THE CASE OF FREDERICK FETTE.—In noticing the arrest and alleged swindling operations of Frederick Fette, of Warren, Pa., last week, the daily papers appear to have erred in some instances in the statement of the facts in the case. Among other misstatements, they made Philadelphia, instead of Warren, the residence of the accused, and credited him with obtaining by his questionable exploits a much larger sum than he actually succeeded in getting. Fette, it would appear from information furnished THE LEAF, has been for several years engaged in the cigar and tobacco business at Warren, Pa. There, until his transactions which brought him into his present difficulties were made known, he enjoyed a good reputation. Suddenly he seems to have fallen into the hands of sharpers, who, for their own gain, it is supposed, prompted him to embark in a course of wrong doing. It is stated that he has managed to swindle the Tobacco Trade out of about $50,000, half of which amount was obtained in this city. From liquor dealers, also, here and elsewhere, he has secured merchandise for which he has failed to pay, having moreover no license to deal in liquors, for which violation of the law the revenue officers are said to be in want of him. Mr. Schmitt, of the firm of Jos. Schmitt & Co., leaf tobacco dealers, of this city, caused the arrest of Fette, and had him lodged in jail at Warren, and learning from some of the Rail road attaches that goods purchased in New York were recently shipped by Fette to Brooklyn, he succeeded on his return from the pursuit of Fette in recovering $20,000 worth from some of his relatives, with whom they had been stored, in that city. Fette has applied to file a plea of voluntary bankruptcy, but will be opposed. He is reported to have said that he could pay 25 cents on the dollar, but he appears not to have then been aware of the recovery of the goods in Brooklyn.

Referring to tobacco, a Florida exchange remarks: "In the parishes of St. Helena, East Baton Rouge, East and West Feliciana, in this State, the lands and climate are almost identical with those in Middle Florida, where the Havana tobacco has been so successfully cultivated for the past forty years. In one county in the district of Florida mentioned, Gadsden, 120,000 pounds of this tobacco was grown this year, which averaged 40 cents per pound, sold on the farms where it was cultivated, and the value of the whole crop of this State is estimated to have been $300,000. Now, there is no reason whatever why this valuable tobacco should not be cultivated in that section of this State we speak of particularly as it is grown without the necessity of employing as expensive labor as in the cultivation of cotton or sugar cane. A farmer with a family of children can utilize their labor in making this crop, as the principal work to be done is the keeping of the plants free from worms."

Cigars—There is nothing to add to previous announcements with reference to business in this department of trade, the weekly volume of transactions continuing large and essentially unchanged. The trade has received with genuine satisfaction the assurance, as published, of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue that instructions would be sent to Revenue Collectors to discontinue, for the present, the seizure of cigars branded in the manner recently complained of in the State of Iowa, and of his intention to bring the question of the proper mode of branding tin boxes, before Congress at the ensuing session, with a view to obtaining for the trade the privilege of using such boxes without the necessity of branding them with a branding-iron, as seems now, though impracticable, to be required by law.

Growers of seed leaf tobacco are cautioned against accepting the reported sales and quotations of seed leaf as furnishing the prices that should be obtained for them at first hand, as these refer in most instances to old crops which have been held nearly a year, and the profit on which must naturally include the interest on capital invested. Growers cannot expect even in the case of new crops, to sell them for the same prices as are obtained on a re-sale here. Of course every re-sale must be at an advance, and therefore the price obtainable by the growers will always be somewhat lower than our quotations.

No bright plug workers on market this week.

NEW ORLEANS, October 22.—Our special correspondent reports:—Our market has shown but little activity since the 1st inst. The sales are 104 hhds of which 50 hhds low grades were for export, the balance to local manufacturers. The stock in first hands sums up 2,345 hhds, comprising about 50 hhds Africans, 750 hhds Clarksville and Paducah leaf, 450 hhds low leaf without decided character, 1,000 hhds sound common to good lugs and 75 hhds frosted. Quotations are almost normal; low to medium lugs, 7c.@7½; good lugs, 8c.@9; low leaf, 9½c.@11½; medium leaf, 12c.@14; good leaf, 15c.@17; fine leaf and selections, 18c.@20.

