FEEDBACK

FEEDBACK is a feature of the BULLETIN designed for all forms of expression. We want to hear from YOU.

This week's contribution is a timely poem written by Norman J. Toth, son of Dr. John Toth of the Social Science Department at USF. The poem relates a familiar plague of pet owners, particularly in the springtime.

TICKS
by Norman J. Toth

Ticks are big.
Ticks are small.
Some dogs have them
Some have none at all.
When you pluck them
They make you sick
I hate those dirty rotten ticks.

Attention!

Currently there are many pressing issues requiring immediate action from our governmental representatives. If the USA can truly be considered a democracy, the people must be more involved than just a periodic appearance at the voting polls. Perhaps a letter to some of the men who make governmental policies for the States would help as well as promote involvement. The people must speak, before they will be heard.

The future becomes the present daily. Act today.

FLORIDA CONGRESSMEN IN WASHINGTON: Sen. Spearard Holland; Sen. Edward Gurney; Rep. William Cramer.

A special congratulations for meritorious conduct to B.C. in A Building for appearing there before her regular 9:00 A.M. Is it due to a neighbor's new "alarm clock?"
