

Media review published in Library Journal, October 15, 2009, 134(17): 52.
<http://www.libraryjournal.com/lj/reviews/videodvd/855923-286/video.html.csp>

Ten More Good Years. color. 71 min. with tchr's guide. Michael Jacoby, Lookout Films, Inc., 2008. DVD

This film dramatically demonstrates the hurdles and obstacles GLBT populations face as they approach their "golden" years. They are the first "out" generation, at the forefront of activists who emerged from the closet to fight prejudice and violence, having sacrificed family, friends, and jobs. Many whose partners have died are without financial security. Having worked in creative and artistic endeavors that compensated them sporadically and often inadequately, many have neither retirement funding nor Social Security contributions. Those interviewed tell stories of abuse, neglect, and ignorance, especially the transgendered. Multiple trailers can be viewed at www.10moregoodyears.com. Though the included Educator Guide has typos, it is useful and innovative. Recommended for the GLBT who have these people to thank.

By Gerald A. Notaro, Univ. of South Florida Lib., St. Petersburg