PHILADELPHIA, October 25.—Arthur R. Fougerey, Manufacturer's Agent, reports:—In regard to the price of Plug tobacco, there is evidently a nearer proximity of opinion between buyer and seller the past week than for some time past, with sales improving to some extent, especially in low grade goods, while standard brands dealers continue to purchase to supply daily wants. This, makes to some extent an increase in the aggregate of receipts, still manufacturers are acting very cautiously and continue to ship in very limited amounts, except in orders and are seemingly determined to wait and see what effect the new crop is going to have on the market before they enter largely into manufacturing, and judging from the tone of your various correspondence from the growing leaf districts, it would lead to the conclusion they have acted wisely. Receipts from South and West, 810 boxes, 696 caddies, 384 cases, 30 kegs, and 1,310 pails.

Cigars.—This class of our manufacturers are now constantly having an improvement in their business, and some of our large manufacturers of fine goods are beginning to see light ahead, while our low grade manufacturers are kept very busy, in fact it is now difficult to obtain any quantity of low grades, for as soon as offered on the market they are picked up, hence I consider the cigar trade in an improving condition.

Leaf Tobacco.—Our home demand for the past week partakes of the same improving influence of business noticeable in the most of our branches; this is particularly the case with leaf, which contains the requisites for making fine goods, and holders of the same feel comfortable, showing no desire to sell except at their figures, while with medium and low grades they are disposed to meet the views of buyers, in order to make room for the new crop, believing it will have to be placed on the market at a much lower price than usual, hence more of these grades are moving. Our export demand continues with 10 cases of Pennsylvania leaf to West Indies, and 30,240 pounds to Europe, of Western and Virginia leaf, per American line of steamers. For domestic use, 310 cases Connecticut seed leaf; 385 cases Pennsylvania seed leaf; 78 cases Ohio seed leaf; 86 cases New York State seed leaf; 84 cases Wisconsin State seed leaf; 176 bales Havana leaf.

Richmond, October 23.—Mr. R. A. Mills, Tobacco Broker and Commission Merchant, reports:—Since my last report there is nothing new to report. Our market remains firm. The transactions were 363 hds, 64 trcs and 23 bxs. I continue quotations:—

SAN FRANCISCO, October 14.—The Commercial Herald reports:—The stock of Connecticut Leaf is large and steadily accumulating. Sales in lots within the range of 15¢50¢, according to grade. The market for Virginia manufactured is without movement, and prices unchanged since the last auction sale.

ST. LOUIS, October 13.—Mr. J. E. Haynes, Dealer in Leaf Tobacco, reports:—Received 111 hds, against 57 the previous week. Thursday being our usual Fair holiday there was no public sale. Friday the offerings were liberal considering the reduced receipts, manufacturing grades brought very steady prices, while inferior and common grades continued dull and weak. Saturday, offerings were moderate and the market quiet and unchanged. Monday, very little tobacco was put on the breaks and the market was unchanged. Yesterday, offerings were liberal for the season and the market strong, without quotable change in prices. This Improved Machine for cutting Tobacco is constructed with a single knife working upon inclined bearings, and operating with a sliding shear cut upon the tobacco, which is placed in a box with sides at right angles and bottom parallel with said knife. This machine will cut any kind of tobacco, and cut it perfectly. Fine Twist, Perfume in Carrots, and any similarly hard prepared tobacco can be cut in their hard state, without any casing, for any other moistening to soften them. It makes no shorts, can be run by hand or steam power, requires no skill to operate it, its construction is of the most substantial kind, slow to wear and difficult to disorder. Price of machine complete, with Press (box 4 1/2 x 20 inches), $210 net cash.

D. W. DE FOREST LUMP MACHINE.
Round Work. Hand Work Imitated by Machinery.
We call the attention of Manufacturers of Plug Tobacco to the De Forest Lump Machine.
During the last two years this Machine has excelled all other Machines both in quality and economy of work in making Plug Tobacco.
The Machine occupies but four square feet of room.
With it the Manufacturer is independent of skilled labor, as a boy can learn to run the same in one day.
The work is round, fillers straight, with square ends.
Wrappers run twice as far as by hand.
The De Forest Machine, in my judgment,
is superior to hand work in manipulation
of Lump. Saves in Wastage and economies
in LABOR TWENTY PER CENT.

