry out, "How long, O Lord! how long?" A prominent plug-leader suggests one mode of heading off this class of goods, which seems to us most feasible. He would compel by law all steamboats and railroads to keep accurate accounts of all packages of tobacco received for shipment, where received from, and what their destination. Then he would appoint an official who should daily make from the data collected from the steamboats and railroads, a statement of the day's shipments, and should then proceed to the different factories in the place and compare his statement with the inspector's books. If they agreed, then all would be right; if, however, more tobacco had been shipped than had been inspected, it would immediately appear. This seems to us a practical and effectual method of heading off the "tax-paid" frauds, let this or some other equally feasible plan be adopted.

Smoking.—There was great activity in trade last week, and several heavy Western purchasers were in town. We note a sale of 300 bbls. low grade Virginia at 22c@25c. There were also heavy sales of fine bright goods at 75c@81. We also note an improved demand for standard brands, and a loud call for two-ounce packages—the orders for these being continually in advance of the supply.

Cigars.—There was a little more doing last week in the old goods at $7@10, while the supply of new goods, popularly supposed to have run the blockade, is still undiminished. Something ought to be done to drive this class of goods out of the market, or at least to stop the leak which their presence indicates. Quite a large representation of the trade gathered at the store, No. 117 Pearl street, on Monday (4th inst.), to "assist" at an auction sale of cigars, seized by Government for violation of the tariff laws. The brands were favorite ones, including some very good Havanas. Among the lot we noticed "Flor de Cuba," "Conchas," "El Negro," "Londres," "Prensados," "H. Upman," "Regalita," "El Flor del Fulmar Cil," "Agulla de Oro Lon Prens," "Progreso Cubano Conchas," "Figaro Rlg. Brit. Cil," "Henry Clay, Chic," "Ingenuidad Reg la Reina Ist," "Cubanas Reg la Reina Ist," "Flor de Undia Patriotas," "Legitimidad Reg. Brit. Ist," "Reanillita Aroma Brama," and others. The prices brought were very fair, and the bidding was spirited. We give the prices brought by several prominent brands: 4 bxs. "Partagos, Lon. 2d," $16; 20 bxs. "Espanolas, Lon. Prens.," $10.50; 11 bxs. ditto, $11; 10 bxs. "Espanolas Rlg. Lon. Cil.," $14.12; 20 bxs. "Espanolas Lon. Prens.," $11.12; 20 bxs. ditto, $11, $11.12, $11.25; 3 pkgs. cigarettes, $12.50 per thousand bundles; 1 bx. "Londres Corte Cil.," $4.50; 2 bxs. "Espanolas Lon. Corte Cil.," $10; 20 bxs. "Londres," $7.75; 10 bxs. ditto, $11; 7 bxs. "Espanola Lon. Prens.," $10.62½; 5 bxs. "Jenny Lind Brevas," $12.62½; 3 bxs. "Le Grand Antilla Lon.," $11½; 4 lbs. Picadura tobacco, $1.20 per lb.; 2 bxs. "Dutch Londres," $5.50; 2 bxs. "Brevas," $12½; 8 bxs. "Garaballa Reg. Esp.," $13½; 3 pkgs. cigarettes, $1.20 per thousand bundles; 5 bxs. El Sella Com., $9.25; 2 bxs. Bremen, $5.50; 25 bxs. "Espanola Lon. Prens.," $10½, $10½, $11. The regulation was adopted of selling in lots of 500 with the privilege, and the entire sale must have netted something handsome to the Government, as 1,934 bxs. were disposed of.

Liquorice.—We have nothing new to add to our recent reports, liquorice suffering from the general depression of the plug interest. Gold opened this morning at 139½, and at noon had fallen to 139½.

Exchange.—The market in the fore part of the week was weak on account of the increased supply, and rates favored buyers, but towards the close, as the supply became low, rather than through any increased demand, it became firmer. We clip the following from the New Orleans Price Current, which will not come amiss to many of our readers:

Those who do business directly or indirectly with England understand what is meant by sterling exchange; also, why it is that when it is quoted at 9½ prem. is but really at par. It has been often explained, but still the question is often asked, "What is sterling exchange, and how can the relative value of English and American money be ascertained?" The following are the whys and wherefores of the whole matter.

The dollar formerly in use in the United States was the Spanish dollar (in silver), the value of which was 4s. 6d. sterling. This was taken, and has since been, and still is used as the basis of exchange; and to this cause may be attributed most or much of the misconception as to sterling exchange in the United States.

If $1 be worth 4s. 6d., what is the value in dollars of £1, or 20s.?

4s. 6d. = 4½ shillings.

Then — = 44½, or 4 dollars 44 cents,

4½

and 4-10 of a cent, or 4 mills.
Now, supposing the standard of American currency to be still the Spanish dollar, it is clear that $44½ would represent, at par, the value of £1 sterling. But that standard has been changed—first, by a United States silver coinage, and then by a gold one, so that now the par value is about 9½ per cent. above $44½, or $48.86 per £. Hence, when exchange is quoted, say 109½ to 110 in New York, it is about par—i.e., it is just as profitable to buy exchange at that price for a remittance as it is to send gold.

If the price be 111 to 112, it would pay expenses and 1 per cent. to 2 per cent. in addition, to send gold; but if below 109½, there would be a loss in shipping gold.

All exchange is calculated upon a gold basis, but at the present time the usual business of the United States being transacted in currency, this has to be taken into account in settling any price, or sending remittances for payments; and this is done in the following manner: for instance:

What is £100 worth in currency, with exchange say at 109½, and gold at 40 per cent. premium? £1—44½. Therefore £100—4444.

