

Heritage Villagers: A Social History of the Pinellas Peninsula as Revealed through the Structures at Heritage Village

James Anthony Schnur

© 2004 Heritage Village/The Pinellas County Historical Museum
and the Florida Humanities Council
Published by the Author

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements	iii
List of Illustrations	iv
Heritage Village Overview	1
Boyer Cottage
Brief Introduction	10
Narrative	12
Greenwood House
Brief Introduction	31
Narrative	32
Harris School Replica
Brief Introduction	45
Narrative	47
Heritage Mercantile
Brief Introduction	58
Narrative	60
Lowe House and Barn
Brief Introduction	70
Narrative	72
McMullen-Coachman Log House
Brief Introduction	102
Narrative	104
Daniel McMullen House
Brief Introduction	153
Narrative	155
George Washington Moore House
Brief Introduction	187
Narrative	189
Plant-Sumner House
Brief Introduction	207
Narrative	208
Safety Harbor Church
Brief Introduction	229
Narrative	231
Safford Memorial Pavilion
Brief Introduction	246
Narrative	247
House of Seven Gables
Brief Introduction	264
Narrative	266
Sulphur Springs Depot and Caboose
Brief Introduction	292
Narrative	293
Union Academy School
Brief Introduction	315
Narrative	317
Walsingham House
Brief Introduction	338
Narrative	340
Williams Park Bandstand Replica
Brief Introduction	360
Narrative	362
Index	379

Acknowledgements

Research and writing often occur as solitary exercises in libraries, at microfilm machines, or on computers. However, I am indebted to many colleagues throughout Pinellas County and the Tampa Bay region who offered their assistance and guidance during all phases of this substantial project.

Leaders at the Florida Humanities Council, most notably Fran Cary and Susan Lockwood, worked closely with the humanities scholars and Heritage Village project managers throughout all phases of the grant.

The administration and professional staff at Heritage Village provided oversight, guidance, and support. Jan Luth, Director of Heritage Village, exuded energy and adroitly managed a project that produced an amazing amount of research. Ellen Babb, longtime friend and Historian at Heritage Village, assisted with oral history interviews and located an impressive number of important sources that kept me on track. Alicia Addeo combed through volumes of meeting minutes of the Pinellas County Historical Commission, searching for any mention of the structures at Heritage Village. Tracy Spikes worked with me as I developed brief summaries of the structures that transformed academic babble into public history prose.

Many volunteers assisted me with research. I owe an enormous debt of gratitude to J. B. Dobkin and Joyce Pickering, librarians and historians who gave countless hours of assistance in uncovering archival treasures, deciphering genealogical connections, and helping me separate fact from fantasy. Scholars of Florida History at the University of South Florida assured that my research addressed broader social, political, and economic issues related to the human geography of the Pinellas Peninsula. I appreciate the camaraderie and support offered by Raymond O. Arsenault, Mark I. Greenberg, and Gary R. Mormino. As a colleague in this project, Stephanie Ferrell authored excellent narratives that outlined the architectural history and preservation concerns for each of the buildings. Docents and volunteers who provided assistance during the course of this project include: Susan Anemaet, Janet Brewster, Sandra Crist-Apple, Everett Daniel, Verna Daniel, Bob Delack, Sue Searcy Goldman, Frank T. Hurley, Donald J. Ivey, Joe Knetsch, Randy Lightfoot, Vincent Luisi, Barbara Neville, Harriet Protos, Sandra Rooks, Michael Sanders, and Wesley Stewart. My colleagues at the Nelson Poynter Memorial Library, under the leadership of Kathleen Hardee Arsenault, the library Dean, also showed support throughout the duration of this project.

I am most appreciative for the editorial guidance offered by Carolyn Schnur Hoffman, who took a red pen to the rough drafts and made many suggestions to improve the narrative. I give my greatest debt of gratitude to Phuongdung Hoang Ta Schnur, my wife, for tolerating my many trips into the nineteenth-century history of Western Hillsborough when I should have been mowing the lawn or spending time away from the computer. Her love and patience, especially when I went straight from the library to a Tampa Bay Devil Rays baseball game, will always be appreciated.

List of Illustrations

- Cover Daniel and Margaret Ann Campbell McMullen's family, taken at the family homestead in 1894. (Courtesy of the Florida Photographic Collection, State Archives of Florida, Image: PR06331)
- Page 8 Early Pinellas County leaders in front of the first Courthouse, 1912.

Cornerstone placing ceremony at Pinellas County Courthouse In Clearwater.
- Page 9 View of Spring Bayou, Tarpon Springs, looking west, from the 1890s.

Damage to the railroad station and packing house at Coachman after the 1921 hurricane. This site, originally settled by James P. McMullen in the 1840s, became part of Solomon Smith Coachman's citrus empire during the early twentieth century.
- Page 186 McMullen family reunion, held in July 1925 at "Uncle Dan" McMullen's Largo family estate.

Gathering of Charles B. and Hallie Ellis McMullen's family in June 1957.
- Page 227 Photonegative of the Belleview Biltmore, taken in the 1940s.

Workers loading grapefruit into a truck at a Largo grove, 1948.
- Page 228 Grapefruit tree planted at Philippe Hammock in the mid-1800s, one of the earliest citrus trees in the region. The photograph is from 1948.

Fish-fry in Green Springs, now Safety Harbor, in 1909.
- Page 245 Portrait of Anson Peacely Killen Safford.

Portrait of Soledad Bonillas Safford.
- Page 291 Early railroad crossing in Pinellas County, circa 1925.

View of Sulphur Springs depot at its original location in Hillsborough County, July 1972.
- Page 359 Governor Napoleon Bonaparte Broward delivering a speech at the Williams Park Bandstand in downtown St. Petersburg, September 1906.

Seminole Bridge at Bay Pines area, destroyed after the 1921 hurricane.