TESTIMONIALS:
Richmond, Va.
This is to certify that I purchased last fall Six (6) De Forest Lump Machines, and having tested them, have ordered TEN additional Machines. The De Forest Machine, in my judgment, is superior to hand work in manipulation
of Lump. Saves in Wastage and economies
in LABOR TWENTY PER CENT.

BUCHANAN & LYALL,
Quincy, Ill., June 29, 1874.
Mr. D. W. De Forest, 279 Front Street, N. Y.—We take pleasure in saying that the SIXTEEN LUMP MACHINES purchased of you, that they give us entire satisfaction, and we deem it to the interest of Manufacturers of Tobacco to adopt your system. Your CUMBER MACHINE is very useful, crumpling as many as one hundred lumps per minute. Very respectfully yours, etc.,
HARRIS, BEEBE & CO.,
Montreal, Canada, April 26, 1874.
The Adams Tobacco Co., Montreal, Canada.—This is to certify that I have had Six of the De Forest Lump Machines in constant use in this factory since August last; that they have given entire satisfaction, and that I pronounce them to be the best Machine for any kind of Navy work I have ever seen.

NEW PIPE-MAKING MACHINE.—A preliminary trial of a new pipe-making machine took place a few days ago in Glasgow (remarks an English contemporary) at the works of Messrs. Kellogg & Galbraith, and excited no little interest among engineers, pipe makers, and others, of whom there was a goodly number present. The machine was patented some fifteen months ago by Mr. John Liston, a practical mechanic of Glasgow—a gentleman, by the way, who is not a smoker, but who evidently thinks that if pipes are to be made, they should be made as cheaply and expeditiously as possible. Mr. Liston has since then superintended the construction of the machine, and considerable confidence having been expressed in its ultimate success, a number of the pipe-makers in the city have devoted some attention to it, hoping that, should their expectations be realized, they would at least be freed from a deal of the annoyance to which they are at present subjected through the strike. The machine is of comparatively small size, not being more than three feet in height, four feet and a half in length, and two feet and a half in breadth. It can be driven by an engine of four-inch or four and a half inch cylinder, requires only two girls to attend to it, and its cost is estimated at about £50. With the machine the inventor states that he will be able to turn out as many pipes in a day as ten men working by the manual process. Without going into detail, it may be stated that its mechanism is of a very ingenious description, and works with much regularity and smoothness. Two moulds are kept going at the same time, working alternately, but quite distinct from each other; and the principal motions, which are directed by a "cam" attached to the main shaft, are four in number—namely, the pressing blocks for tightening the mould on the clay, the plug for forming the head of the pipe, the wire for perforating the shank, and the knife for dressing the head when formed. At the close of the trial, Mr. James Steel, in a few remarks, proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Liston for having invited them to be present on the occasion, and for the pleasure that had been afforded them in witnessing the performances of his interesting machine. Remarks were also made by several other gentlemen, all commendatory of the efforts of Mr. Liston, and expressive of the belief that all the motions for the making of a pipe were in the machine, and that any defects which had been noticed were of a kind that could be remedied with comparative ease.

IRON FURNITURE.—Among the recent industrial developments in Germany is the hollow iron furniture, which has been popular for years in Austria. In Germany, however, it is only quite lately that the first large factory for making this class of goods has been opened.

Too Much Paper Money—OUR EXPERIENCE IN REVOLUTIONARY DAYS.—Never before in the financial history of the country (says the World) has the average price of money ruled so low as during the last eighteen months. Since the beginning of the present year demand loans in this market have ranged at the rate of from one and a half to two and a half per cent. annum. And even at this season of the year, when the moving of the crops always absorbs much floating capital, and the banks generally find themselves taxed to their utmost limits to furnish the West and the Southwest with the necessary currency, money is quoted at two and a half to three per cent. in Wall Street, while all our financial institutions are overflowing with greenbacks and national bank notes. Another element which should be taken into consideration is the gradual revival of trade and manufactures, which during the last six or eight weeks has made itself felt at all our commercial and industrial centres. This healthy activity, coupled with the exceptionally large crops throughout the country, has naturally necessitated a corresponding increase of capital to transact the business and move the crops. But so great is the supply of capital, so redundant is the stock of currency now lying idle in bank, that this very considerable and unusual demand for money has been promptly met without even raising a ripple on the surface of the money market, whereas under ordinary circumstances connected with the raising of money and the furnishing of currency wherewith to move the crops have had the effect of raising the rates of interest. In point of fact, at no previous time has there been such an excess of paper circulation over the real wants of the country unless we go back to Revolutionary days and Continental money. In those good old times no one could complain that "the volume of currency was not equal to the wants of trade." There was then exactly what the inflationists and repudiationists seem so desirous of seeing again—"plenty of money." But living was very expensive—a good suit of clothes cost three thousand dollars; a night's lodging, with breakfast, three hundred dollars; a loaf of bread, fifty dollars; and so on. It was soon affirmed that the constant rise in values necessitated a corresponding increase of money; and the Government was fully equal to the emergency. New issues were made as fast as needed for "the wants of trade" as interpreted by inflationists, till the country was bankrupt. Must we go through the old round, to "see the folly of it" too?