And 444½ at 109½—$486.65 in gold.

Which at 40 per cent. premium—$681.31 in currency.

The same process gives the true result, let the rate of exchange and premium on gold vary as they may. And, vice versa, to find the value of a given amount of currency in sterling:

A in New York wishes to pay B in London the value of $8,600 currency in sterling. Gold is 136, and exchange 108½. How many pounds, shillings and pence must he send him?

$4444 at 108½ gives say $4822 in gold. Which at 36 premium—$6558 per £ sterling. $8,600

Therefore —£1,311 7s. 6d., amount to $6558

be remitted. And so again:

What is the value in sterling of $1,000 in United States 5-20 Bonds, when quoted 111½ in New York, with gold at 134, and exchange at 108½?

Price of bonds—111½, £. 4, 11½ premium. Then $1,000 at 111½, premium—$1,115.

$4444 at 108½—say $4.80 in gold. Which at 34 premium—$9432 per £ sterling. $1,115

Therefore —£173 7s., value of $1,000 in sterling.

We quote sixty days Commercial Bills on London, 109½@109½; Bankers', 110@110½; Bankers', Short Sight, 110½@110½; Antwerp £5.17½@£5.12½; Hamburg, 36@36½; Amsterdam, 40½@41½; Bremen, 79½@80.

Freights.—We have no change to notice this week in the market. Rates are nominal. The current quotations are: London, 30s.; Liverpool, 30s.; Bremen, 30s. @35s.; Hamburg, 35s.; Antwerp, 30s. @37s. 6d.; Rotterdam, 35s.; Havre, $8@10; Glasgow, 30s. The engagements have been: To Bremen, 100 hhd's, at 25s.; to Hamburg, 100 hhd's, at 35s., 155 bbls. at $1, and 140 cases cigars at 40s. Chartered a bark to a port in Spain with tobacco at 40s.

Century Tobacco.

We are putting up two kinds of Century in tin-foil papers—Dark and Light. In localities where light fine cuts are used, the bright Century is preferred above all others. It is manufactured from the very best selections of old leaf, is free from shorts, and of a very superior flavor; it is put up in fancy half-grocery boxes, and sold by all respectable jobbers, at $10 per gross.

We still continue to pack one HUNDRED DOLLARS
DAILY in our Century Foil.

Century in Bulk—Per Pound.

Bbls., $1.20; half bbls., $1.21; kegs, $1.22.

Rose Leaf

is a medium, light-colored, mild, aromatic Tobacco, and has become a very popular brand in New York State and New England.
Bbls., $1.00; half bbls., $1.01; kegs, $1.02.

Cavendish.

This very popular brand is greatly improved. It suits every section of the country, requiring a medium, dark, sweet Tobacco. We feel assured that a trial will convince all of its superiority over all other brands for the price.

Bbls., 90c; half bbls., 51c; kegs, 89c; small foil, $7.00 per gross; Olive Branch extra foil, per gross, $6.00.
We are also making a new brand of light colored Cavendish, called

Comet,

which we can cordially recommend to the trade, requiring a low-priced tobacco.

Bbls., 88c; half bbls., 81c; kegs, 88c.

Bee-Brown.

Bbls., 86c; half bbls., 81c; kegs, 88c.
All of the above brands are put up in 5 lb. BUNDLES
16 oz., 8 oz., and 4 oz. PAPERS, AT BULK PRICES. 1
5 lb. case 10 cents per lb. extra.

No CHARGE FOR PACKAGES OR CARTAGE.

INTERNAL REVENUE SEIZURES.

There have been no seizures worthy of special notice during the past week. In the case of the factory in Pearl street, which has now been closed for several weeks during a prolonged preliminary investigation, to determine whether it should be held and the case thrown into the Courts, it has finally been decided, on the recommendation of the District Attorney, to release it. This misdirected zeal on the part of the Internal Revenue officials has thus cost the unfortunate manufacturer dearly. Although we are always the first to encourage officials in the earnest and impartial discharge of duty, it is only a matter of simple justice to the trade that they should, in the words of the adage, look before they leap. These constant seizures which lead to nothing are the bane of the trade, and bring the Department into bad repute. Internal Revenue officials cannot be too careful in this respect. It is good, the great dramatist tells us, to have a giant's strength, but it is tyrannous to use it like a giant. The officials have a giant's strength with regard to the trade, and the thoughtless exercise of that strength may do much harm without leading to any good.

WORK FOR MAY.—The American Farmer (Baltimore) says: "The leisure season after corn planting should be diligently used to get rid of the old crop of tobacco still on hand. Get all that may still be hanging, or in small, two-course bulks, packed closely in large bulks, and weighted heavily; from these bulks it may be at any time transferred to the hogheads, and packed for market. Let tobacco-beds have constant care—picking them of grass whenever necessary, and following with a dressing of fine manure. Towards the close of the month there may be a portion of the plants fit to set out. At so early a period, it will be advisable to plant out small plants, if they be thick in the beds and very abundant. The beds will, in that case, be benefited. If not plentiful, do not plant small plants. No one not experienced in planting will realize the great advantage of well-grown plants over small ones, or the difference in the plant of a week's growth in the beds. The most thorough working and preparation of the surface soil is especially necessary for this crop. If the soil be at all lumpy, harrow and roll again and again. This will save a great deal of hoe labor, and the advantage of a well-pulverized surface will be very apparent in the setting of the plants, and what is most desirable, a quick, early growth."