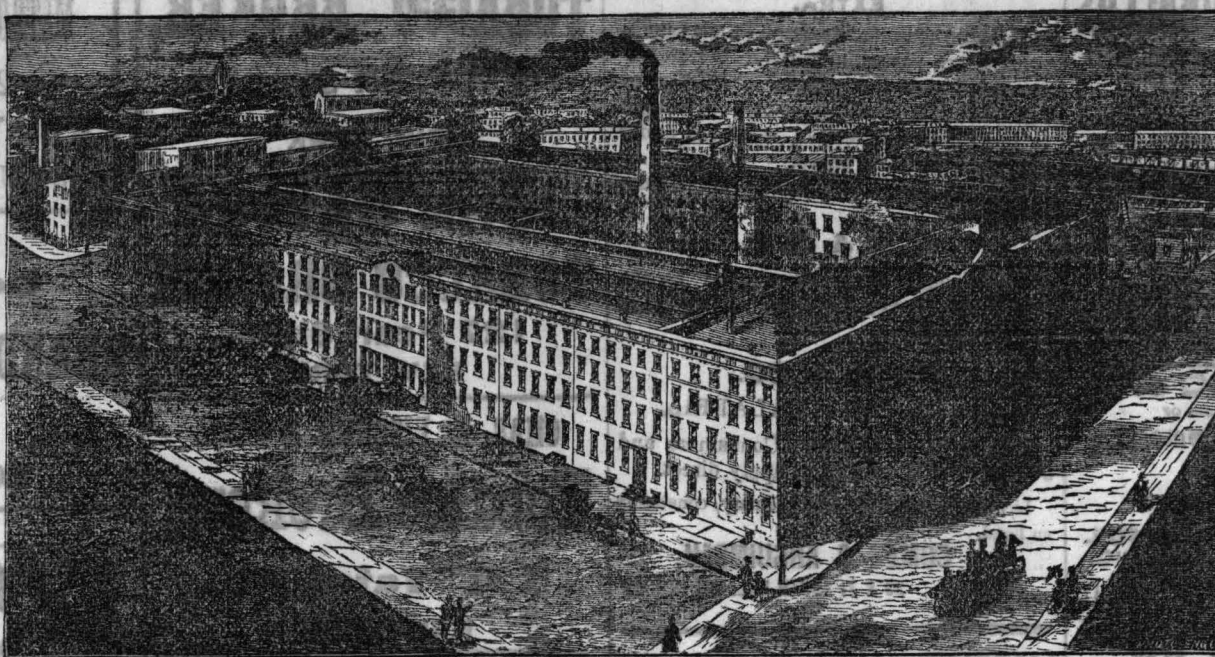

ABOUT LOUNGERS AND LOUNGING.—Lounging may be said, observes the London Liberal Review, to be the popular amusement of the day, and it may be honestly declared that for one honest worker there are ten loungers. In many cases the one worker is a worker by necessity and not by inclination, and spends his leisure time in lounging. There are comparatively few men who turn their spare moments to much account, and there are a great many who turn them to a very bad account indeed. Systematic reading is not in fashion except among a few thoughtful persons, and but little earnest attention is paid to the arts and sciences except by those professional persons who live through their instrumentality. Literary societies are now and then established in our large towns, but they are so languidly supported and their meetings are so sparsely attended that they do not present cheerful spectacles. On the other hand, theatres and billiard-rooms, and music-halls exist by the hundred, and are patronized by thousands of people, while that hydra-headed monster the public-house is never short of patrons. This being so it is not surprising that the tone of the people generally is low and that a great deal of ignorance prevails among them. Indeed, it may honestly be said that the majority of them are grossly ignorant upon all matters except those which pertain to their own businesses. Not one man in a hundred can give you the names of ten of the most prominent planets which illumine the firmament, it is an uncommon thing to encounter an individual who can tell the names of the plants and flowers which flourish in the hedgerows, and the being who is able to enlighten his fellows as to the salient points of English history is a wonder whom it is pleasing to contemplate. All this simply arises from the fact that lounging has become the popular pastime of the day, alike among the respectable and disreputable classes.

The confirmed lounge is a fellow upon whom it is not easy to look indulgently. He is objectionable alike in youth and old age. As a young man, he lounges down to his business with his pipe in his mouth. Arrived at his office he does the least possible amount of work that he can until luncheon time. Then he lounges out of his office and is shortly engaged once again in the manufacture of smoke. Returning to his business he sets to work rather more languidly than before and, with intervals of relaxation, remains as industrious as it is in his power to be until his watch shows him that it is five o'clock and therefore time for him to seek about getting home. Upon this he locks up his desk and departs. Relighting his pipe, he seeks omnibus, railway carriage or boat, and is conveyed as nearly as possible to his own doorstep. Then having satisfied the claims of his stomach he once more flies to his pipe and wonders what he shall do to pass away his evening. Sometimes he goes on wondering—and consuming tobacco meanwhile—until he discovers that it is time to seek his bed.

More frequently, however, he listlessly and aimlessly saunters forth and wanders about until he comes across a theatre, a music-hall, a billiard-room or a public-house, in which he frequently succeeds in obfuscating his faculties. Finally, he winds up by returning home at a respectable hour with a hazy conviction—which is invariably realized—that he will feel "seedy" in the morning. This sort of thing being continued—with little variation—night after night and year after year it is only natural that he should in time acquire a distaste for every thing, the performance of which requires him to make an effort. Thus, it happens that at last, even in summer—when there are a host of healthy sports, at some of which he may be proficient, inviting his attention—he prefers to stick to the town. Gradually his mind acquires a morbid taint, the result being that he is led to seek excitement in a variety of reprehensible and dangerous ways. He will be found gloating over entertainments in which wretched women show to what depths of degradation they can descend; he will be found chuckling at the obscenities of some "comic" singer, who would not be treated more hardly than he deserves if he were pelted with garbage as filthy as his own language; and he will be found endeavoring to prey upon some associate who is rather more "green" than himself. Woman he comes to look upon with the jaundiced eye of the libertine, and virtue he mocks with a persistency that plainly indicates his love for vice. Perhaps he sets himself up a critic of men, manners and things—the drama in particular coming in for a large share of his notice. He does not appreciate the best plays and it is not to be expected that he should do so, for how can a man who is himself debased appreciate that which is high and ennobling? Still there are people who have reason to feel grateful to him. Miss Brazenface, the burlesque actress, who has a good leg and shows it; Funnyman, the comic actor; Cheek, the singer, whose music-hall songs smack of every thing that is nasty; and a crowd of billiard-room harpies and other of the same humanity are among these. As for himself he goes through life everlastingly complaining of its dullness; he remains ignorant of the master minds with whom, if he chose, he might bring himself in contact, and therefore a stranger to elevating thoughts; and he grows puffy and unwholesome looking and full of ailments—in a word he often becomes for all practical purposes, a broken-down man intellectually and physically before his time. On the whole, there can be no hesitation in declaring that he is in every way a startling example of the gigantic mistakes that men make.

When the lounge is old he does not pursue exactly the same game that he does when he is young. How could he do so, for he is not often young or dyspeptic? The old lounge, perhaps, smokes rather less and drinks rather more than his young prototype. He seldom walks more than a mile at a stretch. The chief business of his life is his dinner. After his dinner instead of taking a little gentle exercise, he makes an attempt to read the Times and succeeds in going to sleep

ABOUT LOUNGERS AND LOUNGING.

That is, of course, when he is by himself or alone with his loving spouse. When in company he sticks to the dinner table and the wine that is contained thereon with a tenacity that may well prompt the query what would life be to him if there were no dinner-parties? He does not greatly concern himself with the present except to declare that it is in every way a great deal worse than the past. Of what use he is to his fellows it is difficult to say. Indeed he appears little more than a mere sleeping and eating and drinking machine, and being a machine has no sympathy with any thing that does not immediately affect himself. He is so out of harmony with things generally that it is not pleasant for people to draw near to him. As a matter of fact, it is less pleasant to approach him than it is to approach a fussy individual who is firmly persuaded that he has an object in life, and that, without him, it would scarcely be possible for the earth to revolve on its axis satisfactorily.

Lounging is, no doubt, a kind of disease, and the disease seems to be aggravated by smoking and drinking. LIGHTNING BUGS AND RELIGION.—A colored preacher in the vicinity of Jackson, Miss., is said to have recently addressed his congregation at a revival meeting as follows:—"Now, my mournin' frens, you come heah an' you mourn, an' roll, an' hab's a mighty struggle wid de debil, night arter night, an' when you's mighty near loose you gits right up an' goes right back into de debil's arms agin. Now, I tells you, my frens, dat won't do; you never get away from de debil dat way. You's jist like de lightnin' bug! When you get down an' moan, an' roll, an' hab's a mighty struggle wid de lightnin' bug when he raise his tail an' spread his wings. When you gets up an' goes roun' laughin', an' talkin' an' foolin' wid de debil you puts your light under de bushel, an' you jist like de lightnin' bug when he shuts down his wings. Den he ain't no mo' like a lightnin' bug dan any odder bug, an' you knows it. Now, let's not hab any mo' ob dis lightnin'-bug business, but git down to work agin de debil in yearnest."

SLANDERING TOBACCO MANUFACTURERS.—We are surprised that the Milwaukee News admits such rubbish into its columns as the following:—"There are four little girls in Milwaukee, two of them the daughters of a Southside fisherman, one the daughter of a German carpet weaver, and the other a Third Ward lassie named 'Annie,' who are employed by a certain well-known and wealthy tobacco dealer to pick up whatever may be found in saloons, on the streets and in the gutters, at 1 cent for every ten pieces whether large or small. Every cigar stump and discarded 'quid' is picked up, no matter how dirty it may be, no matter who has used it, or where it is found. These are used in the manufacture of both 'choice' Havana cigars and paper chewing tobacco. The longer and better 'stumps' are unrolled and used for the former purpose, while the 'quids,' short stumps and soaked and rotten 'tips' are made into chewing tobacco. There is something delectable in a contemplation of all this. These children make good wages at the business, their pay ranging from 80 cents to $1.50 per day. When a large and well-soaked lump is found the little rascals divide it, and by so doing make 50 per cent. on their 'find.'"

ILLEGALLY IMPORTING LEAF TOBACCO INTO ENGLAND.—At the police court, Sunderland, a few days ago, the master and crew of the schooner Baty Nichol were brought up on a charge of having been found on board a vessel liable to forfeiture, owing to her having 580 pounds of tobacco stalks among the ballast on her arrival from Hamburg. The collector of customs elected to have the crew discharged, and proceed against the captain only. He said the importation of tobacco stalks was forbidden, because they were liable to fall into the hands of dishonest manufacturers, who would use them to procure a drawback from the revenue of 3s. 6d. per pound. Mr. Robson, for the defence, said his client had signed in ignorance in taking the stalks on board along with a quantity of dried heath. The Bench fined the captain £100, and ordered him to be imprisoned till the money was paid, but expressed their willingness to memorialize the Board of Customs on his behalf. The captain was then locked up, and the Bench signed the following recommendation:—"The magistrates strongly recommend the merciful consideration of the case of John McKie, with the view of the penalty being mitigated to the smallest amount that may be considered sufficient to meet the infraction of the law."

A SUICIDE LIVES FIVE MONTHS WITH HIS THROAT CUT.—Franz Wodicka, the Bohemian cigar-maker of Holbrook, who some five months ago attempted to commit suicide on the turnpike east of Jamaica village by cutting his throat and wrists with a razor, died recently in the Suffolk County Almshouse at Yaphank. His case is considered a very remarkable one by medical men. Although in his attempt at suicide he did not succeed in severing an artery, he had bled so much before his wounds were attended to that he was thought to be in a dying condition. He was attended by Dr. William Ward, of Jamaica, at the house of Coroner Henderson, and, although his wound was found to be nearly severed, he gradually rallied. He was subsequently removed to the Queens County Almshouse, on Barnum Island, where he remained for several weeks, and finally, although the wound in his throat had not completely healed, he was discharged at his own request and went back to Holbrook to resume his employment of cigar-making. The work did not agree with him, however; but he gradually failed and was forced to cease labor altogether. About two months ago he was admitted to the Yaphank Almshouse. At that time the whole width of his windpipe was exposed, with an opening in it about five-eighths of an inch in diameter, through which he breathed. He was so emaciated and enfeebled that any operation to close up the aperture would have been dangerous, and while his death was daily looked for, he still lived on about two months.

SOUND SENSE ON A CRYING EVIL.—We cordially indorse the following from the World.—"The Editorial Association excursions are well nigh over for the season. We are gratified to learn that in many States they are not encouraged at all, and that in others the leading country journals decline to be represented on them. Indeed, it will be found that in a majority of instances it is not the practical men who make and control the rural newspapers that are conspicuous on such occasions, but rather the editors' friends and contributors who would almost pay their own expenses at full rates for the satisfaction of being recorded as the representative of the Bungtown Banner abroad, and to figure at home in a leaded long-primer article, beginning with 'Our Own Correspondent' and concluding with their initials. There are two ways in which these excursions injure the profession. In the first place, they lower its tone and leave on the public mind the impression that the editors can be bought up or influenced with a free pass and a half-rate hotel bill. In the second place, the editor gives directly about thrice as much as he gets, and is estopped in perpetuity from expressing freely his opinion concerning the corporations or individuals that have thus got the better of him in the immediate bargain. As a rule, the man who takes a pass limits his public usefulness and lessens his personal influence. It is gratifying to observe that this view of the matter has been accepted by so many of the conductors of the country journals; it will be still more gratifying to observe that next year that many others have let the 'editorial excursion' severely alone, and declined to be compelled to express their obligations to the accomplished and 'genial' railroad conductor, or the 'mine host' who 'knows how to run a hotel.'"

SMUGGLING CIGARS IN LIME BOXES INTO SAN FRANCISCO.—Says the Post of September 30:—"That smuggling on an extensive scale has for some time past been carried on between Mexican ports and this city has been no secret to the authorities; and, acting on information previously received by telegraph, they made an important seizure on Saturday. When the Panama steamer arrived there was an extra force of inspectors at the dock and the cargo was closely examined without delay, resulting in the discovery of a number of boxes marked limes, each one of which contained boxes of choice Havana cigars in the center of the limes, done up in oil cloth. They found twenty-eight contraband boxes, valued at about $3,000. The record of the seizure on the books of the Custom House is as follows: 'Articles said to be owned by B. Doleghny and consigned to C. Lopez. These goods were seized in the act of being smuggled into this port from the steamship Granada, arrived from Panama, and were found made up into packages with evident intent to conceal their actual contents from the Custom House officers, to whom the same were submitted for examination and to avoid payment of duties. The owner or importer of said packages attempted to make an entry of the imported merchandise in said packages by means of a fraudulent and false invoice, and false statement that the packages all contained limes, when in fact a large proportion of them actually contained other articles. Also, said merchandise was not correctly entered upon the manifest of said vessel.' Lopez professed ignorance of the contents of the boxes, and stated that they were intended for other parties and only shipped through his care."

WHAT IS SMUGGLED INTO ENGLAND.—A London contemporary remarks:—"So long as human society remains constituted under its existing conditions, it would be Utopian to expect that smuggling will be deemed a very flagrant crime. That the offence is materially blameworthy, since to defraud the revenue deprives the State of a portion of its resources, and thus remotely cripples the action of good government, is obvious enough; and, as it is agreed upon all hands that a State can not be supported without a public income, it is reluctantly conceded that persons detected in carrying on a contraband traffic should be punished by a pecuniary mulct. If they can not pay the fine, it follows naturally that they must 'pay with their hides,' as the old Saxon phrase went, and suffer an equivalent amount of imprisonment. In bygone times the smuggler was regarded as a most heinous criminal, and punished with little less severity than the coiner, because import duties belonged really and substantially to the Sovereign, and to rob him of his revenues was considered as virtually an act of treason. Our rulers have long since compounded their droits for a fixed allowance; and while community retains their horror for the coiner, whose misdeeds are calculated, like those of the forger, to loosen the very framework of society, very little ethical blame is attached to the contrabandist, since the public is neither much the worse nor much the better for there being a quantity of brandy or tobacco in the market which has not paid duty. For example, it would be difficult to find a more honest and honorable set of fellows than the seamen of the Royal Navy; yet the Commissioners of her Majesty's Customs, in their report for the year 1874, just published, are constrained to record the fact that smuggling prevails to a very large extent at Portsmouth, where tobacco and spirits are systematically conveyed on shore from her Majesty's ships at Spithead, and even from the men-of-war lying in the Dockyard. Many seizures arising out of this traffic were made in the course of last year, and in one case 'private information' led to the confiscation of a box containing forty-nine pounds tobacco stalk while the contraband stuff was being conveyed to London by rail. From inquiries made it appeared that more than half a ton weight of similar packages had been forwarded to the same address in the metropolis in the course of the preceding four months. It is in the port of London, however, that smuggling flourishes in the greatest luxuriance, and the offenders are generally the crews of passenger and cargo steamers plying between London and those Continental ports where tobacco and spirits—there is scarcely any thing else worth smuggling—can be obtained cheaply. The devices for concealing the contraband goods from the scrutiny of the Customs' officers are as various as they are adroit; but the engine-room appears to be in most cases the favorite hiding-place. The captains, officers and chief engineers are usually able to prove their entire innocence of any complicity in the transactions. The offenders are chiefly at seamen or stokers, and on detection they are duly fined and imprisoned. In some instances, where the commander has laid himself open to the imputation of not having looked with sufficient strictness after his men, a penalty of fifty pounds has been laid on the ship itself. Altogether, and although in the course of the year 1874 seizures took place of 10,773 lbs. of tobacco and cigars and 256 gallons of spirits, and nearly eleven hundred smugglers were convicted, the Commissioners are of opinion that the offence is gradually diminishing in degree, if not in actual numerical occurrence. It would be, of course, highly desirable that smuggling should cease altogether; but before Morality proceeds to throw heavy stones at the 'Bold Smuggler,' we might ask ourselves whether we have never sinned by surreptitiously landing a bottle of eau de Cologne ora volume of the Tauchnitz editions of popular novels. The last form of smuggling is, indeed, directly fraudulent, since by its means authors and publishers are robbed of the fruits of their brains and their enterprise. We should like to know how many thousand volumes of 'Tauchnitz' will be craftily smuggled through the Custom House by home-returning tourists between this date and the middle of October."

AN ANCIENT EPITAPH.—The following was found recently by some antiquarian in a graveyard in Central Pennsylvania. The reasons for Margaret's departure are certainly conclusive:—"Here lies the bodie of Margaret Fay. Her world if her could but her couldnt stay. Her had had legs and a bodish cough, it were her legs as carried her off."

SOMETHING TO BE THANKFUL FOR.—The phyloxa has got as far as California, and has attacked the vines there. The champagne region of New Jersey remains intact.

SAD TIDINGS FROM KENTUCKY.—FALLING OFF IN THE SMOKING HABIT AT LOUISVILLE.—Says the Courier-Journal:—"A Virginia paper asserts that two centuries from now smoking will be as universal as eating. This is certainly a misapprehension. The increase of population will keep up the tobacco business, but there will be a continual, though perhaps small, increase of the number of non-smokers. To say that an enslaving habit is to become universal is to admit that the human race is traveling in a circle and that progress is merely an insignificant wabbling from the beaten track. Most smokers contract the habit in boyhood, or in the veal period between youth and manhood, and there is nothing many about it. The coming gentleman, if he is really coming, will avoid tobacco, not only because it is a source of annoyance to others, but because it is troublesome to the smoker himself. No man who attaches himself to a cigar, a pipe, or a pair of spectacles, is really free, and the man with the pipe or cigar may at any time become a more disastrous incendiary than Mrs. O'Leary's cow. Smoking, in consequence of its aggressiveness, is supposed to be making more headway than it really is. Five years ago the room in which this paragraph is written looked more like a cloud than a place of human toil, and every worker was a smoker. But those workers are gone. They have flown away on their own smoke-wreaths—gone to meet Grant, perhaps—and the five robust young men who fill their places have never come under the dominion of the enslaver of their fellows and they can not be tempted now. Smoking can not become universal; it will never reign supreme, even in Virginia."
